Growing Negro Organization Pushes Belief in Separate State for Blacks

By H. D. QUIGG
UPI Correspondent

"As - salaam - alaimum" (Peace be unto you) says the gifted speaker on the stand. And the faithful gathered below respond: "Wa-alaikum salaam" (And unto you be peace).

"The message of God to the honorable Elijah Muhammad was: 'Complete and immediate separation of the slave master and his slave,'" the speaker tells them. No mixing. And as a separate Negro state.

The Elijah is a Georgian-born Negro, now in his mid-60s, who leads a membership of American Negroes that competent observers estimate at more than 100,000. They are law-abiding to the last letter, clean, debt-paying, non-smoking, non-drinking, non-narcotics, non-gambling, and bitterly non-white man.

Elijah Muhammad, born Elijah Poole, has as one of his titles "Messenger of Allah" to the "Lost-Found Nation of Islam in North America." That last is the official name of the movement most often called Black Muslims. In their more than 80 temples the white man is known as "the devil" or, as Malcolm X, Elijah's chief lieutenant says the Koran calls him: "the guilty blue-eyes."

They and their leaders consider themselves to be members of the great international religion Islam, whose followers are called Muslims (or Moslems), whose prophet was Muhammad (or Mohammed) and whose holy book is the Quran (or Koran). The Black Muslims pray five times a day, facing Mecca, the holy city. The orthodox Muslims in America have rejected the Black Muslims.

The Black Muslims are morally straight, keep down juvenile delinquency in their families by exemplary conduct at home, and try to improve the community around them, clean it up as they do their persons.

They abjure Christianity and make light of it. Although they scorn non-violence, they are told to be peaceful unless attacked. When the battle of Armageddon comes, in 1970 or 1972, it is rather vague (as is true of much about the Black Muslims) just what they'll do.

Predict Black Dominance
One version is that white rule in the United States will be overthrown. Another is that the white nations would destroy each other, leaving the black nations in charge ("Blacks" mean, to the movement, all skin colors, brown, yellow, red, chocolate - except white - of the African, Asian, Middle Eastern, and American areas.)

Malcolm X can get up in public mass meetings on the street and say things like: "We rejoice when the white man dies." Yet he testified in federal court in Buffalo, N.Y., that the Negro Muslims are not a hate organization: "Elijah Muhammad never taught us to hate anybody."

One source guesses Black Muslim membership in Chicago at 20,000, in New York at 15,000 and names Detroit, Los Angeles and St. Louis as other main centers, although perhaps 100 cities are involved.

Chamber Gets Letters About Living Conditions

More than 700 letters requesting information on living conditions in Medford have come to the chamber of commerce since January, according to Don McNeil, manager.

"These top any other category of letters requesting information on this community and the Rogue valley," McNeil said.

Letters requesting tourist information totaled 175 for the six-month period.

"This is a good deal less than the number of letters we used to get from tourists in previous years," he said. This can be explained by the fact that our two county cooperative advertising program has provided an easier method of getting visitor information on this area than going to the trouble of writing a letter. Around 2,000 have responded as a direct result of this new program."

Letters from school children totaled 442 during the period.

There were 50 requests from persons interested in going into some kind of business in the area and 155 miscellaneous requests of all kinds, making a grand total of 1,524 letters requesting specific information in addition to 2,000 response cards from tourist prospects seeking vacation literature.

Recreation Use Of Forests Rises

Klamath Falls - With the coming of warmer weather, improving road conditions and lowering streams, use of recreation facilities on the Winema National forest is increasing.

The Chemult district ranger reports that all roads on the district are open but dusty. Maidu trail is open to the Skyline trail. Howlock Mountain trail is closed due to blown down trees. Fishing on the district is slower. The road to Miller lake is open, as is Miller lake campground. Hot dry days, cool nights and localized showers during lightning storms are reported.

On the Klamath district most all roads are open and fairly dry, including the Cold Springs rd. Snows are leaving the trails in the high country, but some drifts of snow remain. All campgrounds in the Lake of the Woods area are open except for Aspen point, which is closed to the public at the present time because of construction activity. Fishing at the lake is reported to be fair.

According to reports fishing in the Sycan river on the Chiloquin district is improving, while the Sprague above Chiloquin is yielding good catches of trout and catfish. Fishing is also reported good in the Williamson river near Williamson campground. All roads on the Chiloquin district are passable. The Williamson campground is open and in good condition.

It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

In his recent book "The Negro Revolt," Negro author Louis E. Lomax says of the Black Muslims:

"Their withdrawal from America is almost complete. They speak of themselves as a 'nation,' indicating that they are not of the American body politic; they do not vote nor do they participate in political affairs. The Muslim women keep their heads covered at all times; they wear the long, flowing, white skirts one associates with Islam. They have their own stores, supermarkets, barbershops, department stores and fish markets... In essence, Muhammad is saying this: God and Black are one, therefore all blacks are divine; the opposite of black is evil, therefore all white men are evil."

Histaminic Headaches

I feel very sympathetic with those persons who write to say they have the terrible histaminic head pains which were described years ago by Dr. Bayard Horton, of Rochester, Minn. In this rare disease, the headache is extremely severe, and for perhaps a few months it will wake the patient around 4 a.m. and will keep him walking the floor for an hour or two. Then it will go away. Usually it will return at the same time the next morning, and again it will last for an hour or two. The headaches may keep coming in this way for two or three months, and then they may quit, and leave the person alone for a while.

Often there is a flow of tears and a blockage of the nostril on the affected side. Most of the patients are men who usually seem strong and well. Often the person has no idea why a long spell of headaches came or why the spell suddenly came to an end. No amount of examining by doctors will throw any light on the problem - except for one or two facts: a hypodermic injection of histamine is likely to throw the person into a headache. This does not prove that the headache is of histaminic origin because an injection of the drug can stir up other types of headache.

During a spell, no medicine that I know of can be counted on to give relief, but some physicians have given relief with an inhalation of pure oxygen, or with an injection of the ergotamine that usually relieves a migrainous spell.

Some physicians are now trying the new drug that sometimes stops migraines from coming. I have seen a number of the patients with Horton headaches who seemed to have a migrainous component in the production of their pain. Experiments have shown that the headache has something to do with the fifth nerve that supplies the face with sensation; also with the internal carotid artery which has much to do with supplying the brain with blood.

Dr. Horton, who for years treated hundreds of patients with this rare disease, relied mainly on "desensitization to histamine." In order to effect this, he gave the person each day a tiny dose of histamine - a dose which was gradually increased until the person was able to tolerate a considerable amount of the drug.

Then perhaps three in four of the patients were relieved of their headaches. Sometimes with this the person seemed to be cured; in other cases he remained well for a year or two, and then had to take another course of treatment.

The more common migraine headache is discussed in a booklet by that name by Dr. Alvarez. It discusses causes and methods of avoiding attacks. You may obtain the booklet by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

New York - (UP) - An average glass window permits about 150 times more heat from the sun to enter a house than does the average insulated wall, say housing specialists of Allied Chemical's Barrett division. Shade trees, an awning of rigid vinyl building panels or an overhanging roof will help block summer heat, they add.
