In response to enthusiasm on the part of parents and children alike, another series of painting classes for children will be offered this summer by the Rogue Valley Art association.

The classes, offered for the first time last summer, echo the increasing interest of valley residents in amateur art, it is noted.

Taught by Mrs. Janet Schmitz, 19 seven- to nine-year olds and 20 ten-to-twelve year olds are finishing a six-weeks' course in drawing and painting.

High point of the course will be a tea party and exhibit of the youngsters' work Tuesday, July 23, from 10 to 12 a.m. Mothers of present and prospective students, as well as others interested in children's art, are invited to attend the event, Rogue gallery, 220 West Main street, Medford.

Students for the forthcoming series of classes may be registered during the hours of the exhibit. A small fee for the series is charged for children of members of the art association and also for children of non-members.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Ralph White, Wenonah; Mrs. Roy Thompson, prophetess; Richard Singler, Powhatan; Mrs. Henry Dooms, keeper of records; Mrs. Floyd Lewis, collector of wampum; Mrs. Walter Wilson, keeper of wampum; Mrs. Charles Susich and Mrs. Jack Thomas, scouts; Mrs. Orval Hayes and Mrs. Lewis Thompson, runners; Mrs. David Athanas and Mrs. Josephine Hober, aides; Mrs. Alice Smith and Mrs. Ruby Hicks, councilors; Roland Wicker, Orval Hayes, Charles Dooms and Henry Dooms, warriors; Lewis Thompson and Walter Wilson, guards; Mrs. Noel Erskine, musician.

Appointed for the term were Mrs. Carrie Milnes, Mrs. Roy Thompson and Mrs. Charles Dooms, finance committee; Mr. Wicker, team captain.

Mrs. Roy Thompson, retiring Pocahontas, was presented a gift. Following the ceremonies the members held a picnic social.

The next meeting of the council will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Redman hall on Apple street.

Yreka Women Host Session In City Park

Yreka - About 50 women attended a session of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Yreka Methodist church held in the Yreka City park. Guest WSCS members were there from Montague, Hornbrook, Etna, Fort Jones and Gazelle.

District officers were Mrs. J. E. Walker, Chico, district president; Mrs. Franklin Maplesden, Etna; Mrs. Haven Martin, Anderson; Mrs. Henry Spencer, Chico; Mrs. George Joiner, Paradise; Mrs. A. L. Newman, Dunsmuir; and Mrs. Ray Penney and Mrs. James Sullivan, both Yreka.

Mrs. Harold Evett, Yreka WSCS president, presided. Mrs. Clarence Robinson was elected secretary to fill a vacancy in that office when Mrs. Robert Carter resigned. Brunch was served by the host group.

Potpourri...

Tuesday night we had dinner in Medford, but our companions were all from Grants Pass. Potpourri had dinner at The Colony at the invitation of Mrs. Dean Anderson who is venturing something new in style shows for the area, and since Mrs. Anderson is from Grants Pass, a large group came over for the event. Several of the women modeled.

Mrs. Anderson believes that style shows should also be staged for those who don't attend benefits (most of the fashion shows in the Rogue valley in the past have been given as benefits for groups or causes) and is attempting to interest restaurants in her idea. Mrs. Milner Larson served as her commentator Tuesday night, describing the fall clothing provided by Mann's store.

Our table companion to the right for the dinner and show turned out to be Mrs. Lewis Rose, the former Muriel Stocks of Medford, and to the left was Mrs. Mel Norrick. Mr. Rose was soloist, and we were interested to learn from his wife that this was the third time he had appeared in this role. Seems Mr. R. has been singing around the house for years so when their daughter, Sandra, was married last fall to James Rooks, Sandra insisted that her father sing at her wedding. He did, with considerable success.

Last month Mrs. Rose was installed worthy matron of Josephine chapter of the Star, and again his family insisted that he be the soloist. With three appearances to his credit, Mr. Rose will doubtless find himself singing at many events. He has a pleasing voice, sings as if he enjoyed it, and doesn't allow any small problems to bother him. Tuesday night Mr. Rose sang unaccompanied - we're not just sure how this came about - but he didn't seem to mind. What's more, he had to sing above the background music which the Colony management provides throughout the evening and which apparently once started, can't be stopped. And at one time Mr. Rose was singing, the background music was purring along and the commentator was talking. One just listened to what one preferred, and screened out the rest. Anyone who works in a news room is accustomed to a multiplicity of sound, so we got along pretty well.

Mr. Rose even sang a few snatches of song just for one or two of the models, which they seemed to feel was most complimentary. Young Gretchen Christie, known as Gigi, who modeled girls' clothing, seemed a bit nervous at this attention - she probably thought she'd be late for her next appearance. Gigi modeled a blue pleated skirt and white blouse for school wear, and a shift dress.

Since it was a coolish evening, the models in knits, pants and cardigans seemed in order. The sweaters shown were definitely long and bulky looking; interesting greens and Perzian blue were in the parade. A lot of comment followed when Mrs. John Browns modeled dark Capris with a shell top and a black and white swinging cape.

Coats, which made up the second half of the show, mostly seemed to have the little mink collars which Mrs. John F. Kennedy made fashionable after she wore one for her husband's inauguration as president. Some were dark, but one was in winter white. Miss Lorna Ullian modeled a suede leather coat and a big hat which turned out to be conversation pieces. Many coats have short sleeves which call for elegant gloves.

Others who modeled were Mrs. Jack Jantzen, Mrs. Robert Kellso, Mrs. Melvin Colvin and Mrs. Lee Walker.

This reporter goes to lots of fashion shows, but only a fraction of those presented. Kathleen Esp of Mann's reported a couple of days ago that her store alone has provided clothing for 28 fashion shows for the spring and summer season, and now they're starting all over again for fall. Of course, many other stores also cooperate on fashion showings for groups of all sorts.

Pal Peg and Potpourri have often wondered if more attention could be paid to fashion shows for business women. Maybe the gals at The Tribune aren't typical, but we have precious little time to shop. Potpourri for one would enjoy going to a noon fashion show given at a spot easily reached down town, run through efficiently so that everyone could get back to work in time and which showed clothing designed especially for the business woman. Tips Are Given For Newlyweds' Expenditures

By MARGERY McELHENY Chicago - (UPI) - Setting up the honeymoon cottage takes time and money.

Alexandra Potts, New York bridal consultant, estimates it costs $1,000 for major appliances, about $200 for floor coverings, and about $400 for bedroom furniture. On the other hand, the expenses are offset somewhat by the wedding gifts received by the couple. One bridal magazine reported that the average couple receives $1,000 worth of presents.

If your first home will be a furnished apartment, the presents from showers and the wedding will take care of most of the necessary equipment. You'll need two sets of dishes - earthenware and china. If you can afford only one set, select a fancy earthenware pattern.

Your budget also will determine how much flatware is used. If you are having a large wedding or can afford it, get both stainless steel for every day use and sterling for special occasions. A few holloware pieces, such as several platters, trays and bowls, are nice to have.

The linen closet should be furnished with mat sets, luncheon and dinner cloths with matching napkins, dish towels, at least three sets of sheets and pillowcases, one or two blankets, and perhaps an electric blanket.

For Kitchen For the kitchen, you'll need a coffee pot, covered saucepans, skillets, utensils, assorted baking pans, molds, cutlery and a can opener. If you're buying furniture, remember that your needs change swiftly in a short time, as do your tastes.

A silk upholstered sofa may suit your plans fine right now. But in three or four years, when your children have used it for everything from a play area to a kitchen, it will add up to a waste of money.
