

100 People Attend Rogue Jersey Show

Just under 100 4-H members from Jackson and Josephine counties turned out for the Spring Dairy Show sponsored by the Rogue Jersey breeders Saturday at the fairgrounds in Medford, according to Jerry Brog, Jackson County Extension Agent.

Dave Strickland, Rogue River, survived the stiff competition within his age group and went on to win the coveted trophy as champion showman. Strickland was runner-up for this award last year.

High scorer in the judging contest was Don Trickey, Rogue River, with 293 of a possible 300 points. Second place went to Connie Burrill, Applegate, with a tie for third between Mary Ann Cantrall and Dawn Merickel of Ruch.

The top dairy demonstration was given by a team of Josephine county 4-H'ers: Sharon Cherry and Cheryl Merkel, entitled "The Dairy Beauty Parlor." Ila Moore and Andy Northrup of Eagle Point placed second with a demonstration on controlling heel flies.

Judge for the one day show was Mr. John Mayfield, vocational agriculture instructor at Grants Pass.

Class placings are: Judging Contest Results: 1—Don Trickey, Rogue River; 2—Connie Burrill, Applegate; 3—Dawn Merickel, Ruch; and Mary Ann Cantrall, Ruch; 4—Cheryl Swain, Antelope; 5—Carol Gillette, Grants Pass; 6—Sandy Merickel, Ruch; 7—Boyd Travis, Ruch; 8—Peppi Clark, Griffin Creek; 9—Donna Harmon, Grants Pass.

Court Reverses Curry Decision

Salem — The Oregon Supreme Court Wednesday reversed a decision from Curry county involving property condemned for Highway 101.

The State Highway Commission appealed a ruling that Mitchell and Julia Anderson be awarded $29,807 and attorneys fees for the property. The property is a sand dune area and the commission said the award was too high.

The high court sent the case back to the lower court to determine value of the land on the basis of true market value.

Western Oregon Forest Closures Effective Friday

By ZAN STARK

Salem — The closed fire season begins Friday in all of Western Oregon, and in most of Eastern Oregon, as a prelude to what could become one of the most disastrous forest fire years in the state's history.

The closed season began Tuesday in the Klamath fire district, and in parts of the Fremont and Rogue National Forests. In Eastern Oregon the only areas not included in the fire season declaration were Baker, Umatilla and Willows counties and the Vale-Burns grazing district in Malheur and Harney counties.

Throughout the rest of Oregon burning permits will be required, and extreme caution will be exercised in an effort to avoid disaster.

State Forester Dwight Phipps said more than $8 million is available this season for forest protection.

About 15.7 million acres of forest land are administered by the State Forestry Department and cooperating forest protection associations, Phipps said.

Phipps explained nearly $4 million has been currently budgeted, $1.6 million in emergency firefighting funds, and $2.5 million is expected to be spent by private forest landowners for fire hazard reduction.

Two problems threaten to add to the fire danger this year—blowdown from the Columbus Day storm, and below-normal snow-pack in the mountains. There will be more fuel for fires, and the ground will dry faster so that undergrowth will become more flammable.

Forest fire control, under the direction of the state forester, is accomplished through 14 forest protection districts. Six are administered directly by the State Forestry Department, and eight have been organized by private landowners, and operate under contract with the state forester.
