

Plans Being Made For Home for Boys

Roseburg—Plans are under way for the development of a home for dependent boys on an 800-acre tract of land six miles from Myrtle Creek.

The tract was recently donated to the WCTU Children's Farm Home of Corvallis by the owners, Miss Desda Wixson and her brother, Mr. Arthur. The property includes about 150 acres under cultivation and the remainder hilly.

The saleable timber has been largely removed and portions of the hillside show stands of second growth timber.

Mrs. Arthur Marsh, Roseburg, chairman of the committee in charge of the development of the property, said that in keeping with the terms of the gift, immediate plans include construction of a first unit to house from 12 to 15 boys with house parents.

Plans for the home were discussed at an area meeting of the Woman's Temperance Union in Roseburg recently attended by delegates from all southern Oregon counties.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Sanden, route 2, box 443A, attended the meeting from Medford. Mrs. Sanden offered the closing prayer and benediction for the all-day meeting.

Ida H. - I had to clear the air between us.

Warren H. - She had no business snooping.

Ida H. - By the time you've been married to a man 14 years and have borne him three beautiful children, you can tell when he's lying. Certain signs suggested Warren was cheating. When I dared to ask him point-blank, he acted so hurt he had me apologizing and in tears. But now a note turns up in his pocket from a girl asking for money to end a pregnancy. At least the truth is out.

Warren H. - The whole thing would have blown over if Ida hadn't gone looking for trouble. What business had she turning my pockets inside out? No wonder husbands leave home. I would have told Ida about this mess some day. Yes, I was drawn into a relationship with a teen-age flirt, but I have proof I wasn't the only one. When she got into trouble she asked three men for funds. One of them married her.

Lawson Designated As Military Graduate

Theodore Earl Lawson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Earl L. Lawson, 301 Windsor ave., Medford, has been designated as one of seven "distinguished military graduates" in the Class of 1963 by Lt. Col. G. E. Hallas, professor of air science at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kans.

Distinguished military graduates are awarded each year to recognize those cadets who have distinguished themselves in overall academics and in military leadership.

Designation as a distinguished military graduate gives the cadet an opportunity to accept a regular commission in the United States Air Force. A regular commission from this source gives the Air Force ROTC cadet the same status as graduates of the Air Force Academy.

New Trailer Park Opens in County

Where Indians pitched their tepees on the banks of Rogue River and cooked over the open fire, tourists will enjoy the great outdoors with the comforts of home, according to announcement from Shady Cove.

A new trailer park with camping sites has been opened at a point 14 miles south of Shady Cove on Highway 62.

Work men, digging the ditches for the installation, came upon the fire pits used by the Indians when the area was one of their "happy hunting grounds."

The new trailer park, known as Maple Leaf Trailer Park, was started by Mr. and Mrs. William Erickson, formerly of California. The Ericksons moved to southern Oregon less than two years ago.

The park has modern trailer spaces for all sizes of trailers and a state required fenced playground with play equipment. There also is a complete public launderette.

Local Home Among Those in Article

A Medford home is included in an article in the June Sunset magazine devoted to water roofs.

"Make Your Flat Roof a Pond." It will help you keep Cool," is the title of the article illustrated with pictures of homes in which this has been done.

The Dunbar Carpenter home, designed by Architect George T. Rockrise, is one shown as an example of how this type of cooling system can be accomplished.

The magazine article states that the water level on the Carpenter roof is regulated by a float valve of the kind used for poultry drinking troughs. "During high evaporation periods, replenishing flow is continuous," it notes.

Host School Topic Of Joint Meeting Of Two Chambers

Joint sponsorship of a tourist host school to brief key personnel in business and industry in southern Oregon in the presentation of information desired by tourists is planned by the Medford and Ashland Chambers of Commerce.

Definite action in this direction grew out of the meetings of the tourist and convention committees of the two chambers at the Mark Antony hotel in Ashland.

A committee of John Snider, former Medford mayor; Dr. E. C. McGill of the Southern Oregon college faculty, and Don McNeill, manager of the Medford Chamber of Commerce, was appointed to work out the plans and procedures for development of the school.

An invitation to participate in the school will be extended to other communities in the valley.

Outlines Projects

Dr. McGill, chairman of the Ashland committee, welcomed the Medford group and outlined the projects his committee has been working on this year. Development of Ashland as a winter sports area and promotion of the water sports festival on Emigrant Lake the week end of June 22 and 23 were given major attention.

Work on a rehabilitation plan for Ashland's Plaza and development of a rest area on the Siskiyou for the tourist, offering a view of the valley, were also reported by Dr. McGill.

Snider thanked the Ashland committee for its hospitality and voiced approval of the joint plans to attract more tourists to this area and to make them welcome.

Bert Pree, a director in the Peter Britt Gardens Music and Arts Festival association, explained progress that is being made toward presentation of the concert series beginning Aug. 11.

Agreed It Would Enhance

The Ashland group, after considerable discussion of the festival planned in Jacksonville, agreed that it would enhance rather than compete with the Shakespearean festival and be one more worthwhile attraction to offer tourists.

Both committees discussed the need for more emphasis on southern Oregon's natural resources such as "every known variety" of agate. There are many rock hounds to be drawn to this area as tourists, it was pointed out.

Development of a trail for horseback riding enthusiasts and the need for more dude ranches also were discussed by the groups.

Publication of a fishing guide brochure covering Jackson county lakes and streams was reported by McNeill.

Forest Grove Mayor Is Named Chairman

The mayor of Forest Grove, Clifford P. Rowe, has been appointed chairman of the League of Oregon Cities committee on sister-city affiliations, succeeding John W. Snider, former president of the league.

The announcement was made by Arnold C. Swanson, Astoria city councilman, and current league president. Rowe has been a member of the committee since it was established in 1961.
