Timber Unions Bid For Aid in Fight With 'Big Six'

Combined Strike Has Idled 19,000

By United Press International Officials of two large lumber unions have begun a bid for support from other unions in their dispute with the "Big Six" Northwest wood products manufacturers.

Western Regional President Harvey Nelson of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and Executive Secretary Earl Hartley of the Western Conference of Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSW) met with officials of the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers Union in Portland.

Refused Offer The latter union recently refused a contract offer from some of the same employers involved in the dispute with the lumber unions.

The IWA and the LSW went on strike against St. Regis Paper Co. and U. S. Plywood Corp. in Oregon, Washington and Northern California Tuesday night.

Four other members of the "Big Six" shut down their operations in sympathy. They are Crown Zellerbach, Weyerhaeuser, International Paper and Rayonier. The combined strike and shutdown idled about 19,000 workers.

Discuss Action Hartley and Nelson released a statement after Friday's meeting with the Pulp and Paper Workers saying they hoped to meet in the next few days with representatives of the Teamsters, Sailors and Longshoremen's unions to discuss concerted action against the lumber firms.

"We believe that through this type of joint effort the membership of all unions will obtain greater benefits," the statement said.

Move to Increase 1964 Rogue Basin Funds Is Planned

An attempt to increase more than five-fold the 1964 appropriation for the Rogue Basin project will be made in Washington Tuesday.

Ben Hilton, Grants Pass, president of the Rogue Basin Flood Control and Water Resources association, accompanied by two other area men, will appear before both House and Senate appropriations committees Tuesday.

Seeking to increase the budgeted $100,000 for pre-construction planning to a total of $530,000 for the coming fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Hilton said the Corps of Engineers, which will build the $106,000,000, three-dam project, has indicated they could use the larger amount profitably. But the Administration budget only calls for expenditure of $100,000.

The Engineers have said they could use $230,000 in planning for the Lost Creek dam, $150,000 for the Elk Creek dam, and $150,000 for the Applegate dam. An increase in these amounts could make a considerable difference in the time of construction.

Accompanying Hilton will be Jack Hanel, Medford, fish biologist, and Con Nystrom, Grants Pass, a farmer and rancher who has been active in a variety of civic and farm activities. They will leave Medford by air today.

Federal, Alabama Forces Ready for Tuesday Showdown

Tuscaloosa, Ala. - (UPI) - A Top-ranking army officer, who commanded federal troops at Oxford, Miss., during the integration crisis last September arrived Saturday night at the University of Alabama campus where two Negroes are scheduled to be enrolled Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Creighton W. Abrams arrived in Tuscaloosa with two aides as the federal government and Gov. George C. Wallace moved their respective forces into position for the court-ordered desegregation showdown at the all-white university.

The Alabama governor has 825 armed state troopers, conservation officers and deputy sheriffs on the campus. Wallace informed President Kennedy Saturday night in a telegram that he is sending about 500 Alabama National Guardsmen to the campus area Sunday "to preserve the peace."

Wallace said in the telegram that he was calling on the guardsmen "out of an abundance of caution."

Preserve Peace "These guardsmen will be quartered on the premises of Ft. Brandon National Guard armory (about a half mile from the university) at Tuscaloosa to be used only in the event they are needed to maintain law and order and preserve the peace at the University of Alabama and in the Tuscaloosa area. My sole purpose in this regard is to fulfill my pledge to preserve the peace. These guardsmen will be used for no other purpose," Wallace said in the telegram.

During the Oxford integration crisis the President federalized units of the Mississippi National Guard for use with regular army troops.

Abrams was in command of some 20,000 troops moved into the Oxford area when rioting erupted on the University of Mississippi campus Sept. 30 after James H. Meredith entered the school grounds. Abrams was sent to Birmingham last month, as the personal representative of Army Chief of Staff Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, shortly after pre-dawn rioting broke out in the deep South steel city.

JFK Asks Tools To Ward Off Dip In 1964 Economy

Beverly Hills, Calif. - (UPI) - President Kennedy Saturday fired what observers accepted as his most active political speech since the last election campaign when he asked for "new tools" from Congress to offset a possible drop in the economy next year.

The chief executive directed his remarks to the women's division of the Democratic state central committee of California in a breakfast meeting at the Hollywood Palladium.

After a leisurely rest at the seashore home in Santa Monica of his sister, Pat Lawford, the President flew to Hawaii where he will address a national conference of mayors today.

Perfect Audience The Democratic women were a perfect audience for his speech, leaping to their feet to applaud at almost every paragraph.

In addition to the civil rights situation, which will reach a new crisis Tuesday when Negro students attempt to enter the University of Alabama, Kennedy spoke of congressional reluctance to press ahead with his recommended $10 billion tax cut.

He said that if his party was to meet its mission in the 1960s there must be assurance that every child, regardless of color, "gets a fair chance."

Kennedy noted also that an additional 1 million young men and women came into the labor market this year, over 1962.

"So we are faced with very complicated problems which require complicated solutions. It is not as easy as it was in the 1930s, in a sense, to talk about minimum wage and social security - the old slogans," Kennedy warned.

Serious Problems He said that although we have a "rich and prosperous country... we have serious problems which many of our citizens do not notice, but which press upon us and can make the difference between a society which blooms and blossoms and is an ornament to the free world, or one which falls behind western Europe and Japan and all of the other countries which eight or nine years ago were the object of our assistance."

"I think the job can be done, but it requires new tools because the problems are new. I can assure that your (California) congressional delegation, and I mean this as a fact... have been strongly behind all of the efforts we have made to deal with a sluggish economy in a dynamic world."

The President added hopefully that, "I think we have every chance to be successful."

Shah Charges Red Subversion Cause Of Iran Rioting

Tehran, Iran - (UPI) - Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi Saturday charged the bloody rioting which ripped Iran last week was "Red subversion."

The Shah told a crowd of more than 14,000 peasants in Hamadan, western Iran, he had "ample evidence" foreign money entered the country to foment rioting. But he did not identify the source of the money.

Anti-government religious rioting earlier last week took 86 lives and injured 193 persons in Tehran and other Iranian cities. Small groups staged new anti-government demonstrations in Tehran Saturday but by nightfall police firing over their heads had restored an uneasy calm.

The Shah spoke at ceremonies marking the transfer of land to peasants under his land reform measures which triggered the present rioting. He accused the Moslem mullahs (religious leaders) of wanting to "see people become slaves again rather than free men working their own land."

"In this space age," the Shah said, "they want you to return to riding donkeys rather than buses."

The Shah bluntly warned the Mullahs they had no right to "call themselves true faithful since their antiquated alien thoughts did not represent the ideals of Islam or wishes of God."

In Tehran, Premier Assadollah Alam's office Saturday night denied reports the Shah personally issued "shoot-to-kill" orders to his troops if demonstrators failed to disperse during the recent rioting.

Area Water Supply Outlook Continued To Improve in May

The 1963 water supply outlook for the Rogue-Umpqua area has continued to improve during May and is now near average for lands served by stored water supplies, according to a report released by T. P. Helseth, state conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service (USDA), cooperating with Oregon State University, Oregon state engineer and others.

Above normal temperatures and rainfall produced higher than average May streamflow increasing reservoir storage while melting the already "short" snowpack even higher on the watersheds.

Late season water shortages are still expected for areas not still expected for areas without stored water. Periods of above normal temperature during May melted the snowpack high on the watershed. Snow cover remains at only the highest and most protected areas on the watershed.

Upper watershed soils, close to the point of saturation, have assisted considerably in boosting runoff during May. Reservoir stored water of the Talent Irrigation district now totals 114,900 acre feet, compared with 95,500 acre feet one year ago. The Medford and Rogue River Valley Irrigation districts have about 19,400 acre feet, compared with 13,800 acre feet on June 1, 1962.

Heavy Precipitation The flow of Rogue river at Raygold, from preliminary data from the U. S. Geological Survey, Portland, was 125 per cent of average for May due to heavy precipitation and above normal temperatures over most of the watershed. Streamflow forecasts have been raised 14 to 17 per cent and the Rogue at Raygold is now forecast at 82 per cent or 700,000 a.f. for the May-September period. Grants Pass Irrigation district probably will not find it necessary to rotate canal pumping.

Water supplies for the Eagle Point Irrigation district have continued to improve although some late season shortages are still expected unless timely rainfall continues.

The North Umpqua below Lemolo reservoir is forecast at 80 per cent of the May-September average and the Applegate and Illinois rivers are forecast at 78 per cent for the April-September period.

Statewide, Oregon's 1963 water supply outlook has changed greatly this year from a gloomy mid-winter prospect to a currently satisfactory situation for most lands served from stored water supplies. However, thousands of acres of land depending on natural flow of streams will have severe late season shortages unless unexpected rains fall at opportune times.

London Osteopath Arrested; Scandal Threatens to Grow

London - (UPI) - Society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, who shook the government with disclosure of an affair between War Minister John Profumo and a red-haired playgirl, was arrested Saturday on charges of living off the earnings of prostitution.

Two Scotland Yard officers picked up the 42-year-old doctor, who also is a skilled artist, at Watford, just north of London, where he had driven in his white Jaguar sports car with a brunette "to find some peace."

After police at Marlborough station questioned Ward for several hours, they announced that he had been charged with "living wholly or in part on the earnings of prostitution at 17 Wimpole Mews, W. 1 (Ward's London home) contrary to section 30 of the Sexual Offenses Act 1956."

He was ordered to appear in London's Marlborough Street Magistrates court Monday to answer the charge.

The arrest was a sensational new turn in a scandal which has rocked Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Conservative government and threatened to spread through the highest levels of British society.

Senator May Vote Against NATO Funds

Portland - (UPI) - Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) isn't going to vote for NATO expenditures in Congress any more unless some changes are made, he said Friday.

Morse, in a speech at the weekly meeting of the City Club, said he would withhold his vote for the expenditures for NATO until "our allies" are willing to carry their share of the free world's defense.

"It is becoming evident to me that many of the members belong to NATO more because of the free ride on American aid than because of any genuine belief that it is needed for their national security," the Oregon Democrat told his audience.

He said that Europe is outstripping the U.S. while the U.S. expends its dollars and brains on defense.
