

For such special occasions as Mothers' day, Dr. and Mrs. Ray L. Casterline, their seven sons and daughters and Dr. Casterline's mother gather around the dining table in the family home, 45 South Modoc avenue. The family activities are so many and varied that it is not often all are together. As pictured here they are Dr. Casterline, John (at left), 15; Jeff, 13; Joyce, 10; Jason, 2½; Janet, 5; Mrs. Casterline, Julie, 11; Mrs. Margaret Casterline, who lives at Rogue Valley Manor, and James, 17.

The Casterlines always have family pets, and right now four small kittens receive much attention. Little Jason loves to load the kittens in his own wagon and haul them about the recreation room.

For entertaining last week, Mrs. Casterline used yellow chrysanthemums and purple statice for table and sideboard arrangements. Joyce is a pupil at Hoover school.

In addition to her homemaking duties, Mrs. Casterline works in several civic and social groups of Medford. When she finds a few leisure moments, one of her chief pleasures is reading. Mrs. Casterline considers her work as superintendent of Westminster Presbyterian Church school the most important of her activities outside her home and family.

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE

MEDFORD, OREGON, SUNDAY, MAY 12, 1963

Mother of Seven

When asked what family chores took up the most of her time, Mrs. Casterline promptly answered "cooking and chauffeuring." With children in nursery school, the grades, junior and senior high school, taking music and dancing lessons and playing in bands, going to church, to Scout and other meetings, the big station wagon is in constant use. It is not unusual for this busy woman to prepare food for three or four functions outside the home in one week in addition to the family meals.

Five-year-old Janet Casterline also loves to cuddle the new kittens. Janet attends nursery school at Westminster Presbyterian church.

The Casterline boys help their mother with the garden work while the girls are a lot of help in the kitchen. Last week Joyce and Julie helped prepare strawberry dessert to be served when the family posed for Photographer Robert Vroman.
