Motorists Should Check Conditions Of Forest Roads

Motorists planning trips into recreation areas in the Rogue River National forest should check road and trail conditions before starting out, forest service officials said today.

In the Applegate ranger district, roads are open to the 5,900-foot snowline except Elliott, Glade and Yale creek roads. The road into Squaw lake is reported to be rough, but passable. Heavy log truck traffic is reported on other roads in this district.

Squaw lake, Mule, Glade, Cook and Green trails also are open, as are the campgrounds except for Wrangle. In the Ashland district, no trail maintenance has been done this spring, officials noted, and the Loop and Tolman roads are open to Bull gap. The Fish lake rd. is passable, but rough between Fish lake and Lake of the Woods.

Campgrounds open are Fish lake, Beaver dam, Daley creek and Dead Indian Soda Spring. The majority of the main roads in the lower elevations of Prospect district are open, but snow and logs are still blocking routes in the higher elevation roads. Heavy log truck traffic is reported on Woodruff Creek, Abbott creek and Woodruff access roads.

No trail maintenance has been started in the district, but work has begun on opening trails in the higher country in the Union Creek ranger district. Most forest roads in the Union creek district are blocked by snow or fallen timber. Campgrounds closed include the south side of Union Creek, Huckleberry, Hamaker and Mule creek campgrounds due to snow. Campgrounds open in the Union Creek district include Woodruff, Natural bridge, Farewell Bend, Foster creek and the north side of Union Creek campground.
