Regional Roundup

Bertha Hanscom, our Phoenix correspondent, has been staying close to her phone lately waiting for a call that could bring her the story of the year.

She answered the phone the other day and heard a young voice ask if she could put a story in the paper for him. She answered that of course she could and what was it that he wished her to put in. The voice said that he wasn't quite ready yet, explaining that he had wanted to call up first and find out if Bertha would put in the story. Our correspondent dutifully assured the young man that she certainly would, but getting a little curious she asked if he couldn't give her a little hint of what the story was all about.

"Well," the voice explained. "We have a balloon (the kind given away at a local supermarket) and we have a parachute which is tied to the balloon where the string is, and on the bottom of the parachute we have a big match box, and we are going to put a frog in the match box and send the balloon up in the sky. And when the balloon breaks, the parachute will open and the frog will land safely on the ground. But we aren't quite ready yet; we haven't got the frog."

Bertha learned that there were three of them, 8, 9 and 10 years old and that the balloon belonged to a little sister. "I'm still keeping quite close to the telephone," Bertha says, "but now I'm beginning to wonder if little sister didn't approve and took her balloon back."

Wildflowers Along the Klamath

From Hazel Davis, our Happy Camp and Klamath river area correspondent, comes the following report:

"It is again spring, and the beauty of the lupine, red bud, poppy, Indian paint brush, and the new leaves on trees along the river is a beautiful sight to behold. Adding to the beauty of the wildflowers are some very nice private flora gardens along the river road. Especially eye catching is a tulip patch at Hamburg which has nearly every color of tulip in existence. This garden is attractive all during the blooming season, as some type of flower is in bloom no matter what the season.

"Another roadside garden farther up river is that of Mrs. Tony DeAvilla that is always attractive. A new greenhouse has been added to the vegetable garden area and this has been full of blooms since the glass house was built last fall. This is plainly visible from the road, but it is hard to view from the road since it is near a turn. So motorists be careful!

"Each year we have also noticed the flower garden of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krupp near Beaver creek, with a beautiful variety of blossoms all during the summer. Also near here and across the highway, the spacious front yard of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Fisher is always attractive. This year we noticed the many spring bulbs that had been planted amid natural rocks as they bloomed near the highway."

Progress Reported In Study Of Gold Hill Subdivision

Gold Hill—Further study of a proposed property and housing development project was given by Mayor Richard Strauss and members of the Gold Hill city council at a special session held May 10.

City officials met with City Attorney Robert Grant, Medford, to consider a rough draft of an agreement between the city of Gold Hill and Treco corporation, which was represented at the meeting by Mrs. Virginia Plummer and J. Carol Rodgers.

The proposed development is to be known as the Rio Vista Subdivision, and homes will be single family construction, it was stated.

City owned land involved in the agreement concerns property in the Water Park addition and what is known locally as the Chavner Tract. Mayor Strauss and city council members have spent many hours giving thorough study to this proposed project.

As a result of the May 10 meeting, it was resolved by the council that attorney Grant be authorized to draft the final agreement for option of sale of all lots included in the plot submitted by Treco Inc. The agreement will designate requirements and certain easements, it was stated.

Friday Is Jewett Visitation Day

Central Point — Visitation day for first graders who will enter Jewett elementary school next September will be held at 1 p.m. Friday.

Refreshments will be served to next year's first graders and their parents in the cafeteria.

Following talks by Miss Elizabeth McCallard, county school nurse, and William Brewster, principal, guests have been invited to visit each of the seven first grade classrooms.

'Magic Moments' Is Theme Of Prospect Junior-Senior Banquet

Prospect—"Magic Moments of 1963" was the theme of the Prospect High school annual junior-senior banquet, which was held recently in the banquet room at Kim's of Medford.

Decorations for the evening consisted of a wishing well and staircase with each senior's name on a step. Miniature wishing wells were used as nut cups. Red satin roses made by Mrs. Archie McKillop were used as center pieces and individual souvenirs.

The program included a resume of the activities of the class of 1963 by Fran Artimire and speeches by Superintendent Roscoe Larson, and teachers Gerald Gardner, John Higginson and Vernon Haddeland.

Musical numbers were presented by Miss Jean Cunningham, Jill Hedgepeth and Gardner.

Linda Pressley read the senior class will, followed by John Scott reading the junior class prophecy.

Three juniors were presented with awards for their work during the year. Scott, Beth Biden and Cleve Shafer.

Highlight of the evening was the crowning of the queen of the banquet, Laura Bean.

The final event of the program was the presentation of a red rose to each graduating senior. About 90 persons attended the event. Among the visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Drake of Salem. Drake taught at Prospect for three years before leaving to teach at Turner, near Salem, during the current school year.

GRADUATING STAIRCASE—Featured at the annual Prospect High school junior-senior banquet was this staircase, with the name of each of the 11 graduating students imprinted on the steps.
