Orders for Filing Subdivision Plats Signed by Court

Orders for the filing of plats for two subdivisions in the Medford area were signed by the Jackson county court at the Monday meeting, called because of inability of court members to attend a meeting on the regular Friday date.

Filed with the county recorder are the plats for Splendor View subdivision, located in the area of Archer dr., Alamar st. and Rio st.; and for Broadlands sub division, located between Fairlane dr. and Griffin Creek rd. and south of South Stage rd.

The court signed a lease with John McCabe of Medford for a storage area in the Chrystal company building at 301 North Fir street for storage of surplus foods. The lease for one year provides for rent payments of $270 a month.

An appeal from Charles A. Goddard seeking redemption of his property being advertised for tax sale, was heard by the court and taken under advisement.

T. E. Thompson of Ashland came before the court asking for a waiver of the license fee for one day's performance of the Cody Pioneer circus, which is being sponsored by the Ashland IOOF lodge for July 26. The request was granted.

The yearly report from the Jackson county sheriff's office was reviewed. It showed a total of $8,438,148.44 collected in taxes for the year of June 30, 1962, to June 30, 1963.

Report of J. Chris Hagler, dog control officer, revealed a balance of $12,563.18 in the dog control fund as of July 3, 1963, and a balance in the general fund of $9,446.00

During June there were 470 cases handled by the officer. Of this number, 107 were dogs picked up and 107 dogs brought in. There were 228 cat cases handled, with 159 destroyed. There were 129 dogs destroyed, according to the report. Dog bite cases handled by the dog control officer numbered 11. Under the miscellaneous pickups made by the dog control staff two coons and six skunks were listed.

The control officer turned in 39 overdue dog license citations to the district attorney for collection during the month, he reported.

Portland Woman Wins Gold Brick

Portland–(UPI)–A man called Mrs. Jeanette Brearley Sunday and wanted to know where he could deliver her $50,000 gold brick.

"If you don't want the gold brick you can pick up $50,000 cash from the Bank of Montreal," he added. "You won it on a $1 ticket in the Calgary Stampede drawing."

Mrs. Brearley said she bought the ticket when she went to Calgary for a family reunion last week. It wasn't her first winning. A jingle in a 1947 flour mill contest won her a new auto.

A man at the Bank of Montreal told her she could spend the money in Canada and not have to pay any taxes, but she thinks she'll take a trip to the Orient instead.

"In fact, I might go all the way around the world. The way I feel now I wouldn't even need a plane."

Northwest Due Cool Temperatures

Washington–(UPI)–The weather bureau forecasts below normal or normal temperatures for most of the eastern half of the nation during the next 30 days.

The bureau predicts below normal temperatures for the Pacific Northwest and northern Rocky Mountain states, and above normal in the southwest central plains and upper Great Lakes.

Subnormal rainfall was forecast for the southwestern states and the upper Great Lakes and east Gulf states. Above normal rainfall is expected in the Northwest and from the Appalachian Mountains to the Atlantic Coast. Elsewhere, rainfall will be near normal, the bureau said.

40 Per Cent of Festival Capacity Sold by Mid-July

Ashland – By mid-July, 40.1 of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival's 1963 full season capacity has been sold, Festival officials noted.

Opening night for the Shakespearean Festival is July 24 in Ashland.

Even though this leaves nearly 60 per cent of the total availability yet to be reserved, patrons have been urged by General Manager William Patton to complete their theater plans as early as possible. Opening night is sold out, but good seating remains for all other performances.

Current figures indicate that advance sales are still running ahead of last year and close to the all-time record year of 1961, when 47,734 persons filled the Elizabethan Theater to 99 per cent of its 42-night capacity.

Because 1963 productions will run for a longer period of time than ever before, 46 nights compared to 44 nights last year, it is impossible to parallel percentages with complete accuracy; but the totals do give valid evidence of brisk early sales, officials noted.

Compare to Past

At this same time in 1961, $52,753 worth of reservations had been made, $44.8 per cent of full-run capacity. Last year, in July, $43,849 had been tabulated, 34 per cent of the potential. Mail orders, Ashland window sales, and the branch box office network all indicate a rising interest in the Festival's 23rd season of Shakespeare under the Oregon stars.

Meantime, rehearsals have entered their final phases. Technical and costume crews are working around the clock to mount the four plays in time for four sucessive opening nights: July 24 through 27. Following the four premieres, the repertory will then rotate nightly until September 7.

Ticket inquiries may be made by writing "Shakespeare," Ashland, Ore., or by visiting a branch agency. Tickets in this area are available at Mann's Department store.

Sam Wilderman Becomes Democrat

Portland –(UPI)– Former state representative Sam Wilderman today changed his registration from Republican to Democrat.

Wilderman's switch climaxed a long feud within the Republican party which resulted in refusal of a Multnomah county convention to endorse him for reelection in 1962. He subsequently was beaten in the party primary.

Wilderman blamed the "John Birchers within the Republican party" for his difficulty.

"When the Birchers took over the Young Republicans at their convention in San Francisco, that was the final straw," Wilderman said.

He handled publicity for such Republican figures as the late Douglas McKay, Guy Cordon, Alf Landon and Thomas E. Dewey in Oregon.

Bees Work Hard To Air Condition Their Hot Hives

Actually, we have enjoyed mechanical air conditioning for a relatively short time. Mother Nature has used a pretty good system of cooling for uncounted centuries. She was using it ages before man appeared on this earth and is still doing so. The sign that reads, "It's 20 degrees cooler inside," is an inviting bit of information to a person when the temperature is high and a comfortable feeling when we enter such a place.

Visualize, for a moment, a beehive in the direct rays of a summer sun. Did you ever wonder how the tiny insects could and work in what would seem to be an oven? It would seem that such a heat would liquify the stored honey if nothing was done to bring down the temperature.

Perhaps you have never given it a thought. However, the bee keeper has made no provision for ventilating the hive as the bees themselves take care of this human oversight in a most satisfactory manner. Bees have been air conditioning their homes for millions of years.

Complicated Organization

Within the hive is a very complicated organization. The bee colony is systematically set up so that every individual of the swarm works for the betterment of the community. Divided into workers, guards, egg producers, and engineers, all personnel cooperate as one unit.

When the summer sun beats relentlessly on the hive, the sole purpose of the worker bees becomes the ventilation of the structure. It is their job to keep a current of fresh air moving to every part of the hive, all day and all night if necessary.

The stationary insects, the workers, fan their wings rapidly, creating a current of air with each line of bees pushing the air to the next line, until the air of the entire hive is in motion.

Thermostatic Control

As the temperature rises outside, the wing beat of the bee motors accelerates to a high crescendo. If the air without cools, the fanning diminishes. Therefore, the bees themselves maintain some sort of thermostatic control to maintain a constant temperature.

The work is arduous. The little fanners tire and wear out their wings; then others step into their places and fresh air continues to replace the stagnant air of the hive.

Many men have spent their lives studying the habits of the honey bee, and they have made many startling discoveries. There are hundreds of questions, however, pertaining to the history of bee life, which still do not have ready answers. These tiny insects, which are one of mankind's benefactors, possess many unknown characteristics which, if revealed, may assist future humans to better understand some of the mysteries of all living things.

There is no sign on the "marquee" of a beehive promising inside comfort, but we know that by a high degree of instinct or intelligence the busy little bee has solved the problem of air conditioning. They could truthfully advertise, if they wished, that it actually is many degrees cooler inside.

Committee To Hear Rights Testimony

Washington–(UPI)–Two cabinet members and Alabama Gov. George Wallace went before senators today to testify on President Kennedy's civil rights program.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was called to the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) for questioning on the full civil rights package before Congress.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz was lead-off witness for a subcommittee hearing on the President's bid to expand the manpower retraining act to help Negroes find jobs.

And Wallace, who Monday blasted the President's proposals and demanded he be voted out of the White House, returned to the Senate Commerce Committee for the second day. The committee is considering the program's public accommodations feature, which would guarantee free access to privately owned businesses open to the public.
