

This Week's Plan for Home Builders

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Human nature being likely to stay the same, a house will probably be judged as much for its charm as for its practicability. This home has a generous measure of both qualities.

The long, low exterior of this house has been treated with rich, rugged materials to achieve a rustic ranch character. Used brick completely frames the family room windows and is also used in the chimney and the two highly appealing planters on each side of the front bedroom. Note the dramatic effect achieved by extending the steep gable roof over these planters.

Corbels are located under the garage gable which projects past the wall of the garage. This, together with the tapered barge rafter and distinctive garage door design, enhances the overall appearance of this charming home.

Protected Entry

The protected entry leads directly to the living and family rooms and the short bedroom hall.

Today's bath requires less care, offers more comfort and beauty. This family bath has a twin lavatory which is separated from the water closet by a partial wall with obscure glass above. There is both a shower and a tub with plumbing in one wall to serve each. A second bath is off the service.

High windows in two of the bedrooms provide more wall space for furniture arrangement and give privacy. A wide wardrobe opens to each bedroom and the front bedroom has the luxury of an extra closet.

Climate Partition

By eliminating the partition between the living and dining rooms, you gain a much larger looking area than you would usually expect in a house of this size. Sliding glass doors open from the living room to the partially roofed patio.

As only cabinets and an eating bar are used to separate the family room from the kitchen, one area "lends" space to another and proves that careful planning works wonders in the face of space limits.

An offset in the oversized garage—21' x 21' outside dimensions—has room for a furnace and water heater with enough space remaining for a good sized workshop. The garage door has been so located to provide a storage area on the outside garage wall.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased at a cost of $7.50 for the first set and $5 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until Sept. 12. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. The following home plan books are also available: Hallmark Homes $1; Award Homes, $1; Town and Country Homes, $1; Homes for Living, $1; Homes of Distinction, $1; Ranch and Modern Homes, $2. All books, a $7 value, only $5. Send all orders for either plans or books to: Hiawatha Estes, post office box 404-T, Northridge, Calif.

IRANIAN HOMELESS—An old woman sits amidst ruins of her village in the southern province of Khuzistan in Iran after rain storms and floods destroyed villages and crops. The inundation left more than 30 persons dead and thousands homeless. (UP).

Potluck Dinner Is Planned by Bureau

A potluck dinner will be held in the Central Point Grange hall at 7 p.m. Friday, May 24, sponsored by the Jackson County Farm Bureau.

Coffee, milk and ice cream will be furnished, and those attending should take table service for guests.

In addition to a speaker from the state office, Dairy Princess candidates will each give a brief talk and other entertainment will be provided.

Members of the Josephine County Farm Bureau have been invited as well as families of Dairy Princess contest entrants.

Grange News

Phoenix Grange

The public is invited to view slides of the Columbus Day storm at Phoenix Grange at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 28, during the literary program. The pictures will be shown preceding the regular meeting for the benefit of nonmembers.

Several guests were present at the last meeting. Those escorted to the master's station were State Overseer Roscoe Roberts, and E. Ramsay, master of Upper Applegate Grange.

Roberts conferred the first and second degree work on Mr. and Mrs. William Krugel, also from Upper Applegate.

Elected to become members of Phoenix Grange are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Froom, James L. Jeroue and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Owens.

Mervin Hixson reported that the state agriculture chairman was urging more young people to join the Grange, and to consider a nursery for those with young children.

Charles Johnson said an estimate of about 20 per cent of the Bartlett pear crop is expected this year due to weather damage. Other types of pears have not suffered so greatly.

Roberts reported on insurance including all-risk coverage and benefit.

Mother's Day was the theme of the literary program. There were readings by Mrs. Charles Johnson and Bobby Whiteside and a tableau by Lecturer Mrs. Lester Carr and Mrs. Christine Dinsmore.

KENNEDY'S JANUARY FORECASTS—'TRUE OR FALSE'?

It was five months ago today that President Kennedy submitted his 1963 Economic Report to Congress in which he made specific assumptions and forecasts of the deepest bread-and-butter concern to all of us. How "true or false" are his assumptions and forecasts shaping up?

In view of the fact that, by this date last year, every crystal ball the White House economists had used to prepare 1962's Economic Report had been shattered to bits and the stock market was on the eve of its historic crash, this is more than a superficial question. Here, therefore, is a May 21 dissection of the five basic points in Kennedy's Jan. 21 blueprint.

(1) "I do not expect a fifth postwar recession to interrupt our progress in 1963 . . ."

Right.

We are far from being in a recession. On the contrary, we are heading into the 28th month of the 1961-63 expansion on a quickening upbeat. The whole economy has taken on new life, records are being toppled on every side.

(2) "Prospects, taking into account the proposed tax reduction, lead to the projection of a gross national product for 1963 of $578 billion . . ."

Way understated.

Our total output of goods and services in 1963 is likely to be at least $7 billion above Kennedy's January estimate—at least. It could be that in the final quarter of this year, GNP in our country will be running well above $590 billion, approaching the $600 billion landmark. Every type of spending is now rising at a rate faster than the White House projected in January. This is happening without "taking into account the proposed tax reduction."

(3) "I am proposing a major reduction in individual income tax rates . . . beginning July 1 . . ."

Not a chance for July 1.

The odds are this session of Congress will pass a bill giving substantial tax reductions to individuals and corporations, but not by July 1, and not with an effective date of July 1. Nor will the bill Congress passes be the one the President submitted. Kennedy's January assumption for tax cuts—both in form and timing—is in the ashcan.

(4) "Prices have been essentially stable for five years. This has broken the inflationary psychology . . . The outlook for stable prices is excellent . . ."

So far, okay.

As of this date, inflation is in check. The modest increase in steel prices is not kicking off another inflation spiral. Rather, this price hike was a healthy thing and is contributing to the strength in our economy. As in most years since World War II, our cost of living—measured by the consumer price index—will climb in a new peak in 1936, but the rate of rise will be within the range of reasonable stability. Inflation could become a danger again if our economy goes into a major boom in 1964, but it is not a danger now.

(5) "Price stability has extra importance today because of our need to eliminate the continuing deficit in the international balance of payments . . . We cannot relax our efforts to reduce the payments deficit still further . . ."

Disappointing slow progress here.

The deficit in our balance of payments this year—the difference between what we earn abroad and spend abroad—will probably be larger than 1962's $2 billion. The outflow of gold from the U.S. well may be greater than in 1962.

We are trying to control this relentless threat to our dollar's value, but Kennedy's January projections will not be realized.

Obviously, on some basic points, Kennedy was too pessimistic in January and on others too optimistic, but the happy point is that, overall, he erred on the side of caution, not optimism. If crystal balls are made to be broken, it's far more pleasant to be breaking them the way we are in 1963 than the way we did in 1962.

Driver of Armored Car, Money Missing

Vancouver, B.C. —(UPI)— An employee of the Loomis Armored Car Service Company here is missing along with about $300,000 in cash.

Loomis officials report the man made the last pickup for the company on Saturday night with a partner.

According to police, the two men then put the money, which totaled $500,000 — of which $200,000 was in checks —in the company's vault.

How the money was taken from the vault is a mystery, as far as the police are concerned.

Tuesday the man's car was found in a Richmond, B. C., parking lot with a small amount of cash and the $200,000 in checks.

Police fear the man may have flown out of Vancouver to the United States or Eastern Canada.

Police did not release the man's name immediately.
