Valley Girl Near Rioting In Tehran, Iran; Doctor's Family to Leave June 30

An American school girl, Judy Roberts of Central Point, student at the Community High school in Tehran, Iran, was close to the "bloody rioting" recently reported from that quarter. Dr. Wayne Roberts, cousin of Dr. Alvin Robert, missionary to Hamadan, Iran, reported here this week.

Dr. Wayne Roberts had a telephone call from Dr. Alvin Roberts Sunday. The latter feared that the former would be worried by press releases from Iran and he was. He learned by telephone that all members of the Roberts family in the far off land were safe, but that Judy had had a rather close call. The machine guns were firing just a few blocks from the school when the cease fire was called Sunday. The girl's father was in Tehran at the time, having gone there for Judy's high school graduation.

There is no high school in Hamadan, where Dr. Roberts will complete his year's stay as a missionary this month. The other members of the Roberts family are continuing studies under tutors. Tehran time is 12½ hours ahead of Pacific Standard Time and the shooting was over when Dr. Roberts called his Central Point cousin. Tehran is about 150 miles from Hamadan. Judy was the only American in the graduating class of 40 students.

The Roberts family will leave Hamadan for a return to the United States June 30. The return trip will be made through New Delhi, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Tokyo and Honolulu. Dr. Roberts said he expected to reach the Rogue River valley July 23.

The Iran rioting was branded as "Red subversions" by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, according to press releases. Dr. Roberts of Central Point said his cousin was unable to give any explanation since only a little news reaches him and little through the Voice of America. He said he knew that there was shooting and he knew that there had been casualties. He found that his daughter was all right and beyond that he knew nothing.
