Eugene Student's Death Hikes Toll For State to 12

Traffic Over Nation Leaves 525 Victims

By United Press International
Theron H. James, president of the student body at Willamette High School in Eugene, died this morning of injuries suffered in a car-train accident Sunday night.

His death raised Oregon's Memorial week end holiday traffic toll to 12. One other person drowned.

James, 18, was alone in his car when it crashed into the side of the Southern Pacific's Cascade passenger train in a northwest Eugene residential area about 7:15 p.m. He died in a Eugene hospital about 13 hours later.

His death was the only one recorded in the last two days of the Memorial Day week end.

The week end stretched from 6 p.m. Wednesday until midnight Sunday.

Seven Die in Portland
Seven of the deaths occurred in two automobile accidents near Portland. Three persons died early Friday and four teen-agers were killed late Friday night.

The long week end brought Oregon's traffic toll for May to 49, compared to 36 for the same period in 1962. So far this year 196 persons have died on Oregon highways, compared to 158 for the first five months last year.

A total of 525 fatalities were counted on the highways of the nation, setting a record for highway deaths over a summer-season holiday.

Final Tabulations by United Press International for the 102-hour holiday showed the traffic toll had surpassed the 482 of 1961's Memorial Day week end, the previous record for this holiday, and the 509 for the July 4 week end of 1961, which had stood as the record for a summer season holiday.

California led the Memorial Day count with 63. There were 42 in New York, 28 in Texas, 24 in Pennsylvania, 23 in Ohio, 22 in Indiana, 19 in Michigan and 15 in Tennessee.

Drownings and boating accidents claimed 136 lives, airplanes killed 20 and 104 died in miscellaneous accidents for a holiday toll of 785.

Lumber Industry Continues Talks
Portland—(UPI)—The Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union met with half a dozen big employers here today as the threat of a strike hung over the Northwest lumber industry.

At the same time officials of the region's other big lumber union, International Woodworkers of America, held a meeting to discuss status of negotiations.

Contracts expired Saturday but an extension was agreed to. Earl Harley, executive secretary of the LSW's Western Council, has said there would be a strike if no agreement was reached today.

The two unions represent about 65,000 workers. The LSW meeting today was with the Big Six—Weyerhaeuser, Crown, Zellerbach, International Paper, U.S. Plywood, St. Regis and Rayonier. The IWA has a meeting scheduled with the same firms Tuesday.

The IWA's negotiating committee, regional executive board and its advisory committee met here today.

The LSW seeks a 60-cent hourly pay hike over three years. The IWA has asked 40 cents plus other benefits over the same period.

Reynolds Reactivates Potline at Troutdale
Salem—(UPI)—Reynolds Metals Co. announced today it was reactivating the second of four potlines at the Troutdale aluminum plant, and recalling 75 men who had previously been laid off.

V. G. Kneeborn, general manager, advised Gov. Mark Hatfield today that the action is effective immediately.

Three Days of Final Agony End For Church Leader

Death Comes in Fifth Year of Reign

Vatican City—(UPI)—Pope John XXIII, one of the greatest Popes in the history of the Roman Catholic Church, died today in the fifth year of his reign.

The 81-year-old Pope went to his death slowly, in prayer and suffering, his stout peasant's heart carrying him through more than three days of final agony that was relieved only by lapses into comas.

Vatican Radio said the pontiff died at 11:45 a.m. (UPI).

The spiritual leader of the world's half billion Roman Catholics died without seeing the end of his great project, the Ecumenical Council, which was suspended with his death.

For nearly four days the heart of the pontiff continued beating after doctors had given up hope of saving him from the stomach tumor that was believed to be cancerous. As his condition worsened, peritonitis, an inflammation of the abdominal cavity, set in, and his temperature rose dangerously while his blood pressure fell.

Received Last Rites

Last Friday he sank so close to death that he asked for and received Extreme Unction, the last rites of the church. As he lingered in the valley of the shadow of death in the days that followed, the Pope slipped in and out of a coma, rallying at times to bless those at his bedside with a weak wave of the hand, then drifting again into deep unconsciousness. Before the end came he was too weak to move.

Pope John's illness first became evident last November, but he rallied and returned to his work in the Vatican offices until May 21 when the tumor's lethal effects began forcing him into the final surrender.

The public saw him for the last time on May 23 when he blessed a cheering crowd of 15,000 from the window over St. Peter's Square.

The death of the Pope was announced by Giorgio Luigi D'Ercole, an editor of the Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano.

As the Pope died, 80,000 mourners were gathered below his window in St. Peter's Square hearing an open air mass offered up for him. The celebrant was Luigi Cardinal Traglia.

An altar had been set up on the ramp leading to St. Peter's Basilica beneath the balcony where on Nov. 4, 1958, Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli had been crowned Pope John XXIII.

Runs into Press Room
Bernucci ran into the Vatican press room with tears running down his cheeks and said:

"At 7:40 the Pope died." The Pope had been aware of approaching death and accepted it serenely. During a lucid period Saturday he told an aide:

"I could observe my death step by step. Now I am gently moving toward the end."

Last Thursday, he told one of his doctors: "My bags are packed, and I am ready to leave."

In his final hours prayers were said for him around the world—by Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. Buddhists wished him well. Atheist Nikita Khrushchev sent him his best wishes.

Racial Unrest in Northern Cities
Subject of Series

Qualified observers believe racial unrest is about to erupt in violence in several key northern cities. These observers feel that the northern Negroes may take their cues from the bid of their southern neighbors in Birmingham, Ala., for racial equality.

United Press International has prepared a series of five articles dealing with the racial problem in five key northern cities: New York, Washington, Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles. The first story in the series appears on page 8B today.

Mistake in Tax Measure Clouds State Legislature

Error Would Leave $30 Million Deficit

Salem—(UPI)—An error in the recently adopted $60 million revenue measure was discovered today, throwing another cloud on the legislative horizon.

The bill, and a companion measure calling for a special election in October if the tax package is referred by the voters, are on the governor's desk.

The tax hike is designed to be retroactive to January 1 of this year if it is not referred.

But through a mistake, even if the measure was upheld by voters at a referendum election, the increase would not go into effect until next January.

This would leave the state's budget about $30 million short of the $404 million needed to finance the general fund budget.

Locked in Dispute
The House and Senate are now locked in a bitter dispute on other items.

In an effort to keep the income tax measure from becoming part of the present battle, a special bill was to be introduced today in the House.

It would amend the measures now on the governor's desk and eliminate the mistake.

If the correction was approved both in the House and Senate, it would not be necessary for the Senate to recall the income tax measure for a correcting amendment.

Apparently the House was afraid to have the Senate recall the bill, which would be the normal procedure, for fear this would then become a part of the present dispute.

The compromise revenue program was finally approved only after a 14-day deadlock.

Tennessee School Plans Thrown Out
Washington—(UPI)—The Supreme Court today followed up its warning that the South was going too slow on integration by throwing out two school transfer plans being used in Tennessee.

In its unanimous 9-0 ruling, the court agreed with Negroes who protested that the transfer systems had been adopted to prolong segregation.

Last week in a Memphis case involving recreational facilities, the court had sharply noted that the doctrine of "all deliberate speed" set forth eight years ago was being abused.

Today, the court said the transfer programs being used in Knoxville and Davidson county, which includes Nashville, were unfair to Negroes.

In another case, the court ruled 8-1 that a group of Negro children in an elementary school in Cahokia, Ill., outside East St. Louis, may sue in federal court on grounds that racial discrimination is being practiced there.

EXPLOSION STUDIED
Roswell, N.M.—(UPI)—Air Force safety crews and a board of investigation both began work today into the explosion of an underground Atlas missile site that shook the quiet plains of southeastern New Mexico Saturday night.

Harold Bibeau Pleads Innocent; Trial Set July 8

Harold James Bibeau, 20, U.S. Army, Fort Gordon, Ga., this morning in Jackson circuit court pleaded innocent to first degree murder.

Circuit Judge James Main set July 8 as jury trial date, but assured Bibeau he is entitled to a speedy trial and could have the trial tomorrow if he so desires.

Bibeau, dressed in Army uniform, appeared without emotion. The court recessed briefly as he consulted with his attorneys, Joel Reeder and Stanley Jones.

Bibeau is specifically charged in connection with the death of Russell Waldon Osborn, 49, Ashland Varsity theater's manager, April 27. Osborn was found strangled and shot in the living room of his home at 725 Walker ave., Ashland, late Saturday afternoon, April 27. Osborn had been shot in the head and strangled, according to Jackson county sheriff's deputies, who with Ashland and state police investigated the crime.

Bibeau was apprehended in a Portland motel later.

Businessman Shot At Klamath Falls

Klamath Falls—(UPI)—Frank Bogatay, local businessman, was reported in good condition today after he was shot twice late Saturday afternoon.

Police held Velma Lucille Bannoles, 61, Keno.

Officers said a woman who entered the storage room of Bogatay's shoe store about 5:30 p.m. Saturday fired several shots from a .22 caliber pistol. He was wounded in the thumb and shoulder.

Police said Bogatay has received many threatening telephone calls and letters since the Klamath Merchants association, which he headed, had worked to bring daylight saving time to Klamath Falls.

Gresham Man To Be Speaker Candidate
Salem—(UPI)—Rep. Ross Morgan (D-Gresham) announced today he was a candidate for speaker of the House for the 1963-67 legislative session.

Confusion, Short Tempers Noted at State Legislature

By ZAN STARK

Salem—(UPI)—Saturday, then Sunday, were days of disappointment, bitterness, frustration and confusion in the capitol building.

The legislature was supposed to adjourn sine die but didn't.

Saturday was a day of hopeful anticipation when the Senate and House convened at 9 a.m.

But as the day grew longer, tempers shortened, plans were changed, the unexpected became the rule.

Spectators in the galleries were confused as each house met for a while to act on a few bills, then recessed to wait for the other, and to let legislators confer.

It was late in the afternoon when the trouble surfaced.

The House refused to vote on the heavily-lobbied three-workmen's compensation measure.

The Senate issued an ultimatum: Vote on the bill or the Senate will adjourn until Monday.

Measure Killed
House members were polled. When leaders were certain the bill could not pass, the rules suddenly were suspended. The House then killed the measure.

Throughout the evening and night the hallways between the Senate and House were jammed with clusters of lobbyists.

Some, smiling and relaxed, were waiting to see what would happen. Others, angry, tense and threatening, frantically tried to get last-minute consideration of a pet measure.

By evening all that blocked adjournment was a decision on higher education salaries, and whether the Portland tuberculosis hospital should be closed.

Conferees argued, pleaded, threatened. But each chamber, sore at the other, refused to give.

Sen. Dan Thiel (D-Astoria), who collapsed of exhaustion Friday, was ordered by the legislature's doctor not to serve on a conference committee.

The House formally excused Rep. Joe Rogers (R-Independence) for a couple of hours so he could attend his daughter's wedding.

Rep. Ray Dooley (D-Portland), who suffered a heart attack earlier in the week, notified the speaker he had gone home.

Pages stuffed legislators' papers and books into boxes piled up along the walls of each chamber.

Families Tired
Lawmakers' families who had come to Salem to see the final hours became weary.

Desk staffs worked frantically to keep records straight. Senators suggested going home until Monday. Musa stalled them. Then at 11 p.m., the Senate recessed until Sunday afternoon.

The news stunned many secretaries, clerks and on-lookers. The House threatened to quit until Monday. Then, after a caucus of nearly an hour, agreed to quit until Sunday too.

A pretty page exploded. "Damn, this will go on forever."

A representative's wife, tired and puzzled, scolded her husband. "We can't stay. There's no place for the children to sleep."

At midnight, the representatives trickled out of the capitol.

Sunday, no one was much happier about the political situation, but a night's sleep had made it possible to laugh a little.

The spark of impending adjournment had died away, but the fire of the feud had not.

Some were surprised, more seemed bitter Sunday night when a day's efforts at compromise was killed by a vote in the House.

The Senate, enraged, laid off all secretaries and extra help and dug in for a long siege.

The House followed suit an hour later.

The 32nd legislative assembly girded for the 141st day.

Racial Violence Leads to Gunplay in North Florida

Gainesville, Fla.—(UPI)—A Negro man was shot, a white man was beaten, bottles were thrown and a car was smashed Sunday night in a four-hour eruption of racial violence in this north Florida city, the home of the University of Florida.

Large bands of whites and Negroes formed and nearly clashed in the downtown section during the trouble, which started when Negroes attempted to buy tickets to a segregated theater.

City officials promised strict control over more theater demonstrations expected today.

In the midst of the trouble, the city commission held an emergency meeting and set up a biracial committee of eight whites and four Negroes to work toward a peaceful solution to racial problems.

"The law will be enforced," vowed Mayor - Commissioner Byron Winn.

Look To Police
Officials in Tallahassee and Daytona Beach, where theater picketing already is under way, also looked to police control and cooperation by officials of both races to keep downtown trouble there.

In the Negro section of Gainesville, a crowd of close to 1,000 Negroes gathered as word of the downtown trouble spread. The Negroes pounded on a stalled car carrying three white men, wrecked the car and beat one of the men.

It was here, witnesses said, that a Negro pulled out a pistol and shot another Negro, Joseph Simmons, either accidentally while aiming at the car or because Simmons was trying to help the white men. Police said they were investigating.

Simmons was treated for a wound in the forearm and released from a hospital.

Vandals Enter New Baptist Church
The new First Baptist church under construction at 649 Crater Lake ave. was broken into by vandals Sunday, according to Medford city police.

A number of doorknobs and locks were removed from doors in the church by the vandals and were strewn about the grounds adjacent to the building. About 12 of the locks have not yet been recovered, officers said.

Entrance to the building was gained through a small window at the rear of the church, officers determined. The matter was reported to police about 7:35 o'clock today.
