Small Worlds Around Us

Apathetic Individual Can't Get Excited Over Nature

"It's really nothing," he said. "It happens every night just at sunset. Why be excited?"

This is the observation of a pretty apathetic individual, similar to that pitiful one who, while standing on the brink of the Grand Canyon, says, "What's the big deal? - just a hole in the ground." Stupidly he sits in the car while his family gazes in awe at this, one of Nature's greatest masterpieces. Probably it is one result of great forces much too big for a small mind to comprehend.

absent. Imagine a grassy meadow without a meadow lark, or the call of a quail in the hush of evening; this is a part of rural America that should always be preserved.

It is a little, wild voice that the city dweller who has been surrounded by harshness for months would be happy to hear on his occasional visit to the country. At such times, to him, it has some importance. The real reason and purpose for many little things is not always apparent; just because we don't know the reason is no excuse for our attempts to eliminate them from the earthly scene. Destroying many of these things may not mean so much to us, but there are other generations to be born. They may regret we passed this way.

33 years later, he got the bug.

We're glad that most people don't wait 33 years to buy their first Volkswagen.

But Albert Gillis did, and maybe he had the right idea all along.

He didn't buy a new car for 33 years because he didn't happen to need one.

He and his 1929 Model A Ford did just fine by each other.

He always did his own repairs and even jacked it up at night to save the tires.

When he needed a new car last year, he went out and bought a Volkswagen.

"I heard they hold up," he explained.

Does he like the VW?
Mr. Gillis is 78, a Justice of the Peace, and not given to hasty decisions.

"Your inspectors sure do a good job of inspecting," was as far as he would go.

But he did mention that he and Mrs. Gillis took a trip for their 54th anniversary.

They drove their new VW 6,750 miles and spent $62 on gas and $54 on oil.

"I didn't think they were supposed to burn oil," he said.

Consider a Danger

The bumblebee, busy and minding its own business gathering nectar and pollinating flowers, is considered a danger - a creature that may sting.

The beauty of a butterfly is lost because a casual familiarity with its life history reveals the fact it will lay eggs that will hatch out into leaf-eating larvae.

Many of us consider only those things important that yield us a profit. If it isn't good to eat, or benefits us directly, we consider it worthless. If many little things, animal or plant, serve no obvious purpose, as far as man's puny mind can understand, they should be destroyed.
