MANOR-ISMS . . . .

By ETHELYN EVANS

Something really beautiful has been added! In our serene little chapel we have a new and permanent altar of appropriate proportions and outstanding workmanship. Three Manor members devoted many hours of painstaking effort—a labour of love on the part of each—to the completion of this project.

It was designed by Hiram Salisbury, a professional architect and built by Max Bear, an expert in cabinet work, who built it once and built it twice and built it once again in an effort to satisfy the wishes of all, resulting in a two-in-one top, part of which is detachable, but does steadfastly preserve the altar's true design and significant characteristics. The letters for the inscriptions were cut by Ray Neptune on some fearful and wonderful equipment which he owns and has installed in our Manor woodworking hobby shop. On this machinery, which does many different things, he used an incredibly fine jig-saw which required skill and precision and the completed work was perfection.

Miss Sharon Shellabarger Is Queen of Crater Prom

Central Point—Miss Sharon Shellabarger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shellabarger, 814 1/2 East Jackson street, Medford, reigned as queen of the 1963 Junior-Senior Prom of Crater High school. The event, held May 18 at the school, was attended by about 275 students, faculty and friends.

Miss Shellabarger was crowned by the junior class president, Ray White.

In keeping with the theme, "Oriental Gardens," the queen's throne was a golden papier-mache Buddha which had been made by members of the dance committee.

A Japanese bridge over an oriental garden stream was the entry way to the room and had been landscaped by Ross Burd.

A tea-house with a tiled roof and walled by transparent shoji screens was the bandstand where James Maffett's band performed.

Pam Martin sang two songs for the royal court and two oriental dancers, Karen and Carol Hamada, entertained the group.

General chairmen for the affair were Dianne Shelton and Don Thompson. Other chairmen were: Greg Applen and Robert Bruce, construction; Jan Parker and Jerry Calhoun, decorations; Gloria Thompson, tables; Carol Straus, band; Sue Kelley, entertainment; Toni Morrow, queen; Lori Hixson, programs; Anita Pierce, refreshments; and Forrest Young, lighting.

Cut through several slices of meat at one time for quick julienne-style pieces.

Prospect—Visitors at the home of Mrs. Olive Hervey last week were Mrs. Roy Coghill, Mrs. George Glines, Mrs. Lester Mason and Mrs. Everett Taylor, all of Talent.

Prospect Club Has Meeting Prospect—The Prospect Pinochle club met last week in the Salter home. Eight members attended.

Central Point Crater chapter, Grandmother Clubs of America, planned the annual picnic during a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. W. A. McDowell, Central Point. The event is to be held June 17 at the R. S. Richardson home in the Table Rock area.

Mrs. W. J. Gebhard and Mrs. Charles Jantzer of the program committee are to plan entertainment.

Houseguests

Montague—Visiting here for the past week are Mrs. Dorothy Irvine of Salinas and Mrs. Helene Blake and her granddaughter, Julie Blake of Berkeley. Mrs. Irvine and Mrs. Blake are the nieces of Mrs. Anna Dryer, in whose home they are houseguests.

This would seem to be an opportune time to tell you more about these three Manor members, Hiram Salisbury retired after a long and very successful career as an architect in Houston, Texas, specializing in ecclesiastical architecture—hence the perfect design and proportions of our altar. You will remember I mentioned the beautiful plastic "stained glass" window he designed and made for our auditorium stage. He is ever willing to contribute his talents and skill in behalf of the Manor. Mrs. Salisbury, also, is skilled in an absorbing hobby—making attractive articles with enamel on copper. Mrs. Salisbury worked many years with the YWCA. As a national board member, she traveled extensively throughout the country.

Maxfield Bear excels not only in cabinet construction and finishing but does the most intricate and meticulous wood "inlay" work. This work is a hobby which he started during his 47 years in the engineer department of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company. Since retiring he has devoted more and more time to his hobby, and has made many articles for the use of the Manor. Mr. Bear has a bachelor apartment on our floor. A good neighbor.

Ray Neptune's skill in woodworking is also a hobby perfected during the last 25 years before retirement from his work as assistant manager of the advertising department of Standard Oil of California, San Francisco. In our last hobby show, he exhibited numerous articles carved from many different woods. His grandson was the inspiration for a most delightful little bear he is carving from old redwood once a part of an early day San Francisco mission. This carving shows such vivid action—the bear has one paw on a rock, holding down a fish which he is obviously about to devour. His belligerent little face makes one hear, in imagination, his defiant growl at anyone with designs on his fish. Mr. Neptune also uses "edible" wood (of all things), the common name of which is "St. Johns Bread", more properly called carob. Both the Neptunes enjoy community music and Mrs. Neptune, a good seamstress, and knitter, makes use of our sewing room.

Another Manor wedding and a California honeymoon—Mrs. Bertha Blodgett and Mr. Marshall Ayres. We fellow members are delighted and shower them with good wishes. These frequent weddings—which always means the release of one Manor apartment—are good news for those on the waiting list and anxious to become members.

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Kuhl, Hood River, Ore., attended the recent Toastmasters' convention in Medford, and were Manor houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schroeder, my neighbors across the corridor.
