

'God's Little Candles' Theme of Bethel Rites

Central Point — An explanatory narrative and the theme music "God's Little Candles," marked the installation of Miss Sue Kelley as honored queen of Bethel 38, Central Point. Miss Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kelley, was installed in ceremonies at the Masonic temple in Central Point, June 15.

Installing queen was Miss Cathleen Harsh, daughter of Mrs. Merrill Harsh. Other installing officers were the Misses Sandy Beasley, guide; Lynn Langston, marshal; Gerd Rognaas, junior custodian; Sharon Demaris, senior custodian; Jan Campbell, musician. Mrs. Earl Cooper was recorder and Mrs. Harold Sieg, chaplain.

The Ashland chapter of the Order of DeMolay, with Scott Roberts as master counselor, assisted in the crowning ceremony and presented the new queen to the Bethel and guests present.

Other Bethel officers installed were the Misses Kathy Collingsworth, senior princess; Anna Morgan, junior princess; Jeri Gardner, guide; Karen Edwards, marshal. Floor officers installed were the Misses Linda Snyder, chaplain; Elin Livingston, recorder; Linda Mushaney, musician; Mary Pinkham, treasurer; Jo Anne Hamilton, librarian; Susan Morgan, Pamela Sharon Thompson, Pamela Squire, Martha Harris, Sheila Beasley were installed in the position of messengers; Nan Burgoyne, senior custodian; Anna Thompson, junior custodian; Cherisse Offutt, inner guard; Mary Kurz, outer guard; Karen Jantzer, lady of the lights; and Cherisse Offutt, page.

Bethel choir members are the Misses Sue Rosecrans, Dale Collingsworth, Carol Rosecrans, Marsha Clark, Carol Lamb, Linda Prilliman, Shirley Kell, Brenda Morgan, Susan Early, Cheri Hadley, Beth Brood, and Norma Early.

Serving as candlelighters for the installation were the Misses Jaci Glines and Janice Ayres. Miss Ned Starne was narrator. Pat Kelley, Queen Sue's small nephew, escorted the Bible, a gift from Charles Meyers, secret Masonic dad during the previous term. Young Danny Colley escorted the crown. Greeters were the Misses Toni Morrow and Lori Hixson.

Mrs. Ned Starne sang the altar solo.

The Bethel hall was decorated with baskets of flowers and cutouts of angels carrying candles. Serving on the decorating committee was Miss Kathy Collingsworth and Miss Anna Morgan, assisted by Miss Dale Collingsworth.

Guests introduced at the East were Guardians Mrs.

Miss Sue Kelley

John T. Rognaas, Bethel 13, Grants Pass; Mrs. Thomas Denney, 71, Grants Pass; and Associate Guardian Larry Kelley, Bethel 13. Honored queens presented were the Misses Gerd Rognaas, Bethel 13; Sharon DeMaris, Bethel 71; Helen Caldwell, Bethel 22, Ashland. Past queens introduced included the Misses Cathleen Harsh, Sandra Beasley, Bethel 38; Lynn Langston, Bethel 55, Medford, and Mrs. Earl Cooper, 38.

Past Guardians of Bethel 38, Mrs. Jack Campbell and Mrs. William Askwith and past associate guardians Victor Noel and Paul Hopkins of 38 were presented.

George Finley, Masonic dad and advisor of the Ashland chapter of De Molay was introduced.

The Master of the Central Point Masonic lodge, Paul Hopkins, presented the new queen with red roses.

Guardian and associate guardian of Bethel 38, parents of Queen Sue, presented her with a gavel, advising her to use it wisely and impartially. Mr. and Mrs. Kay Kelley, Bandon, Ore., were invited to the East where they presented the queen with a gift.

At the queen's reception, refreshments were served by the Misses Jerri Gardner, Karen Edwards, Pamela Squire and Sheila Beasley, assisted by their mothers. The downstairs table was decorated with white clouds, stars, and candle bearing angels to carry out the evening's theme. "It is better to light one little candle than to curse the darkness."

Visitors

O'Brien — A guest at the George Alcorn home last week was their daughter, Mrs. Jack Campbell, Smith River, Calif., and her son Johnnie.

Reception Fetes Minister, Wife

Grants Pass — A farewell reception honoring the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Marquam was held last week end by members of Bethany Presbyterian church in Grants Pass.

Mr. Marquam, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church for the past 17 years, has resigned his pastorate here to accept another at Oak Grove in the Portland Presbytery.

Among speakers paying tribute to Mr. Marquam at the reception were the Rev. John Reynolds, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Medford, who spoke as moderator of Southwest Oregon Presbytery, and Dr. D. Kirkland West, First Presbyterian church, Medford, who spoke for the Presbyterian Synod of Oregon.

Degree of Honor Dinner Planned

Degree of Honor Protective association members are asked to invite guests for the Monday, June 24 potluck dinner planned for 6:30 p.m., in the Girls Community club.

During the meeting members who have birthday during the period between January 1 and July 1 will be honored. A white elephant sale is planned.

Carl Werner, representative in Oregon for the California Wine Institute, has come to Medford from Portland every year for the past several years to be one of the hosts for the annual Twelfth Night dinner of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival company. Mr. Werner is shown here with Mrs. Julie Tummers, who each year invites all the members of the Shakespearean Festival troupe and staff to be her dinner guests at Mon Desir inn, Central Point. This year the dinner also celebrated Mr. Werner's birthday anniversary, and the guests sang the traditional birthday song in his honor. (Smith photo)

Coronation of Pope Paul VI To Be Great Event in Rome

(Editor's note: With the election Friday of Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini as pope of the Roman Catholic church his reign began immediately, but his ascension is formalized at the coronation. This event of great traditional splendor will be held Sunday, June 30. The following release from the National Catholic Welfare conference reviews activities leading up to the coronation and history of the tiara used in the ceremony.)

As the cardinals in brilliant scarlet bowed to mitred Pope Paul VI seated beneath Michelangelo's great fresco of the Last Judgment, workmen hasten to prepare St. Peter's basilica for the coronation.

As the dean of cardinals, now Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, makes the first obsequy to him, several floors below workmen will be removing the black that marked the funeral of Pope John and decking the boxes and tribunes with scarlet and gold.

Elsewhere artists will be at work preparing the new coat-of-arms and the papal banner bearing Pope Paul's crest. The day of coronation is a great event in Rome.

A great throng of ticket-holders will run across the square as guards swing wide the big bronze church doors at 6:30 a.m. In the first hour the basilica will be almost filled. Outside, the crowd will swell ever larger as the four-hour ceremony takes place.

The diplomats and the cardinals will have choice seats. Pope Paul's arrival will be noted by those within as sounds of applause come from the atrium, or front porch, where he receives the canon of St. Peter's. Pope Paul's entrance into the basilica will be greeted with a wave of applause and a trumpet blast.

As the Sistine chapel choir intones "Tu es Petrus," ("Thou art Peter...") the pope is borne forward on the sedia gestatoria, blessing the cheering throng. The pope sits on a throne in the chapel receiving the obedience of cardinals, patriarchs and bishops and then is borne to the apse.

At the main altar, an acolyte brings a silver platter bearing three balls of flax. The first is set afire while an attendant tells the pope: "Sic transit gloria mundi" ("thus passes the world's glory"). This is done again, and yet a third time—to remind the pope amid the splendor that he is still human.

Then the mass is sung by the pontiff; the mitred cardinals in their stalls recite the Confiteor. At the consecration of the mass, the trumpets ring out; the Swiss guards kneel and salute, and the fiat of the governor of the conclave dips in tribute.

As the pope pronounces the words of consecration, at his left is a golden mitre and at his right the tiara that will rest on his head later. The recession of mitred bishops and the pope, flanked by ceremonial fans, brings waves of cheers in the demonstrative Italian tradition.

Three Valley Women To Attend Conference

Three valley women were to leave today for Tacoma, Wash., to attend the annual school of missions of the western jurisdiction of the Women's division of the Methodist church. The five-day school is to be conducted on the campus of the University of Puget Sound.

Going from Medford are Mrs. George Roseberry and Mrs. Charles Adamson and from Ashland, Mrs. P. Malcolm Hammond.

Mrs. Roseberry is secretary of supply work for the Oregon conference; Mrs. Adamson is chairman of spiritual life for the Wesleyan Service guilds in this jurisdiction and Mrs. Hammond is jurisdiction secretary of missionary personnel.

Purpose of the school is to train leaders in the Woman's Society of Christian service and the Wesleyan Service guilds of the 10 western states.

National leaders who will serve as faculty members and resource persons for the school include Mrs. Margaret Bender, official observer of the Woman's division at United Nations; Miss Marian Farby, secretary of work in foreign fields; Miss Helen L. Johnson, secretary of promotion.

Mrs. Roy Pruett was installed vice president; Mrs. Thomas Colburn, secretary and Mrs. Harvey Foster, treasurer.

Mrs. Howard Mullica, general chairman of the club's recent flower show, reported on the show and listed suggestions for possible improvements for future shows.

Another report was made on the recent organizational meeting in Montague for the new Top of State garden club district, attended by several members of the local club. Mrs. Ray Kelley, former president of the Yreka Garden club, is director of the new district.

The day group's next session will be July 8 at 11 a.m. in the city park. Those who attend should take a sack lunch. Mrs. Ralph King, hostess, served refreshments for the recent session.

The evening section of the club held the June meeting in the home of Mrs. Virgil Nelson. A discussion was held on the flower show and plans were made for installation of officers July 8 in the home of Mrs. Ernest Johnson.

The group decided to join the afternoon section in applying for a room in Community center to be used for meetings, workshops and storage of supplies.

It was announced that Mrs. Kelley, committee chairman in charge of landscape planting at the Ringe Memorial pool, has asked other garden club members to assist in the project.

Also announced was a flower judges' school to be held September 15 through 18 in Klamath Falls. All interested persons are invited.

Yreka Garden Club Events Are Announced
