

Year-Round College Gets Top Priority

'B' Budget of Higher Education Board Presented

Salem — UPI — A step toward year-round college was given top priority here Wednesday as higher education presented its "B" budget for proposed improvements beyond the existing level.

Chancellor R. E. Lieualen told the Ways and Means subcommittee on education that eight priority items totaling $2.1 million have been picked from the proposed $4.5 million supplemental budget. He said the priorities are:

- 1-Expanded summer sessions, $250,000. Rep. John Mosser (R-Beaverton) said he would like the sum increased because "we want to move just as rapidly as we can toward full summer use of buildings."
- 2-A masters in teaching program at Portland State college, $362,074.
- 3-Fuller participation for teaching institutions in the Ford Foundations "Oregon program" to develop new teaching methods, $322,820.
- 4-Extra appropriations of $200,000 for PSC and $50,000 for Southern Oregon College, where the per student amount is lower than the state average, to remove deficiencies.
- 5-Closed Circuit TV
- 5-Activation of closed circuit television at Portland State, $78,300. Mosser objected it should pay for itself in reduced teacher time. Lieualen replied he could not promise a saving "at this state of experimentation in television."
- 6-Research in new teaching and administration methods, including computer use, $200,000.
- 7-Strengthened graduate programs, $500,000.
- 8-Research "seed money" that would attract federal grants, $185,000.

Non-State Money

In a separate presentation, the committee discussed an estimated $16 to $20 million in non-state research money the system expects to get in the 1963-65 biennium.

Committee members objected that research expenditures are not budgeted in enough detail.

Sen. Alfred Corbett (D-Portland) said he was concerned about a "backdoor approach." He said he felt research was "good business for Oregon."

"I think identifying this would provide support," he said. "I'm convinced this is one of the best bargains Oregon has."

Proposal for Sunday Closing Dead in California

Sacramento — UPI — Supporters of a Sunday closing law announced today that they had not given up their fight for the measure, although it was dead for this session of the legislature.

Philip Corrin, spokesman for "Californians Against Commercializing Sunday," said that his group — composed largely of retail merchants — would hold meetings within the next several months to discuss possible action.

Saw No Chance

Corrin's statement followed Wednesday's announcement from Sen. Joseph Ruttigan (D-Santa Rosa) who said that he was dropping his proposed Sunday closing law because he saw no chance for passage "at this time."

Ruttigan's bill, which was surrounded with religious and retailing controversy, would have prohibited Sunday sales of "non-essential" items like automobiles, appliances, clothing, furniture and hardware. It would have applied generally in urban areas and not affected drugs, gasoline, food, real estate, newspapers, or souvenirs sold in recreational places.

The measure drew opposition from Seventh Day Adventist church and the American Jewish Congress, both of which celebrate their Sabbath on Saturday. The two groups had scheduled a mass meeting here next Sunday to present "the timeless principles of religious liberty which have made America great."

In other developments: Consumers — Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh (D-Inglewood) introduced seven bills "to clarify and extend the state's laws shielding unwary customers from unscrupulous business practices." Among other things, the measures affect retail credit, credit service charges and referral sales.

Education — The Senate education committee sent to interim study a bill to modify the current law requiring school districts to spend fixed percentages of income on teachers' salaries. The measure, by Sen. Donald Grunsky (R-Watsonville) would have increased the percentages while putting non-salary operating costs outside the formula.

Director of OTI Denies Criticism Of Scholarships

Klamath Falls — UPI — Oregon Technical Institute Director Dr. Winston Purvine denied Wednesday he had been critical of the State Board of Higher Education for a plan to set up scholarships for out-of-state students with tuition paid by other non-resident students.

He had been quoted as saying he did not like the idea of asking one outside student to subsidize another outside student.

The board voted to ask the legislature to authorize setting aside 10 per cent of non-resident tuition for scholarships.

Grateful for Help

"Members of the board of higher education were extremely considerate of Oregon Tech and our non-resident students in the Portland meeting," Dr. Purvine said Wednesday. "For this reason, I was not critical in any sense of the board's action, but am grateful for the board's help."

"A suggestion had come from Salem sources," he continued, "that Oregon Tech's out-of-state students pay tuition and fees of $900 per year. The board acted to recommend the percentage of increase be the same as for the universities, which would make the fee $890 instead of $900."

"This reduction of $200 per year is greatly appreciated by students and staff alike at OTI."

Boeing, Union Officials Seek To Avoid Strike

Seattle — UPI — Talks continued today between officials of the Boeing Co. and the International Association of Machinists in an effort to head off a threatened strike against the missile and aircraft manufacturer.

Union Leaders Wednesday pledged "every effort to obtain a settlement without strike action." Talks among 32 union leaders from Boeing installations throughout the country lasted 3 1/2 hours.

Strike Postponed

At Cape Canaveral, Fla., Al Duff, president of District Lodge No. 166 IAM, announced a strike of Boeing installations there had been postponed 24 hours.

"We will continue to postpone the strike on a 24-hour basis until leaders decide which way they are going to go," he said.

The strike had been set for today.

Boeing and union negotiators reached an agreement on a new contract April 15. The union negotiators recommended acceptance but the offer was defeated in a vote of the union membership last week.

New Aerosol Formula Said To Be Odorless

Racine, Wis. — UPI — The newest wrinkle in household insecticides won't be in the nose. Entomologists at the Johnson's Wax agricultural Experiment station here say they've found a new way to kill bugs quickly without leaving a typical insecticide odor in the air.

They said the secret lies in a new aerosol formula that eliminates much of the odor from the insecticide carrier. This means actual effective ingredients can be masked easily with a light fragrance.

I tried all the pastes and powders and pads. Same old trouble! Rocking and slipping made my mouth sore and made me irritable. Then I spoke to my dentist. He told me about CUSHION, the soft-flowing plastic that molds to the gums. Now I eat what I want—enjoy what I eat—and my gums feel so good. CUSHION stays soft—that's its secret—and that was my relief. Mildly medicated to heal gum soreness, pleasant minty flavor guards your breath. Ask your dentist for CUSHION. You must be satisfied or you get your money back. Long-lasting supply—only $1.49.

Hatfield Vice Chairman Of Western Governors

Phoenix — UPI — President Kennedy's administration today had some support from the 1963 Western Governors' conference.

But it was in a backhanded sort of way. And there was some implied criticism, too.

The governors, seven Republicans and five Democrats, wound up their three-day conference at nearby Scottsdale Wednesday by:

—Rejecting a move by Washington Gov. Albert Rosellini, a Democrat and chairman of the National Governors' conference, to gain support for Kennedy's youth conservation corps.

—Refusing to accept a rebate of 10 per cent of federal income taxes to states as a substitute for Kennedy's federal school aid proposals. This resolution came from Montana Gov. Tim Babcock, a Republican.

BLM Uses Tracer Element In Paint To Check Thefts

As a means of protecting federally managed timber against possible theft, the bureau of land management is now employing the aid of chemistry, according to Medford District Manager Donald J. Schofield.

In timber sales where the trees are individually selected for cutting by professional foresters, the trees are spotted with a special tree-marking paint. A mark is made on the bole of the tree, so the tree fallers can readily spot it, and also on the butt, near the ground. The lower mark remains on the stump after the tree is cut and serves to show that the tree that was cut was the one intended. To discourage unauthorized use of paint, the Medford district of the bureau of land management now adds a special chemical "tracer element" to all tree marking paint.

Blue paint is generally used to indicate individual trees that are to be cut. Orange paint is now used to mark trees that form the encircling boundary of a clear-cutting area in which the trees to be cut are not individually marked.

If it is suspected that trees have been illegally marked and cut, it is possible to chip paint from the stumps and have the paint analyzed. If no tracer element is revealed, paint other than that used by the BLM was employed and the theft is revealed, Schofield explained.

The tracer element used is inexpensive and the chemical analysis simple, fast and inexpensive. All of this adds up to better management and protection of the public's forests by the Bureau of Land Management, Schofield said.

Can Be Solved at Home

Although he gained support from Alaska Gov. William Egan, another Democrat, he got no help from Republicans. Gov. George E. Clyde of Utah, for example, said the problem of youth employment could "best be solved at home."

Another Republican governor, John A. Love of Colorado, said the solution to unemployment was "not in the expansion of government but in the stimulation of the nation's economy."

Babcock's resolution also was defeated by the resolutions committee but the Montana governor decided against making a floor fight out of it. He said he would make another try at the National Governors' conference in Miami Beach, Fla., this summer.

Charging that the federal government had "appropriated to itself the most lucrative sources of tax revenue," Babcock proposed that 10 per cent of the income tax paid by states be returned for use by the states for educational purposes.

A resolution by Egan containing an implied criticism of the administration's defense policy in Alaska also failed to pass the resolutions committee. It pointed to the "relatively few" fighter aircraft in Alaska and asked the administration to "review" its Alaska policy.

At the urging of California Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk, the governors adopted a resolution by Brown calling for "cooperative action" among the states to police subdivision sales.

Also adopted by the governors was a resolution asking the federal government not to limit the strength of the National Guard to 400,000 men. It was by Rosellini.
