Touring American President Confers On Key Issues

Meeting With Pope Scheduled Tuesday

Rome—(UPI)—A wildly cheering throng of Romans, undaunted by 90-degree heat, mobbed President Kennedy here today and security guards had to form a flying wedge to rescue him from admirers seeking to shake his hand.

Other enthusiastic crowds lined streets five deep at points and scuffled with police for a close look as the U.S. President drove through the Eternal City on the first day of a visit that will feature an historic meeting Tuesday with Pope Paul VI.

Key Issues Discussed

The good-natured mob scene occurred near the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier after Kennedy had completed some three hours of talks on key issues — including Allied defense strategy — with Italian President Antonio Segni and Premier Giovanni Leone.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 wildly cheering Romans and tourists mobbed Kennedy near the tomb late this afternoon when the President walked into the milling crowd and began shaking hands all around.

Amazing Reception

It was an amazing reception by the usually blasé Romans who had been slow to warm up this morning after Kennedy arrived from Milan, Italy, on the next-to-last day of his European tour that saw him get tumultuous receptions in West Germany, Berlin and Ireland.

The President smiled broadly as he waded into the crowd, but his security guards looked worried.

The security men and Italian police formed a flying wedge to get the President out of the crowd but he kept on shaking hands with the happy people who seemed to want just to touch the American Chief Executive.

Police Treatment Of Kennedy Party Being Protested

Rome—(UPI)—The American government is making a protest to the Italian government tonight over rough police treatment of members of the party traveling with President Kennedy.

The protest was being made under White House instructions by Angier Biddle Duke, chief of protocol for the State Department. Duke and other high ranking members of the party came in for police pummeling at various times during the day.

Among those jostled, shoved and treated in a manner which disturbed the White House, included two of the President's top assistants, McGeorge Bundy and Theodore Sorenson, and there were times when even the President's sister, Mrs. Jean Smith, had difficulty in maintaining her place in the presidential procession.

Italian police and military units obstructed movement of those accompanying Kennedy throughout the day. At one point, as the President arrived by plane, Italian police attempted to remove the U. S. Secret Service security car from the presidential procession.

The Democratic leaders also recorded their opposition to the referral of Oregon's 1963 tax increase to the people. They urged citizens to refuse to sign referral petitions.

CREW TO UTAH—A 25-man inter-regional fire suppression crew from Star Ranger station, under the direction of Francis Gregory, foreman, left the Medford airport Saturday afternoon to assist in fighting a fire near Richfield, Utah. Utah. More than 340 men from Utah, Oregon, Idaho and Montana are battling the blaze which was reported to have crowned Sunday afternoon. Forest service officials hope to have the fire under control today.

State Industrial Accident Group Deletes Division

Salem—(UPI)—A reorganized State Industrial Accident Commission today laid off three key officials, struck down the controversial field services division, and promised a series of other changes, Chairman William A. Callahan announced.

The shakeup came just one week after the commission itself was reorganized with the appointment of Wilfred Jordan, Coos Bay, to succeed Sidney B. Lewis, and Charles Gill Jr., former Grants Pass mayor, to succeed Mrs. Emily P. Logan.

Lewis and Mrs. Logan were fired by Gov. Mark Hatfield after being charged with "inefficiency in office."

Callahan, the only holdover commissioner from the former board, was named chairman by the new appointees, who announced the chairmanship would be rotated each year.

In today's action the commission abolished the field services division which resulted from a 1962 reorganization of the department.

Three Out July 15

Laid off effective July 15 by virtue of elimination of their jobs were George Hessevic, general manager, top administrative officer of the SIAC; Paul Jaeger, director of the field services division which was established last year; and Louis Horn, manager of the Salem field services office.

Callahan said the future of five other field service offices — in Portland, Eugene, Medford, Pendleton and Bend — had not yet been determined. He said he doubted they would be closed.

Callahan said the shakeup announced today would result in a $50,000 savings because of what he termed "an over-layer of supervision" brought about by creation of the field services division.

Neuberger Points To Dunes Report

Washington—(UPI)—Sen. Maurice Neuberger said today an Interior Department report shows no immediate need for acquiring commercial property for the proposed Oregon Dunes National Seashore.

The Oregon Democrat said the report, made by assistant interior Secretary John A. Carver, "should lay to rest some of the irresponsible rumors which have been circulated by opponents of the Oregon dunes bill."

She said the study indicated that many commercial enterprises in the area were offering services which would be sought by visitors.

Accommodations Proposal Pushed At Rights Hearing

Washington—(UPI)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy told Congress today that failure to pass the administration's proposed ban on discrimination in public accommodations would bring on a "good deal more" racial difficulty in the nation.

Kennedy denounced discrimination, which he said stamps a "badge of inferiority" on Negroes. In a special pitch to Segate Republicans to help pass the controversial public accommodations proposal, he said he would back a GOP suggestion for a fair employment proviso in the bill if that would help get Republican votes.

The attorney general testified before the Senate Commerce Committee in the old marble caucus room, with an overflow crowd of spectators on hand. He was complimented by both Democrats and Republicans for his strong plea for congressional action.

But Kennedy made it clear that he opposed any changes in the accommodations plan that would "water down" the purpose of the discrimination ban. He said the administration did not intend to include small rooming houses — the so-called "Mrs. Murphy" establishments — in its anti-discrimination plan.

Battle of Gettysburg Started 100 Years Ago

Gettysburg, Pa.—(UPI)—Gov. William W. Scranton today officially opened the centennial observance of the Battle of Gettysburg with a plea for the nation to work the will of the majority "without trampling the rights of the minority."

While not referring directly to current racial discord, the governor said that 100 years after the battle, "America still has not completely solved the problems of self-government . . . but those who fell on this battlefield have not died in vain because our Nation today is great enough to keep trying."

Louis Johnson, 69, Sisters, died Sunday when fire burned through an apartment above a sporting goods store in that town. The blaze possibly started from a cigarette.

Pope Crowned In Church Rites

250,000 Witness First Ceremony Outside Basilica

Pontiff Pledges To Defend Church

Vatican City—(UPI)—Pope Paul VI was crowned spiritual leader of the world's 500 million Roman Catholics Sunday in a centuries-old ceremony in crowded St. Peter's Square.

He then delivered a sermon in nine different languages, aiming some of his remarks at Catholics behind the Iron Curtain, and pledging to defend the church against internal errors and external threats.

Bright searchlights and flickering torches lit the vast square as the triple-tiered papal crown, decked in gold, silver and jewels, was placed on the pontiff's head.

The 250,000 persons who viewed the three-hour ceremony on a hot summer evening broke into loud applause and wild cheering when the Pope was carried back to the Vatican Palace on his gestatorial chair.

Smiles and Waves
Pope Paul, who had sat smiling during the coronation, smiled and waved to the crowd.

It was the first time in a century that a Pope was crowned in the square instead of inside the St. Peter's Basilica.

The pontiff opened his homily, or sermon, in Latin and then turned to his native Italian, reaffirming his intention to resume the Ecumenical Council.

"He asked God 'that this great event confirm faith in the church, freshen its moral energies, strengthen and make its form better fit to the requirements of the time . . .'"

He then spoke in French, English, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Polish and Russian, vowing to "defend the Holy Church from the errors of doctrine and customs, which inside and outside of its boundaries are threatening its integrity and shadowing its beauty."

First in History
Never before had a coronation speech been given in so many languages. The late Pope John XXIII spoke entirely in Latin at his coronation in 1958.

Pope Paul, formerly Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini and archbishop of Milan, was elected June 21 by the Sacred College of Cardinals to succeed Pope John, who died June 3.

Princes, presidents and prime ministers were among the representatives of about 90 governments attending the coronation ceremony.

U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren led the American delegation as a special representative of President Kennedy, who meets the Pope in a private audience Tuesday.

Taft Dance Flares Into Near-Riot

Taft, Ore.—(UPI)—The Taft City Council was scheduled to meet late today to decide what further action should be taken as a result of a near-riot Friday night when police halted a teen-age dance.

The promoter, Nick Weinstein of Portland, was free on $25 bail after being arrested for not obtaining a city license to hold the dance. Bob Ludwig, about 20, of Taft and Bill Smith, 20, of Cutler City, were arrested for inciting to riot and later freed on $250 bail. Ray King, 19, of Oceanlake, was free on $150 bail on a charge of creating a disturbance. No court appearance has been set.

The incident started when police told a doorman at the dance that it must be broken up because Weinstein did not have a license. Weinstein said he told the teen-agers they must leave and cautioned them to be orderly.

As they poured outside, Police Chief Rod Rosenbaum emerged from a car holding a tear gas grenade and a nightstick. Rosenbaum said some of the youths threw taunts of "hick cops" and used abusive language. He tossed the grenade.
