Cornea Courage

Junketing Congressmen Said To Demonstrate 'Very Brave Eyeballs'

By DICK WEST
Washington - (UPI) - Along with their other attributes, most members of Congress have very brave eyeballs. This trait, "cornea courage" as it is called, is demonstrated when our lawmakers visit the trouble-spots of the world and look upon them without blinking.

For instance, if all of the congressmen who have looked upon the Berlin wall, and been photographed in the process, were stacked end to end, they would reach from here to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.
In fact, many of them have been reaching Guantanamo since the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo has in recent weeks been even more popular than Berlin as a testing place for cornea courage.
Members of Congress who visit the base can, unless hopelessly nearsighted, go to the perimeter of the cantonment and look directly upon Communist-held territory.

Last month, I had occasion to mention the Guantanamo adventures of Rep. Carl Elliott, an Alabama Democrat whose eyeballs are among the more fearless in either house of Congress.
"The Red soldiers glared at him," it said, and "he glared back." This started me to thinking that there ought to be a medal for cornea courage.

4-H Club News

Cud Chewers
The Central Point Cud Chewers 4-H club recently met to discuss plans for summer school and Spring Dairy show. A test on the parts of the cow was conducted.
Cathy Legler, Jack Leory and Jim Shepherd will give advancement program reports at the next meeting.
Refreshments were served by James and Christine Smith. A spelling contest was held during the recreation period.
Cathy Legler, Reporter.

was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. W. A. Townes, 913 Newtown st. Five club members and one visitor were present. The visitor, Mrs. Asplund, came to instruct the members on a shopping tour for fabrics.
The members had previously attended a fashion show sponsored by the Simplicity Pattern department, and learned many things about sewing and improving their appearances.

Another congressman, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D-N. Y.), returned from Guantanamo this week with a press release of a somewhat different sort.
Stratton made it plain that he would give Castro a hard look any time he saw him. However, he seemed to be glaring mainly in the direction of Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N. Y.).
He said the statements the senator has been making about Cuba indicated that Keating was getting his information "straight from the lecture platforms and the mimeograph machines."

Snappy Sewers
Judging of shirts was held at the meeting of the Snappy Sewers 4-H club Saturday.
Jacque Colley presided at the meeting and Debbie Thumler read the minutes and called roll.
Judy Perry, a visitor, became a new member. Plans for a picnic to be held when school is out were discussed.
Refreshments were served by Margrite Stevens and games were played.
Cathy Anhorn, Reporter.

Lake Creek Grange
Lake Creek Grange members held a potluck supper in observance of their 35th anniversary recently. Attending were two charter members, Nora Bradshaw and Claus Charley. The first master of the Grange was Floyd Charley, who now lives at Central Point.
Four new members were obligated by Bob Gilkey. They were Linda Armitage, Jerilyn Hansen, John and Lorraine Benson.
Nat Etzel showed pictures of communist countries that he visited with the FFA boys. He and his wife chaperoned 18 boys on the trip.
Mr. Gilkey gave a legislative report on state and federal level. Cecil Kee, fire insurance agent, compared the rates of Grange insurance with other companies.
A dance will be held at the hall on May 11.
The building committee stated that the completion of the roof depends on the clearing of the weather.
Master Wayne Marshall has been attending the Grange visitation meetings.
Next Grange meeting will be held on May 10 at 8:30 p.m.

Sugar Cookies
The Sugar Cookies 4-H club met April 16 at the home of the club leader, Mrs. Long. There were 10 members present and reports of activities were made.
The members were told that the elderly people liked the favors taken to them as gifts.
A demonstration was given by Billy Head, who made raisin oatmeal cookies. The next meeting will be a Mothers' tea on May 21.

Academic Honors Banquet To Be Held Tuesday

Twenty-nine high school students in Medford have been named to receive recognition for scholastic achievement at the third annual Medford Scholastic Recognition banquet, April 30, according to Dr. Bill Blackstone, chairman of the event. It will start at 6:30 p.m.
Picked for academic achievement, placing them in the top of this year's graduating classes, the students will be guests at a banquet in their honor at the Rogue Valley Country club. Speaker for the evening will be Len Casanova, head football coach at the University of Oregon.
Students named for recognition this year are: Donald Anderson, James Arthur, Carl Farmer, Martha Graham, Howard Haugen, Garner Hauert, Sue House, Judy Hueners, Sue Jahn, Todd Jones, Sharon Koblack, Pamela Miller, Georgia Mitchell, Susan Myers, Heather Rode, Kay Ruck, Larry Sanders, Sharon Smet, Vicki Toenniges, Leslie Van Gordon, David Warren, Michael Whithan, Doris Young, all Medford High school; Mary Ann Carnegie, Marylee Lowry, Kathleen Hout, Laura Batzer, Jerry Vakoc and Michael Stinson, St. Mary's High school.
The banquet is sponsored by several Medford service clubs. The public is invited to attend the affair and tickets may be purchased at Drew's, Mann's Barker's, Insurance Mart or at the banquet.

Lake Area Parking To Be Controlled
The county court has passed resolutions to control parking on the Willow Creek lake entrance road.
The entrance road from the new bridge to the resort will be posted against roadside parking, County Commissioner Don Faber said.
"Such parking is hazardous to the people towing in boats on trailers," the county commissioner said.
All future proposed improvement of the Willow Creek lake area will be referred to the Jackson county parks and recreation commission, the court agreed.

Family Council

Editors Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a summary editor, and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors. (Copyright 1963 Genstat Features Corp.)

Dean R. - They're so scared to say No, they make it hard for other parents.
Victor I. - Look, kids will do what they want anyway, so what good is a No?

Dean R. - We'd get somewhere with our teen-age sons if the I's didn't spoil things. Our restrictions are always challenged. We hear, "Jimmy I. can get home any hour he wishes," or, "Jimmy I. can smoke, drink, drive his Dad's car, etc." This makes us look like tyrants when we're merely conscientious parents trying to do our job - namely guide and protect our youngsters. It's easy to say yes to kids. But it's often unfair and dangerous.

Victor I. - As Jimmy's parents, all we can do is look on and hope for the best. He does what his friends do. He doesn't ask us, and telling him is of no use. Even the teachers can't change those kids. They made a No Smoking rule. So they found that pupils smoked in the washrooms. Now there's a smoking lounge next to the lunchroom. You get a few years in which to bring up your kid. By the teens they're out of your hands, for good or bad.

The Council: A teen-ager like Jimmy may be just as "abandoned and neglected" as the homeless orphaned child. Just having a roof over his head, food, clothes, and spending-money isn't adequate "care" for a boy at the stage of life where his physical strength is tops, but his judgment and perspective are faltering. He needs brakes, guidance, and assured steering from his home - on a 24-hour-a-day basis. Victor I. admits to having thrown in the sponge and abdicated, Dean R. and other parents who struggle to set standards have the job of stripping bare what's behind the "fun" Jimmy seems to be having. Within himself, Jimmy is lost and floundering. We counsel Dean not to lose heart. Going against the stream takes courage, but he'll find other parents and teen-agers who recognize, in time, that the stream often becomes a one-way rapid to heartbreak. These stand pat on one platform: Adult pleasures and privileges are for adults. The teen years are for becoming adults.
