

Two-Day Short Course Is Planned

Corvallis—A two-day short course on "Critical Path Scheduling" will be presented as a service to the construction industry of the Pacific Northwest June 27 and 28 at Oregon State university.

Purpose of the course is to acquaint contractors, engineers and architects with the basic concepts and working rules of critical path scheduling — a new planning and programming technique in construction.

Jobs on the "critical path" require the contractors' prime attention. Recently, some of the nation's largest buyers of construction, including the Corps of Engineers, have specified that contractors used critical path methods.

JFK Arranges For Student Prom

Washington—(UPI)—President Kennedy will see to it that students at the John Burroughs High School in Burbank, Calif., get their senior prom the night of June 7 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles after all.

Kennedy will be attending a $1,000-a-plate Democratic fund-raising dinner the same night in the same hotel. He learned Wednesday that 600 students were because the prom they had scheduled for the ballroom had been bumped by the President's birthday fund-raising dinner, to be held in the same room.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger told reporters that when Kennedy heard about the row he called California Democratic State Chairman Eugene Wyman and told him to work out other arrangements. Wyman arranged for the high school students to have the ballroom and the Democrats would hold their dinner in the Starlight and Escoffier rooms at the hotel.

"Two rooms at the price of one," quipped Salinger. He added that "we hope the kids have a good time."

"The students are very excited and very appreciative of the President's aid," said Mrs. Elizabeth Hill, student body advisor at the Burbank school. "We were dumbfounded by all the notoriety the matter got, but we were sure all along it was just a misunderstanding."
