Action Asked To Forestall Another Conflict in Track

By GARY KALE

New York (UPI) — Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic committee and champion miler Jim Beatty joined Gen. Douglas MacArthur today in deploring the latest outbreak of hostilities between the NCAA and the AAU.

Wilson urged that MacArthur call the opposing sides together "in the very near future" to forestall another track "war" that would weaken the U. S. team for its dual meet against Russia in Moscow next month.

The Olympic leader said in Chicago that the current dispute "apparently has come out of a difference of interpretation of Gen. MacArthur's March 12 ruling" when the five-star general first mediated the AAU-NCAA squabble over control of track meets.

Beatty asked the warring factions to discontinue their feud because "it would be a shame if this summer in Moscow the men's track and field team of Russia defeated the U. S. men's team for the first time."

The latest eruption was caused by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic conference (ECAC) announcement Monday that member schools should not participate in AAU-sanctioned track meets unless sponsors of these events obtained sanctions from the U.S. Track and Field federation, a wing of the NCAA.

This immediately produced an outburst from MacArthur, since a new war could prevent NCAA athletes from competing in the AAU championships at St. Louis June 21-22. Without USTFF sanction, many of the nation's outstanding college track stars would shun the event that selects members for the meeting against Russia in Moscow.

"I am reluctant to believe that either of these groups, directly or indirectly, intend to abrogate their given word to the detriment of their country and the athletes whose activities they control," MacArthur said in a statement that urged a halt to the new flareup.

Angry AAU officials charged the NCAA with reneging on the agreement that MacArthur hammered out early this year.

The AAU maintained that MacArthur's ruling under this agreement gave it sole sanctioning power in the United States for open track and field competition.

Some NCAA officials, however, never accepted that edict because it failed to grant the USTFF's proposal for dual track meet sanctions.

Attention Called To Mailers in Area

The Medford Chamber of Commerce has called attention to the flood of mailers from Western States Claim Adjusters offering name brand coffee at reduced rates per case and detergent and soap at reduced rates.

A check of prices noted in the mailers, according to Don McNeil, manager of the chamber, has been made by the Los Angeles Better Business Bureau. The prices were found to be unrealistic and persons responding to the advertisement have had their orders returned marked "sold out."

The mailings continue, however, and as far as the Better Business Bureau is able to ascertain there is no coffee and no soap.

'Nature Girl' Wins College Diploma; Planning to Teach

Greensboro, N. C. – (UPI) – At 16, she was an uneducated North Carolina mountain girl who wandered the backwoods in tattered clothes and often without enough to eat.

Today, Miss Dorothy Brown, 1957's "nature girl" is a college graduate and looking forward to a teaching career and being "somebody."

GRADUATES — Dorothy Brown, 1957 "Nature Girl," is now a graduate of Women's College at Greensboro, N.C. and plans next fall to begin a teaching career. She is shown above when, at the age of 16, Tom McKnight, a Mooresville, N.C., newspaperman saw her and a photographer captured her natual beauty on film, and the picture was distributed all over the country. Dorothy, one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Brown, who lived a hand - to - mouth existence near Moorseville, was made McKnight's ward. Later a Charlotte, N.C., philanthropist paid $750 to year toward her education. (UPI)

Dorothy's success story goes back to a hot day in August of 1957. On that day, Mooresville newspaperman Tom McKnight and a photographer captured her natural beauty on film as the girl, who became known as "Long Sam," after the cartoon character, stood beside a mountain stream.

In National Spotlight

McKnight was responsible for national distribution of the picture and later the Charlotte Observer ran a Sunday feature on the backwoods girl which was picked up around the country and overseas. Dorothy suddenly found herself pushed into a national spotlight before a sometimes unbelieving public.

Dorothy was one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Brown who lived a hand-to-mouth existence near Mooresville. The couple withdrew Dorothy from school when she was 14 to help take care of the other children and to do part time work in the area as a babysitter.

"There were lots of skeptics then and I suppose there are now," Dorothy recalled after graduating from Woman's college here.

"We did live in destitute circumstances and there were times when we didn't have anything to eat. You can't begin to imagine what it was like to live like we did unless you've experienced a similar existence," she said.

Appointed Guardian

After his discovery, McKnight was appointed the young girl's guardian and later an elderly Charlotte philanthropist paid $750 a year toward her education at Wingate Junior college where she crammed four years of courses into two years before transfer to Woman's college.

At the time Dorothy said "You've got to have an education to be somebody."

She still stands by her desire to be somebody. "I still want to be somebody, not necessarily somebody special, but a person who is worthwhile and who can help others in some way."

This fall, Dorothy will begin teaching on the elementary level in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg county school system.

"Tell all those people who have written to me or have helped me along with their good wishes how appreciative I am of what has been able to happen to Dorothy Brown," she told reporters shortly after her graduation Sunday.

Power Sought To Curb Fraudulent Stock Practices

Washington – (UPI) – The Securities and Exchange Commission has asked Congress to arm it with "vitally needed" powers to crack down on fraudulent practices in the sale of securities.

The request grew out of the agency's recent stock market study, the most intensive since the investigation which followed the 1929 crash.

Among other things, the SEC proposed tighter control and more rigid policing of securities not listed with any of the major stock exchanges. These firms also would be required to disclose financial information and would be subject to other regulations now applicable only to exchange members.

Under another recommendation, investors would be protected from being caught unawares by sudden changes in distribution plans for new stocks.

SEC Chairman William L. Cary, in a letter accompanying the legislative package, said the recommendations stressed "those measures which both the commission and the securities industry regard as constructive and vitally needed."

He said they would "materially increase existing investor protection, and thus will maintain and enhance investor confidence."

Cary said he did not know whether the securities industry "as a whole will support our proposals." But he said they had the endorsement of leaders of major securities organizations.

He said that requiring over-the-counter firms to disclose financial information "will greatly mitigate numerous problems and abuses, including improper selling practices, irresponsible investment advice and erratic 'after markets' for new issues."

The SEC made these other recommendations aimed at closer regulation of unlisted stocks:

–Provisions in the exchange act intended to prevent company "insiders" from using their positions for speculative purposes would be extended to the over-the-counter companies.

–Persons in the securities business who are members of the boards of directors of unlisted firms would be required to file reports with the SEC covering their activities.

–The SEC would be allowed to suspend summarily over-the-counter trading in any security for a 10-day period. It now has this power over listed securities.

The SEC said present laws do not provide "an adequate basis for establishing reasonable controls over the qualifications of those who seek to enter the securities business."

It recommended legislation which would require all brokers or dealers registered with the commission to become members of a Registered Securities Association.

State Files Suit For Fighting Costs

Grants Pass – Three men who were convicted in Jackson county last year for setting a fire in the Evans Valley area in July are now the defendants in a suit filed by the State of Oregon in connection with a fire in Josephine county.

The attorney general's office, acting in behalf of the state forester, has filed a suit in Josephine county circuit court seeking $3,942 in fire fighting costs from the three men, Leo Vincent Thompson, 39, of Rogue River, Harry Warren Stumbo, 34, of Wolf Creek, and Claude W. Chase, 41, of Central Point.

Thompson and Stumbo were sentenced to terms of 20 and 18 months respectively in the state penitentiary. Chase had imposition of sentence suspended for five years. Thompson was paroled recently.
