Art Exhibit At Fontaines

Artists and art patrons of the valley are showing considerable interest in the current show of art works at the Fontaine Framing Studio and gallery, 329 South Grape street. The paintings, drawings and other works are from the collection of Lloyd Halverson, and have not been previously shown here.

Anyone interested is invited to visit the gallery without charge. Hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Of particular interest are 18 pen and ink drawings by Hamilton Aide, (Paris 1826-London 1906) who was the grandson of an Armenian merchant from Constantinople. His mother was the third daughter of Sir George Collier. Remarkable is the fact that Aide was also a novelist, poet and dramatist in addition to being an artist. This series of drawings taken from his 1862-1866 sketchbook represent scenes in France, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, Germany and England.

Also displayed is a fine landscape by Thomas Cole, major American artist working in the first half of the 19th century.

Mr. Halverson is also showing additional drawings by James M. W. Turner, English artist. These include beach and wreck scenes done at Brighton in 1827.

A rare miniature on copper of Oliver Cromwell as a young man and done by Jan Mytens, the younger; a floral by A. E. Harriman, English pupil of Henri Fantin-Latour, the famous French floral artist; "A Cloudy Day" by Carl Jonnevoid, a well-known 19th century painter of the California Bay area; drawings by Pietro Da Cortona, Abraham Bloemaerts, E. Duncan, a sketch for a ceiling corner mural done by Raphael in 1517 and a number of other interesting pieces are in the exhibit. All are for sale.
