Soviets Reiterate Refusal to Back UN's Operations

Stand Outlined in Letter to Russell

Moscow - (UPI) - Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a letter to British philosopher Earl (Bertrand) Russell, Saturday reaffirmed the Soviet Union's refusal to help finance United Nations operations in the Middle East, the Congo and Yemen.

Khrushchev was replying to a letter from Russell in which the Briton expressed disappointment that the Soviet government "finds it no longer possible to render financial aid to the work of the U.N. organization."

Khrushchev, in the letter broadcast by Moscow radio, said the Soviet Union was "resolutely against" weakening the foundations of the U.N. or bringing about its "disintegration."

Political Question

But he added, "The so-called financial crisis of the United Nations organization is essentially not a financial but a political question, a direct result of the systematic violation by the western powers of the U.N. charter."

Khrushchev said that, by using a mechanical vote, the western powers circumvented creating the armed force sent to the Middle East and in using U. N. armed forces in The Congo.

"There is no need to recall who bears the responsibility for the emergence of conflicts in these areas, conflicts which created a threat to universal peace and inflicted much grief and suffering on the Egyptian and Congolese people," he said.

Demands of Justice

"It is precisely they who must bear all the material responsibility connected with U. N. operations in the Middle East, The Congo and in Yemen," he said. "Such an approach is in accordance not only with the principles of the U. N. charter, but also meets the demands of justice."

"To insist that peace-loving nations should pay for the consequences of the actions of aggressors and colonialists," Khrushchev said, "actually means encouragement of colonial policy and interference in the internal affairs of other peoples."

"One must act in such a way as to discourage violations of the peace and tranquility of nations," he said.

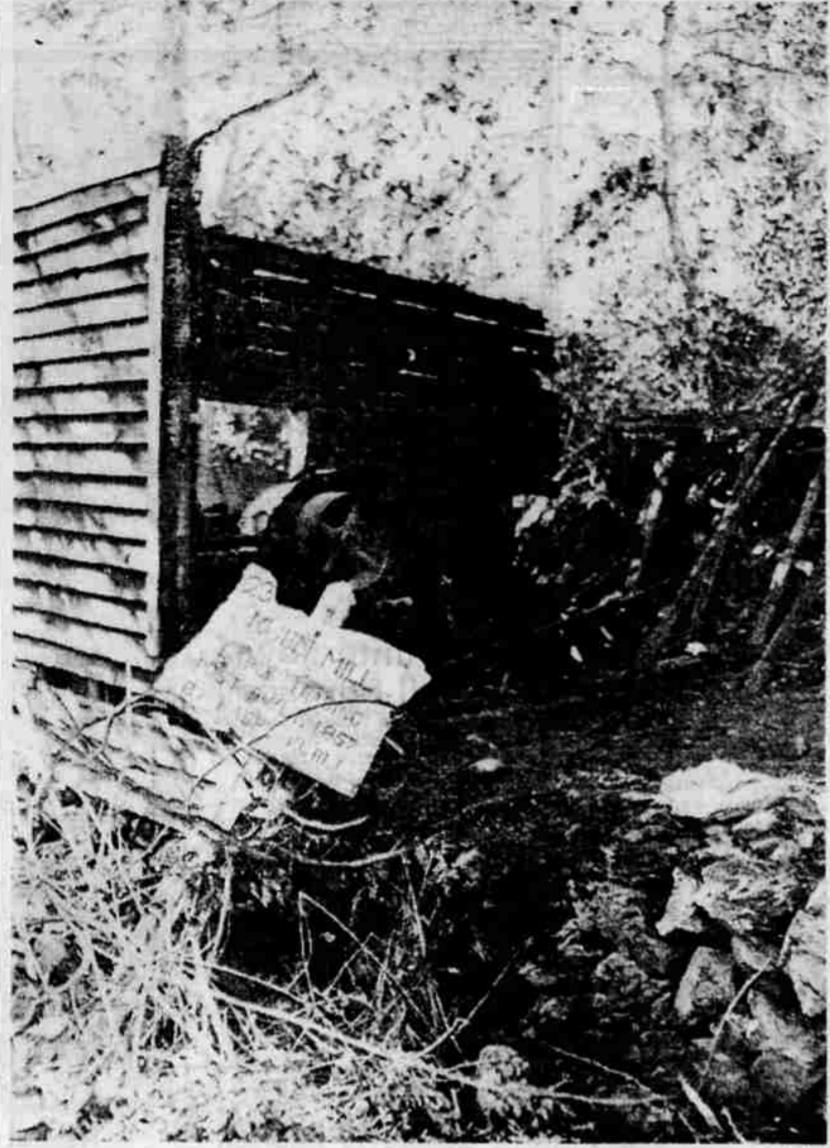

GP Jail Escapee Nabbed in Hanford

Grants Pass - Kenneth Raymond Barr, 20, of Santa Ana, Calif. one of two men who tunneled their way out of the Josephine County Jail last week end, is still being sought by authorities in three states.

The sheriff's department of Kings County, Calif. and the FBI, meanwhile, have apprehended the other man, Wesley Earl Sanford, 30.

He was found late last week staying in a Hanford, Calif. hotel under an assumed name. Hanford was the city in which Sanford was wanted on a burglary charge. He was being held in Grants Pass for Kings county authorities when the escape took place.

The two men dug a seven-foot tunnel under the wall of their cell and crawled through it. The car they were driving was later recovered in Modesto, Calif.

ALL THAT WAS SAVED - When fire destroyed the historic Kubli Grist mill, destroyed the historic Kubli Grist mill between Applegate and Ruch Friday, all that firefighters were able to save were the water wheel and its surrounding walls. The photo above shows the back part of the wheel. In the foreground is a historical marker sign that described the landmark.

Historic Kubli Grist Mill Burns In Friday Blaze

Applegate - The historic Kubli Grist mill, over 100 years old, was destroyed by a fire which swept over 20 acres of brush and grass between Applegate and Ruch Friday.

Only the mill's water wheel and surrounding walls were saved, and the walls were charred.

The mill, a Jackson county landmark, was built in 1837 by a Swiss pioneer named Kubli. It had been the first trading post, store and mill in the area.

State Forestry department officials said the fire started near Highway 238 and swept in a northerly direction up a hill to the mill.

Cause of the fire was still not known late Saturday.

It was the first major fire of the season, according to the forestry department. It actually was the 36th fire fought by the department this year, but the first 35 all involved less than an acre of area acre.

A crew of 25 men from both the Medford and Grants Pass offices of the forestry department, using a bulldozer, brought the fire under control.

Newspaper Claims Red Spy Gave Up Over 2 Years Ago

Washington - (UPI) - The Washington Post said Saturday that a Soviet spy named by the British gave himself up in the U.S. embassy in Ottawa more than two years ago.

The British announced that the spy, Anatoli Dolynitsin, turned himself in 18 months ago. But this development came only after earlier reports from the British that an unidentified Soviet agent had defected recently.

The Post story said some American officials could only conclude that the government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, under fire for security scandals, was seeking to regain ground by publicizing the espionage victory for the British government.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government denied any knowledge of reports that Dolynitsin chose Canada as a jumping-off point to defect to the west.

Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier, the Canadian cabinet minister responsible for operations of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, said he had no knowledge of reports attributed to the Washington newspaper that Dolynitsin was serving in Canada two years ago and "defected" to the U. S. embassy in Ottawa.

Other Canadian officials made similar comments, and a spokesman for the RCMP, Canada's counterpart of the FBI, said as far as he knew the federal police force similarly had no knowledge of the report attributed to the Washington newspaper.

A similar denial came informally from a spokesman for Canadian parliamentary opposition leader John Diefenbaker, who was prime minister of Canada two years ago and whose conservative administration was ousted earlier this year by the liberal party of the now Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

The study showed that 86 per cent of men readers and 89 per cent of women readers "noted" the advertisement. In a "seen associated" category, the percentages were men, 75 per cent, and women, 72 per cent. In "most read" it was men, 25 per cent, and women, 28 per cent.

Next high in the "noted" category was an Air France advertisement. In the "most read" category next to Oregon was a San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau message.

Among men readers of all types of advertisements in the magazine, the Oregon advertisement was bettered in the "most read" category only by Ford Thunderbird. Among the women readers, the Oregon advertisement was tied in "most read" by Pet Milk and Maytag washing machines.

Sino-Soviet Rupture Appears Certain After Public Attack

Boys Rescued After Days in Old Coal Mine

Pittsburgh - (UPI) - Three teenage boys, in a miracle survival that confounded experts, were found alive Saturday after spending more than two days listening to trains and looking at the ceiling of an abandoned, gas-ridden coal mine.

The youngsters were found nearly a half-mile from the mouth of No. 2 shaft of Castle Shannon Coal Co., a rickety myriad of underground tunnels that had not been used for more than 25 years.

Their rescuers were U. S. Bureau of Mines Inspectors Everett Turner, James Hutchens and Jennings Breedon. After locating the youths, the men emerged to gather oxygen and breathing apparatus.

"I told the boys we would have to go back for oxygen masks," Hutchens said, "and they told me they were in there 30 hours and could wait 30 minutes longer."

When the boys were carried out on stretchers a crowd of more than 200 persons standing atop a hillside across from the mine let out a deafening roar of approval.

All fire sirens in the community of Castle Shannon, seven miles south of Pittsburgh where the mine is located, shrieked for several minutes in appreciation of the rescuers' efforts.

The boys - Danny O'Kain and Billy Burke, both of near-by Baldwin Borough, and Bobby Abbott, 14, of Pittsburgh, were taken to St. Clair Memorial hospital. Burke and Abbott were listed in good condition. O'Kain's condition was listed as satisfactory.

Hutchens, Turner and Breedon broke into tears while describing the rescue operation. Turner was one of the happiest. He had said earlier Saturday that "this is a recovery operation now instead of a rescue operation."

He was the first to spot the boys. He said they were waving their hands when they were located.

Turner said O'Kain complained of suffering from a headache. "Another told me he thought he had pneumonia," Turner said.

Wirtz made it plain, however, that the six-man panel named by the President to investigate the dispute would not attempt to direct any further negotiations.

The President has promised to seek legislation to settle the controversy over new work rules opposed by the unions after he studies the report now scheduled for delivery next Friday.

But administration officials are unhappy over the prospect of going to Congress for a law since they regard the outlook on Capitol Hill as unpredictable. They said a negotiated solution would be far preferable for all sides.

Wirtz was asked if he felt that the preparation of the report justified a halt in bargaining.

Wirtz May Try To Resume Meetings In Rail Dispute

Washington - (UPI) - Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz indicated Saturday he may try to renew negotiations in the deadlocked railroad dispute next week to avert a strike or congressional action in the rail crisis.

He said in an interview that he does not believe fact-finding by a special White House committee justifies a halt in bargaining by union and management officials.

He also hinted strongly that he may follow up any opportunity to mediate that might develop outside of the committee's work in compiling a report for President Kennedy.

The cabinet officer made the comments to a United Press International reporter following a private conference with J. E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the railroads, at his office in the labor department.

Soviets Announce Intent To Better U. S. Relations

Red Peace Meeting Scene of Dispute

Moscow, Sunday - (UPI) - The Soviet Union, in the most savage public attack ever delivered against Communist China here, today bluntly told Peking it will go ahead with efforts to reach better relations with the United States and end the arms race.

The Soviet declaration appeared to make inevitable a formal rupture in the Sino-Soviet ideological "peace" talks. It was an admission that eight days of high-level secret negotiations in Moscow had gotten nowhere.

Foreign observers interpreted the Soviet declaration as near final de facto rupture of the once-monolithic bloc that claimed sovereignty over one-third of the world.

The talks were adjourned for the week end yesterday. Informed sources said they had ground to an apparent end with "grave differences" between Peking and Moscow still unresolved.

The Soviet Union and Communist China have fought bitterly for years over the method to advance communism. Russia has advocated peaceful coexistence, Red China has insisted that there must inevitably be military conflict between communism and capitalism.

A 25,000-word open letter from the Soviet Communist party, published in the party newspaper Pravda Sunday denounced Chinese Communist leaders for "aggravating" the split and undermining world communism.

(The Chinese Communists, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo Sunday, accused the United States of trying to wreck the ideological talks and split the international Communist movement by inciting ill-feelings between Moscow and Peking. The article in the Peoples Daily Observer of Peking, however, was written before the Soviet denunciations published in Pravda.)

The Kremlin rejected Chinese Communist charges of "cowardice in the face of imperialists" and made a ringing reaffirmation of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence with the west.

The statement came on the eve of vital east-west nuclear test ban talks in Moscow and appeared to be a new indication that the Kremlin was anxious to lay the ground work for an atomic testing moratorium with the United States and Britain.

In another development at Albany, a federal judge ordered the integration of schools in south Georgia's rigidly-segregated Dougherty county, of which Albany is the principal city. Judge J. Robert Elliot directed the county board of education to submit a school desegregation plan to him within 30 days.

A total of 15 persons were arrested in Albany Saturday for staging segregation protests. Six were taken into custody when they attempted to gain admittance to a swimming pool the city recently sold to avoid integration. The pool is now operated as a private business. The other integrators were arrested when they picketed the homes of two Albany businessmen.

Two Appointed To CD Advisory Group

Salem - (UPI) - William Hedlund and Louis Starr, both of Portland, have been appointed to the newly created Advisory Council by Gov. Mark Hatfield.

The council was created as a result of the reorganization of civil defense by the state legislature this year. The council has scheduled and organizational meeting here this Thursday.

Both gave statements to officers of the Oregon State police and Josephine County Sheriff's deputies implicating themselves in the commission of the crime," the district attorney said.

Harper, who had been a patient at the Merlin Sanitarium until Friday afternoon, was found in a ditch beside Foot-hill Blvd. near the E. St. exit off the freeway. He was found by a group of young persons.

Harper, believed to have been still alive when found, was dead on arrival at Josephine General hospital. An autopsy, performed here Saturday, disclosed that he died of a broken neck.

Thomas and Oden are being held without bail at the Douglas county jail. A 16-year-old girl, who also gave a statement implicating the two is being held in protective custody, Aschenbrenner said.

Among those submitting predictions were Edward Teller, "father of the H-bomb", Kraft A. Ehricke, leading developer of the Atlas rocket; W. H. Pickering, director of the jet propulsion laboratory; Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space agency; and vice president Lyndon B. Johnson. The stainless steel capsule with the predictions was sealed in concrete at the astronautics plant during an opening house marking the aerospace plant's fifth anniversary.

Company officials expected 100,000 visitors at the plant which was opened to the public for the first time. Open viewing were the assembly lines of Atlas and Centaur space vehicles and the space science laboratory housing a simulated manned space station.

Guardsmen Alert In Racially-Tense Southern Cities

Savannah, Ga. - (UPI) - National guardsmen remained on the alert for duty in racially-tense Savannah Saturday and soldiers patrolled the streets of Cambridge, Md.

Integration leaders in both cities called for a temporary halt to demonstrations that led to shootings and other violence Thursday night, but the threat of spontaneous protests remained.

Mrs. Gloria H. Richardson, head of the Cambridge Non-Violent Action Committee, said "well-disciplined, peaceful demonstrations" would resume in the racially-torn community Monday. She said the demonstrations would not involve any direct action against national guard troops stationed in the town but that "if nothing happens within a week or so we are going to have to court arrest."

The guard commander at Cambridge said his 450 troops may have to remain in the city for the next three months. About 100 state highway patrolmen are on duty in Savannah, and approximately 300 national guardsmen have been alerted for duty in the Georgia city in the event the situation gets out of hand.

At Albany, Ga., a 19-year-old marine who told police he had been brooding over recent racial unrest, was charged with wounding a railroad flagman.

The young marine, Robert J. Kelley of Baltimore, Md., said he had become so overwrought that he "had to shoot a Negro." He was charged with opening fire with a shotgun at Jessie Bailey, Bailey suffered pellet wounds in the back but was not seriously hurt.

Scientists Peer Into Future Of World; Answers Sealed Up

San Diego, Calif. - (UPI) - What will the world be like 100 years from now? Man's average life expectancy will be 150 years.

Disease will have disappeared. Hereditary characteristics like skin color will be controlled chemically. Distant travel will be accomplished in huge space vehicles powered by nuclear energy.

Colonies of people will reside on the moon and Mars and scientists will have traveled throughout the solar system. This is a composite portrait of the world of 2063 envisaged by some of the nation's leading men of science. Their predictions were sealed Saturday in a space-time capsule at General Dynamics/Astronautics to be opened 100 years hence.

Among those submitting predictions were Edward Teller, "father of the H-bomb", Kraft A. Ehricke, leading developer of the Atlas rocket; W. H. Pick-
