

Two Hospitalized, Two Treated After Sunday Accidents

Betty Ruth Deckard, 40, of 904 Summit st., Medford, was reported in fair condition today at Rogue Valley hospital while being treated for severe head injuries and a broken collar bone received when her motor scooter turned over on the South Pacific highway near Talent.

Melvin Morgan, 540 Sunrise st., Ashland, was reported in good condition this morning at Ashland Community hospital after a slide along the pavement on the upper Applegate rd. near McKee bridge. He is being treated for cuts and bruises.

State police also reported two minor accidents occurred on Jackson county highways Sunday.

Cars driven by Leslie Albert Merrill, 44, Eagle Point, and by Thomas Graydon Dunphy, 67, route 1, box 614, Eagle Point, collided Sunday on the Crater Lake highway at Antelope rd.

Cars driven by Powell Clayton McKinney, 60, Hill, Calif., and by Emanuel Adam Bullinger, 49, Etna, Calif., collided on the South Pacific highway near Bellview, state police reported.

McKinney was attempting a left turn into a driveway as the Bullinger car passed, officers explained.

Don Leslie Jackson, 22, of 331 South Ivy st., Medford, and Allen Gene Schortgen, 21, same address, were treated at Sacred Heart hospital for minor injuries when their car failed to make the curve at Bybee corner on the Medford-Jacksonville highway Sunday, police reported.

Pinworms

Until a few years ago, when a new anti-worm drug was discovered, many mothers used to tell me that several of their children had pinworms, and no doctor had been able to get rid of them. Then a new worm medicine was discovered, and evidently it was very effective, because my mail in regard to worms promptly became practically non-existent. Now, for some curious reason, "worm letters" are coming in again.

Obviously, the most important factor in getting rid of these tiny white worms is a drug that will quickly kill the adult female, which lays the eggs that give rise to a new crop of worms. Fortunately, the good drug that has now been found tends quickly to clean up the infestation in almost all of the children treated.

But after using the drug, the children's mother should know enough about the life cycle of the worms and their eggs so that she will not permit the members of her family to get re-infested with a new crop of worms.

Sometimes, a child can bring some of the tiny worms home from school, where about half of the children carry them; perhaps most of these children have no symptoms, and hence the mothers do not know that worms are present and should be attended to.

Stick to Skin
The most common symptom is itching of the crotch at night, when the worms come out of the bowel to lay their eggs. The itching may keep the child from sleeping well, and this may make him nervous and irritable. After the eggs are laid, they stick to the skin and, within hours, produce hew worms.

As the child scratches, he nearly always gets eggs and perhaps tiny worms under his finger nails, and from these they get into his food and his mouth, and eventually reach his bowel.

The eggs are carried with dust onto his clothes, onto the hair of his dog and into the air of the house. And from the air, the eggs can get into the food and into the bodies of all the people living in the house.

In homes of children with pinworms, an expert can find the tiny eggs in almost every bit of dust that he examines with his microscope. Obviously, if the people in the house hope to stay free of pinworms, there must be frequent cleaning of dusty surfaces with a damp rag.

Prevents Spreading
It is important for all the members of the family to be treated at the same time. It is a good idea to have the infected child sleep at night in tight cotton panties, which must be washed every day; this will prevent the eggs from being spread.

The eggs, when swallowed, mature in the bowel in 14 days; then, in from four to six weeks, new worms are laying more eggs and the cycle continues.

The new drug, called pyriminium pamoate, works much better than the old "genital violet" did. The drug is not very poisonous, because a child who accidentally swallowed 20 tablets of it did not become seriously ill. The product comes as a liquid "suspension," which tastes of strawberries and is acceptable to most children. It also comes in tablet form.

Everyone in a home should take a dose on the same day. Physicians have reported 100 per cent of cures. One dose is given, varying in size with the body weight.

Strike Against Boeing Appears To Be Imminent

Seattle -UPI- A strike of 40,000 workers appeared imminent today in the long, drawn-out labor dispute between the International Association of Machinists and the Boeing Co., makers of the Minuteman missile.

The only question remaining appeared to be when the strike will come.

That may be settled at meetings of 600 shop stewards and IAM local leaders which the union has scheduled across the nation for 6 p.m. (PDT) today. Would Idle Thousands

If the strike date is set it would mean that 26,000 production workers at Boeing plants in the Seattle-Renton, Wash., area and 14,000 more at Wichita, Kan., and Minuteman installations at 12 Air Force bases across the nation would be poised to leave their jobs.

Twice before the union has threatened to strike in the dispute.

A strike was averted Jan. 25 when President Kennedy, acting in what he said was the interest of national defense, invoked the Taft-Hartley Law and obtained an 80-day cooling off injunction.

Again Called Off
A strike was set again for April 16, the day after the injunction expired, but it was called off when the company made a new contract offer.

That offer was rejected by 877 votes in a nationwide election earlier this month.

The only alternatives to a strike this time would be a new contract offer from the company, resubmission of the last offer to the union membership, or further federal intervention.

None of these moves appeared to be forthcoming.

This year the average U.S. consumer will use only 19 per cent of his earnings to buy food, a record low.

New Constitution Nears Crucial Test In Oregon House

Editor's note: The Oregon House will act in a few days on what many feel will be the most important success - or failure - of the session: A proposed new state constitution. This is the first of a series.

By ANN H. PEARSON
Salem -UPI- A proposed new constitution for Oregon is about to meet its most crucial test to date: Action by the Oregon House.

It is the farthest Oregon has come toward modernizing a basic document that was hurriedly drafted in one month 108 years ago - two years before Oregon became a state.

Since 1857, the present constitution has been amended 111 times. Its length has grown to 21,982 words. Many of its provisions today are conflicting, ambiguous and archaic. Others have stood the test of time.

After the second World War pressures grew to bring the document up to date to meet the needs of a modern state and provide a framework for the future, not the past.

Study Authorized
The agitation for constitutional reform by individuals, groups and political leaders led the legislature in 1953 to authorize a study.

In 1955, the study group recommended a convention and offered a suggested draft. The 1955 Legislature rejected a convention, partly because of the $1 million cost.

In 1959, the legislature recommended an alternative way of revising the constitution: In a single package that would require two-thirds approval of each house plus voter approval. The next year, voters approved this idea 358,367 to 289,895.

Commission Created
The 1961 Legislature created the Oregon Constitutional Revision Commission to write a new constitution. The new draft was written over the past two years by a commission of distinguished members, and submitted to the present legislature.

Committees of the House and Senate, during the past three months, have overhauled it section by section, making some changes.

Now, to advance to the people it needs a two-thirds vote of each house.

The new constitution contains less than half the words of the present one. It contains 14 articles: Bill of rights, suffrage and elections, initiative and referendum, legislature, executive, judiciary, secretary of state, local government, public officers, taxation and finance, governmental activities, and amendment and revision. The last two articles are traditional from the old to the new, and transfer many provisions of the present constitution into the laws.

The proposed new document does four main things: -It gets rid altogether of obsolete provisions such as those on dueling.

-It transfers from the constitution to the statutes many governmental details, as well as provisions such as liquor by the drink.

-It keeps rights and provisions that have stood the test of time, though often modernizing the language.

-It makes a substantive change in some rights and duties and in the basic framework of state government. It is the last that has stirred the most feeling.

JELOUS EX-SUITOR

Santadi, Italy -UPI- When Francesco Corressu and his bride Cornelia were married in this Sicilian town Saturday, no one stood up in church to object to the match. But someone set off a dynamite charge in the house where they spent their wedding night. No one was hurt seriously. Police said they were looking for one of Cornelia's ex-suitors.

Youthful Marriage Bill Clears House

Salem -UPI- A bill to require circuit judge approval to the marriage of a girl under 17 and boy under 19 passed the House Saturday.

It went to the Senate. The House also sent the Senate a bill to let minors play billiards.

Another House bill sent to the Senate would transfer a number of administrative agencies from the State Land Board to other agencies.

The Land Board still would make policy decisions.
