

In the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

From Washington: Colonel John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to orbit the earth, said the other night he is absolutely convinced the United States will put a man on the moon. It will be a worth-while job of exploration, he said, even though the specific benefits to be obtained from the trip can not be pinpointed at present.

And—
He added—
He doesn't think the job of finding out what things are like on the moon can be done by instruments. If we are going to find out what we want to know about the moon we are going to have to LAND A MAN there.

When man's curiosity about some problem that has been baffling mankind for so long that SOMETHING HAS TO BE DONE ABOUT IT, some man of the type of Colonel Glenn has been found to do the job.

IN CONCLUSION:
There IS such a problem.
It IS the PROBLEM OF POVERTY.

WHY does one man have more than he needs when millions of other men are unable to obtain as much as they need?
That problem is as old as mankind. It must be capable of solution. But, so far, it has never been solved.
Why not?

THIS thought occurs:
Too often, throughout the centuries, the solution of the problem of poverty has been approached by impractical dreamers—or, worse, by DEMAGOGUES.

Colonel Glenn is neither an impractical dreamer nor a demagogue. He is a capable DOER, skilled and competent. If the problem of poverty is ever solved, it will be by that kind of men.

The breakfast meeting has been called for 7 a.m., Thursday, April 25, at the Jackson Hotel in Medford, according to E. E. McGrew, chairman, truck committee, Southern Oregon Conservation and Tree Farm association.

McGrew noted that the present bill would increase the flat fee by 15 per cent. He encouraged all log truckers, whether members of SOCTFA or not, to attend the meeting and learn the facts about this legislation.

Robert G. Lewis will assume charge of the Butte Falls ranger district, Rogue River National forest, as district ranger, on April 28, according to C. E. Brown, forest supervisor. He replaces Randall F. Perkins who transferred to the regional office, Portland, on April 13.

Lewis is a native of Arlington, Va. He received his degree in forestry in 1953 at Virginia Polytechnic institute, and his master's degree in 1954 from Oregon State university.

Lewis received his initial appointment in June 1954 on the Siskiyou National forest where he served as a smoke-jumper at Cave Junction. In December 1954 he entered the Marine Corps.

Lewis returned to the Siskiyou in May 1958 as a forester on the Powers district. He transferred in April 1960 to the Smith River district, Siuslaw National forest, Gardner, as assistant ranger.

Lewis is a member of the Society of American Foresters and of the Marine Corps Reserve. He and his wife Floriette will move to Butte Falls on April 26.

World Must Learn To Live In Peace, Speaker States

World War III, if it comes, will be strictly impersonal and without glory and glamour. Harlan P. Bosworth Jr. veteran of two world wars, said in an address here Tuesday.

Speaking before a luncheon meeting of the Medford Rotary club at the Rogue Valley Country club, the Pacific Power and Light Company vice president warned that we must learn to live in peace with our neighbors and make real sacrifices if a nuclear holocaust is to be averted. The price tag for complete disarmament seems too high and human nature must change a lot if it is to be realized, Bosworth said. Let us hope that time does not run out before a nuclear test ban is effected. It will be necessary to halt production of nuclear weapons, inventory those existing and neutralize them before a ban can be really in force and disarmament becomes a fact.

A stronger United Nations, with an effective international police force with the power to enforce peace was urged by Bosworth as the only apparent practical step toward world peace. He vigorously advocated the creation of a new international language as a means of reaching better understanding between people and nations.

Today a single U.S. nuclear Polaris-missile submarine has more destructive power than all the explosives of World War II, Bosworth told Rotarians. With both U.S. and Russia long past the point when each could wipe out the other with ICBM attacks, the building of more and more missiles has become more psychological than militarily necessary.

For nine years Bosworth has been a member of the Atomic Energy commission's study group which has made a continuing survey of the peacetime uses of atomic energy. Technology in this field has long outstripped our progress in morality, he said. Never have we had a greater potential for mass destruction and never a greater potential for good to humanity.

Bosworth, whose World War II service brought him honorary citizenship in three countries—England, Belgium and Luxembourg, emphasized the need for every citizen to become informed on world problems and express his opinion publicly and to U.S. political leaders.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A BIG TRACTOR company staged its annual convention in Miami Beach one winter, and in connection therewith, had a fleet of tractors and bulldozers driven around the swimming pool of the hotel where most of the delegates were domiciled.

In the middle of the parade, an intoxicated guest stuck his head out of a window on the third floor and hollered to the spectators, "Stay out of that pool, men. They're aiming to build another hotel on top of it!"

A wealthy gentleman who loves exotic food and drinks sent a very special gift to a less-affluent friend: a crate of live terrapins. In due course he received a note of acknowledgment: "Thanks a million for the wonderful turtles—but I had to give them away. I just can't afford an aquarium big enough to keep them in."

From that versatile poet, Colonel Joe Duffy:
"Slick down your hair, talk to the cat;
Read all the news again; brush off your hat.
Look at your watch again; polish your shoes,
Go wash your hands again; grab a short snooze.
Put on your coat again; the end's finally near—
The end of the MINUTE she'll be with you in, dear!"
