Hostesses are to be Mesdames B. E. Hayden, G. F. Schneider, P. G. Weidner, O. E. Meyers and G. W. Louthan.

Oriental Decor Marks Junior-Senior Dance

Ashland-Senior students at Ashland high school were feted in Oriental splendor at the annual Junior-Senior Prom given May 11 in Britt ballroom by their junior class hosts.

Highlight of the occasion was crowning of the 1963 queen and her royal court of four princesses. Wearing the sparkling tiara was Miss Karen Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wood, 1180 Oak street. Her attendants were Miss Kay Moore, Miss Carol Bjork, Miss Linda Weber and Miss Jane Hennick. An arm bouquet of red carnations was presented to the blonde queen after her coronation as she and her escort, Gene Cronin of Medford, led her court to the dance floor.

Background for the ceremony was a Chinese garden complete with pool, trees, gold fish and floating blossoms. Replica of a pagoda, a rustic bridge and soft lights gave realistic setting for the spectacular event.

Arriving guests were greeted by sophomore girls in scarlet Mandarin coats who showed them to their tables where fans and chopsticks were favors and Ming trees were centerpiece. An elaborate large colored lantern hung from the ballroom canopied ceiling and smaller lanterns illuminated the table area. Fountains, pink flamingos and exotic plants bordered the entrance bridge.

Music for the Prom was furnished by the New Jazz septet under the direction of Raoul Maddox. Miss Connie Felger, social chairman of the junior class was chairman of the decorating committee. Terry Skibby, junior class president, served as master of ceremonies for the coronation. Faculty members and parents of class officers and the royal court were guests of honor.

Miss Karen Wood knelt on a velvet cushion to receive her crown and title as queen of the 1963 Junior-Senior Prom of Ashland High school. Miss Wood was crowned by Terry Skibby, president of the Junior class, and her escort was Gene Cronin, Medford.

by Mann's Department store, with Mrs. Kathleen Esp as commentator. This has been arranged by Mrs. Roberta Daniels.

Mrs. Helen Stevens is in charge of decorations, Mrs. Eunice Carter is chairman of a committee which will serve refreshments.

Washington PTA Installs New Officers

Mrs. Fred Sears was installed president of the Washington School Parent Teacher association when the unit held its last meeting of the season recently.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Rollie Pean, vice president; Mrs. Derald Wooten, secretary; and Mrs. Sanford Bishop, treasurer.

Mrs. Alva Bradford, past president, conducted the installation. Guest speaker, John Smock, was introduced by Mrs. Merle Perkins, program chairman. Mr. Smock, a teacher at the Medford High school, spent last year in Australia as a Fulbright exchange teacher. Mr. Smock explained some of the academic differences in their educational system as compared to Medford's. It was explained that the students must pass a final examination in their senior year if they wish to attend the university. He noted that the senior year is called "cram year" and is in preparation for examinations in all subjects, all of which must be passed to enable the student to enroll in a university. Schools in session all year with ten day holidays between each of the three semesters.

Mr. Smock mentioned that discipline begins at home and that the students are very well mannered in school, but he illustrated that the students are not without a sense of humor by relating his initial reception by them his first day of teaching.

At the close of his talk Mr. Smock answered questions from the audience.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Washington grade school band under the direction of Albert Huntmann. Mrs. Janet Smith's Cub pack 10 presented colors.

Refreshments were served before the meeting.
