

Hiking Is Liked In Tulip Land

By MURRAY J. BROWN United Press International The American tourist who enjoys strolling through the countryside can find plenty of company in the Netherlands.

Netherlands, and winds through the picturesque woods and countryside dotted with 12th century churches and castles or two. There is a big festival at the conclusion of the four-day event.

Thousands of Dutch men, women and children take part in mass treks lasting up to six days.

And each year, according to the Netherlands National Tourist office, the ranks are swelled by more participants from other countries around the world, including the United States.

Objective Distance, not speed, is the main objective in the Dutch walks. The hikers try to cover a specified distance each day and stick it out to the end.

The Dutch say, however, almost as much a national pastime as a day to stretch their legs and get a leisurely close-up look at the countryside and the people. Spectators are welcomed, too, and there are numerous inns and roadside restaurants where they can sip cool drinks while watching the hike.

Also spaced along the route of march are Red Cross stations to treat blisters, corns and bunions and other minor ailments.

Most famous of the marches is the Nijmegen "Vierdaagse" July 23-26, now in its forty-seventh year. More than 15,000 took part in the 1962 four-day hike.

Take Part Anyone 12 years or older can take part and it is not unusual to see 80-year-old grandmothers and grandfathers stepping along with the younger hikers. Marchers try to cover a specified distance within a time limit of usually 11 hours. Young men aim for 34 miles a day; older men and women try for 25 miles and the very young and the very old shoot for 18 miles.

Each day the hikers leave Nijmegen and return at night. But each day they take a different route. On the final day, spectators line the roads to shower flowers on the hardy ones who have stuck it out the four days and earned prize commemorative ribbons.

Another four day march, also from July 23-26, is held at Apeldoorn. Here hikers are separated by ages into three classes and cover different distances: 30 miles per day for men 21-50; 24 miles for youths 17-20; women 17-50 and men 51-70; and 18 miles for boys and girls 15-16, women 51-70, and men 71-75.

Groups Leave Each group leaves at a different time each morning. The route leads through the town of Apeldoorn, often called the "largest garden city in the

When you buy a U. S. Savings Bond you do more than save money. You continue a tradition which was begun 187 years ago... and needs your support today more than ever before. Tens of millions of Americans put their strength into this fight by buying Savings Bonds month in, month out where they bank or on the Payroll Savings Plan where they work. Dollars for freedom Bond purchases help keep our Nation strong in a number of ways. Perhaps the most important is the dollars-and-cents assistance to our government in managing the public debt. Bond savings help the individual manage his "public debt," too—another important step to national strength. Your own "bill of rights" The Savings Bonds Program can help you build for a financially independent future, just as it has helped millions of others. Since 1941, Americans have spent $87 billion in Bond savings for new homes, new businesses, college educations, and happier retirement years. Series E Bonds return 3 1/2% at maturity for every $3 invested, and are protected against loss, theft, or destruction. Start saving for your independence today — with U. S. Savings Bonds. See your banker. More than 20,000 banks and other Bond-issuing agencies are ready to give you advice and service in your Bond purchases without fee or obligation. Keep freedom in your future with U.S. SAVINGS BONDS The U. S. Government does not pay for this advertising.
