Bride's Cookbook Choice Runs Culinary Art Gamut

By JEANNE LESEM
New York - (AP) - A bride's choice of new cookbooks runs the gamut from early Americana to contemporary short-cut cookery.

The facsimile edition of "The Carolina Housewife" is interesting both historically and practically. The present editors have modernized measurements and directions for some old recipes in a special section.

The short-cut book-"Instant Haute Cuisine" by Esther Riva Solomon-is a contradiction in terms. Dishes made with canned soups and gravies, frozen fruits and vegetables, packaged puddings and cake mixes often taste good - like processed foods should.

But only uneducated palates would confuse them with genuine "haute cuisine," the term customarily used to describe fine French food prepared mostly by hand with fresh ingredients.

For the budget-minded, Sylvia Vaughn Thompson's "Economy Gastronomy" contains American and continental recipes that are time-consuming but generally easy to make.

James Beard's "Hors d'Oeuvre and Canapes" is mercifully free of dips. His recipes for savory and salty tidbits range from simple finger sandwiches to asparagus tartlets and kibbi, a Middle Eastern hot hors d'oeuvre made with ground lamb, onions, cracked wheat and wine nuts.

"Men Cooking" is a book for brides to give to the bridegroom. The recipes came from male readers, mostly amateur chefs, of Sunset magazine, a West Coast publication. The men go for many ingredients and odd names. Pedro fu wong casserole is an omelet containing, among other things, eggs, hamburger, cheese, bacon, bean sprouts, soy sauce and liquid red pepper sauce. Chinese Dishes

"Food for the Emperor" by John D. Keys demonstrates that Chinese dishes sometimes surpass the French in delicacy and originality, both in ordinary homes and the imperial households of which Keys writes.

Typical recipes include duckling braised with chestnuts and sliced pear; and ham rolls with chicken-walnut filling, and mushroom-bamboo shoot sauce.

"A Cook's Tour of San Francisco" by Doris Muscatine is a history-restaurant-cooking guide in one, a fitting tribute to a city of epicurean reputation.

"The Complete Book of Meat" by Phyllis C. Reynolds is a definitive guide to buying, storing and cooking meat and poultry. It includes well-chosen recipes and cooking charts.

"Diet Set
The Keep-Calm Cookbook," by Dr. Albert Kweider and Adele Kweider, is an unusually imaginative guide for the nervous stomach and ulcer set. To compensate for forbidden spices, the authors rely on wines and liqueurs, from which alcohol evaporates in cooking, and on sour cream, soy sauce and flavorful basic ingredients such as oysters, shrimp, wild rice and mushrooms. Main dishes include chicken in brandy sauce flambe and beef rolls cooked in red wine.

Wedding Plan Advice Is Given

By MARGERY McELHENY

Chicago - (AP) - The last few weeks before the wedding ceremony are crowded with hundreds of details that must be considered to make the wedding run smoothly.

The big decisions, such as what the bride and her attendants will wear, the guest list, place of the reception and when the wedding will take place, are out of the way.

One of the most important details during the last few weeks is recording gifts and sending notes of appreciation.

Many books are available for listing presents, including one that contains numbers to be pasted on the gift. The name of the gift giver is written in the book opposite the number attached to the present.

This method helps a bride keep an accurate list of who sent what if she sends her thank you notes all at once. Gifts should be acknowledged as soon as possible.

Invitations should be addressed and mailed about three weeks before the ceremony. It's also a good time to have your hair styled and perm.

All parties and showers should take place two to four weeks before the wedding. Showers should be given by friends, but relatives may give parties.

The engaged couple should visit the florist together. The bridegroom will be responsible for the bride's bouquet, the boutonnières and the corsages for both mothers. The rest of the flowers are the bride's responsibility.

The bridegroom should have a checklist of his own for the last few weeks before the wedding.

He should choose gifts for his best man and ushers, plan the honeymoon, arrange for his wedding apparel, act as host for a dinner for his attendants, and give the clergyman's fee to the best man to present after the ceremony.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

By BERNICE STRAWN

Musty odors in old wooden chests can be dispelled by putting camphor balls or flakes in the empty drawers. Leave drawers closed a few days, then remove camphor balls. Odor will be gone.

Cast-iron utensils should be washed with soap rather than detergent to avoid removing the seasoning. Burned-on spots may be treated with steel-wood soap pads rather than scouring cleanser. Rinse well in hot water and place over low heat until completely dry to prevent rusting.

Our extension bulletin, "Care of Metals and Kitchenware," will give you tips on cleaning metals and plastics. Write me at OSU for your free copy.

Have trouble with streaked floors? You'd better start over and completely remove all wax. If you've been using a water base or self-polishing wax, scrub with hot water and suds.

Work on a small area at a time and take up old wax as you go with another mop. Or you can buy a commercially prepared wax remover. Check the label for type of floor on which it can be used.

Rinse the floor thoroughly and let it dry before waxing. Soap left on the floor can cause streaks.

Push the wax applicator through a small pool of wax, once, no more. If you scrub back and forth you'll get streaks.

We've said it before—but it's still good advice—read the instructions. There are so many kinds of wax and each has different directions.

If you have soft water, you're lucky. Did you know it saves you an average of 1 1/2 hours each week in cleaning? A recent study with 19 families at the Ohio Experiment station showed they spent 94 minutes less per week on housecleaning when hard water was replaced by soft. In a year, this adds up to a neat 10 days of eight hours each.

These families spent an average of six cents per week for detergents when using hard water than when they changed to soft. There was very little difference between cost of soft and hard water after considering the cost of softening products.

Fourteen of the 19 families said that a water conditioner is a piece of equipment they wanted for their home.

Throwing rice at newlyweds dates to the golden age of Greece, when flour and sweet-meats were thrown as a symbol of fruitfulness.

Mrs. J. Cornutt, (at right) member of Central Point Garden club was one of the members who worked on the recent flower show held at Jewett school. Mrs. Cornutt was in charge of tables for the tea held in connection with the show, and also entered exhibits. Pictured with Mrs. Cornutt is Mrs. C. L. Green, Medford, who entered exhibits and also poured during the tea. About 400 attended the annual event.
