

Steel Furniture Is All-Weather Gear

Nothing takes to the outdoors like steel-be it furniture, play equipment or even decorations.

Proof is on display at the Home of Steel, part of an industry-wide steel exhibit at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, sponsored by American Iron and Steel Institute.

The building and decorating ideas incorporated in the "Home of Steel" can be utilized by today's modern families who want the best in living at a moderate cost.

Light weight tubular steel is perfect for outdoor furniture and indoors too for that matter. Steel filigree, mesh and S-shaped furniture are classic favorites. The durability of steel furniture is enhanced even further by new finishes, such as vinyl-coated. It resists wear for years in all types of weather.

The beauty of steel furniture is its delicate and graceful appearance. Yet, it is sturdily constructed without the handicap of additional weight.

Versatility is another great advantage of steel furniture. It can be adapted to innumerable designs and finishes. With steel you can get a variety of designs that would not be as readily achieved in other metals.

Boasts Furniture
The outdoor furniture at the Home of Steel boasts elegant garden furniture. Included are petal tables, side chairs and a chaise longue, all made of white vinyl-coated steel accented with nautical blue upholstery. It makes a perfect outdoor setting combining ease and charm.

When it comes to the outdoors, putting up a playground for the youngsters is a wonderful way to keep them healthily occupied and out of mischief.

Much thought has gone into outdoor play equipment since today's parents were young. Units for play and exercise are designed for children of various ages.

Play units need not be just a miscellaneous group of items. Today they are designed on the basis of modern knowledge of youngsters' physical needs, coordinating abilities and patterns of growth.

The climbing castle tower, a modern version of a jungle gym, is still a childhood favorite. Made of steel tubing, it is galvanized and rust-proof and offers the youngsters a muscle-building challenge.

Best of all-as far as parents are concerned-it can be assembled and installed without having to be set in concrete.

When buying playground equipment, be certain to look for steel in major and minor components. Steel construction will assure strength, long life, and freedom from splinters and sharp breaks that might cause injuries. In addition, they are maintenance free and will give years of service without the necessity of ever taking them indoors.

The decorations you use on your patio make it uniquely your own, just as much as the decor of your home. And here too steel sets a scene of elegance.

So whether you want utility or beauty-or a combination of both-you'll find it's all possible with steel.

Shortcuts Taken to More Successful Patio Parties

"Easy does it" is the secret of "cook-outs" and successful patio parties. Take steps to save work before and after the meal. The clue to cutting down on cleaning up is new cookware that does double duty for cooking and serving. Choose cook and serving pieces such as new Corning Ware saucepans and skillets that go from barbecue pit to picnic table; since these are made of Pyroceram brand glass ceramic, a material that can take extremes in temperature without breaking, cracking or crazing.

Planning ahead will save time and work; you can prepare food, freeze it in this "wonder" cookware and then place the utensil directly over a flame when you're ready to cook and serve. Detachable handles facilitate cooking, twist off for table service to reveal elegant-looking casserole dishes.

Here are two quick and easy variations on familiar barbecue recipes you may enjoy serving:

"Specialburgers"
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon ground mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 lbs. ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
8 slices salami (about 1/2 lb.)
1 large sweet onion, sliced
8 buttered sandwich roles
Blend mustard, Worcestershire and Tabasco sauce and catsup in 1-pint mixing bowl. Work salt into ground beef with a fork. Shape into 8 flat patties. Brown lightly in melted fat in a Corning Ware skillet placed directly on the grill over glowing heat. Arrange 4 slices salami in a well-greased Pyroceram brand saucepan. Place a browned hamburger on top of each salami slice. Put 1 tablespoon of Barbecue sauce on each hamburger. Top each with a slice of onion. Repeat, making a second layer. Cover and place on grill for about 25 minutes; uncover and continue cooking an additional 10-15 minutes, until sizzling. Serve in buttered rolls.

Sauteed Tomatoes
Sprinkle thick-cut tomato slices with salt, pepper, basil, to taste. Place in fat remaining in Corning Ware skillet used to brown hamburgers, and sear quickly. Keep hot on back of grill.
