Thursdays Wrestling Card Filled

The professional wrestling card at the Medford armory was completed Saturday with the signing of Pretty Pat Peterson, the Boston dandy, who will meet Ricky Hunter, a physical culture addict who formerly held the Mr. Minnesota title.

Patterson, who likes to sew and makes his own capes and robes which he wears into the ring, is often the butt of jokes by other wrestlers as a result, but once he gets into the ring he becomes a terror.

Hunter, a neophyte in the grappling business, is a speed merchant who does a lot of spectacular tumbling during his matches.

The main event will see Rocky Columbo risk his Pacific coast junior heavyweight championship against Mard Dog Yachon, a big burly French Algerian making his first start in southern Oregon.

Soldat Gorky, a veteran who engaged in some rough matches here a few years ago, returns to take on newcomer Gil "Hillo" Ane in the semi-windup.

Reserved seat tickets are available at Lampor's sporting goods store in Medford.

Klamath Lake Mullet Running

Portland-The Klamath lake mullet (Catostomus luxuratus), a particular species of sucker native to the Klamath basin, are beginning to run and providing great sport to fishermen.

And the most popular method of taking these large fish is with snagging gear, the only game fish in Oregon which may be taken legally by the snagging method.

Art Gerlach, district fishery biologist at Klamath Falls, reports that schools of mullet are concentrating around shore line springs and are beginning to push into Klamath lake tributary streams on their spawning runs.

The Klamath mullet may be taken the year around at any size and in any numbers. The fish seldom bite on hook and line though an occasional fish may be hooked on small baits. Because of their unsocial attitude toward hook and line angling, these fish may be taken by spear, gaff, or snag hook.

The most popular fishing time is during the spring when the fish school and congregate near the shore line and in the rivers on their spawning runs. Flesh is white and firm and is excellent smoking, the favorite method of preparation by most anglers. During the early days, the Klamath lake mullet was a major source of food for the Klamath Indian tribes.

The fish is large, some going to 15 and 20 pounds. Most of the mature fish will run anywhere from 5 to 10 pounds in weight. Its color is dark greenish to black on the back and sides, whitish on the belly. Its mouth is round and sucker-like.

Tornadoes Oppose KF On Tuesday

Four of the five Southern Oregon conference high schools have baseball games billed on Tuesday but only two of the schools will be involved in league contention.

Medford and Klamath Falls battle in a doubleheader set for 2:30 p.m. on the Medford field. Jayvee teams clash at Klamath Falls.

Ashland is to entertain Yreka, Calif., in a single contest and Crater is to travel to Crescent City, Calif., for a doublebill with Del Norte.

The Medford school policy is against doubleheaders on school days, but a Klamath Falls travel problem is involved in Tuesday's case.

Three track meets are on the Tuesday sports agenda also. They are St. Mary's at Ashland, Rogue River at Eagle Point and McLoughlin ninth grade at Hedrick.

Eagle Point high was unable to make it to Phoenix on Friday for a meet because of transportation difficulties.

WHEELING

By Carl Sander

Retreads are respectable nowadays. Gone are the days of World War II when a tire—any tire—was worth its weight in gold, regardless of condition. This was the age when cheap, junky recaps were the thing, but that couldn't be helped. There simply wasn't enough rubber around and the techniques of recapping and re-treading were in their infancy. Intelligent tire maintenance pays off, and so does judicious recapping — if we're willing to take stock in the practices of the large trucking firms. As a general rule, they put on their first recap after 60,000 miles, and their second recap 40,000 miles after that. They don't wait until there's only a rag left before they bring a tire in for recapping.

In a matter of minutes the expert attendants at CARL'S EASTSIDE SHELL can put recaps or new tires on your car. Knowing that you and your family are safely riding on dependable tires is certainly worth the small price you pay for tires. Drive to 700 E. MAIN or call 772-9017 for FREE pickup and delivery. Let CARL keep your car safe in every respect.

PSK Assistant Claims Horse

Louisville, Ky. - (UPI) - Dr. E. Dean Anderson, assistant to the President of Portland State College, Portland, went to the races Friday and took home a horse.

Dr. Anderson won a husky bay offspring of Citation by naming it in the annual Kentucky Club Derby day contest. The winning name for the 2-year-old thoroughbred was Title Talk.

This marked the second time that a college professor has won the contest. Dr. David Driver of Henderson State Teachers college in Arkadelphia, Ark., won a racehorse in 1956.

Dr. Anderson, making his first visit to a major racetrack today, claimed his horse in the winner's circle at Churchill Downs.
