

Hunter Safety Class Set In Central Point

Central Point — Hunter safety classes will start June 27 in Central Point according to Francis Marshall, who will instruct the course which is sponsored by the Central Point Sportsmen's club.

The classes are for youngsters 10 to 18 years old. Those interested may register at Marshall's Jewelry store on Pine st., in Central Point.

The course will take four weeks and will be held at the Sportsmen's club building on west Pine st. on Thursday evenings.

John Snook will also be instructing, Marshall reported. This will be the third year the classes have been held. They are state approved and are necessary for those under 18 who wish to purchase hunting licenses, he continued.

PHOENIX, OREGON HOME OF SMALL TOWN HOSPITALITY

Advertisement for Phoenix, Oregon, featuring a signpost and text: 'You are about to enter a strange and unusual place. There's the sign post up ahead. Next stop, Phoenix! Why is this a strange and unusual place? For one big reason. Here you will find that good old fashioned hospitality that has seemed to disappear in this age of big business. The friendly smiling faces greet you with the desire to satisfy your needs. Not to simply sell you something, anything, to get your money. Some of these merchants aren't right in Phoenix, but they are close enough to offer you the same pleasant hospitality. Shop where your shopping is a pleasure and not a task. Here you will find twenty two merchants. Believe it or not, there are even more than this. Come out and see for yourself.'
