WORK SMARTER — NOT HARDER

By BERNICE STRAWN

Are you running your housework or is it running you?

In the book, "How to Manage Yourself," written for business executives, the author insists that "too many managers fail to manage themselves. As a result, their business limps along."

Couldn't this apply to home managers too? The book urges all business managers to have a schedule. If it's good for business, how about your business of running a home?

Homemakers attending our OSU Extension workshops can vouch that a schedule is practical because they've tried it. They find they accomplish more, eliminate hurry, worry and fatigue, and save time.

Your electric frypan is ideal for cooking rhubarb sauce. Add sugar and water, set the dial just a mite below boiling temperature. Rhubarb will cook nicely, every piece will remain whole. It's the rolling boil that makes it mushy.

Spills in the bathroom such as perfume, hair dye, permanent wave lotion or drugs may stain floors and other surfaces. Put a protective wax coating on shelves, floors and other surfaces. Spills will be easier to wipe up.

Electric blankets are due for a summer vacation. Wash them before storing to keep them fresh and to discourage moths.

Drycleaning is not recommended because of possible damage to insulation around the wires. Pre-treat any spots before washing the blanket. Fill washer with lukewarm water, add a mild soap. Let blanket soak for ten minutes, then agitate for one minute, spin for just two minutes. Next fill washer with lukewarm rinse water agitate again for one minute and spin two minutes.

To dry, hang blanket lengthwise over a clothes line. Change position frequently so it will dry evenly. Dry in the shade, not the sun.

You can dry it in the dryer if you're careful. Protect the plug with tape or fasten a cotton bag over it. Pre-heat the dryer for five minutes, then add blanket, and several bath towels to serve as a buffer. Tumble for 15 minutes, then finish drying as described before, on the clothes line.
