Ships Collide In St. Lawrence; At Least 18 Dead

British Carrier Sinks 'Like A Stone'

Quebec City — (UPI) — A British ore carrier sank "like a stone" Saturday after a three-way collision in the St. Lawrence river in thick fog that badly damaged two other freighters.

Authorities said Saturday night that 18 crewmen aboard the ore carrier were killed, 16 were missing and 18 survived. The survivors were taken to hospitals in Quebec City and Baie St. Paul.

Most of the crew of 50 on the British-officered, 12,863-ton vessel Tritonica were Chinese from Formosa and Hong Kong.

Ship Sliced in Half

A crewman of the Tritonica said that the impact of the collision sliced the ship in half, and it went down in about eight minutes. Most of the crew was asleep; others jumped or were flung into the water.

The collision shortly before 3 a.m. (EDT) Saturday was the second maritime mishap in the St. Lawrence involving more than one vessel within a few hours.

Friday night, the 13,925-ton Swiss freighter Bariloche, heading for the Atlantic with a cargo of grain, bumped into two lake freighters in dense fog off the Isle of Orleans near Quebec. All three vessels went safely into Quebec harbor.

In Heavy Fog

Saturday's collision was reported by the skipper of the 6,153-ton British freighter Roonaugh Head, which was bound for England with a general cargo. The skipper radioed that his ship had collided in heavy fog with the Tritonica in the 31-mile wide St. Lawrence ship channel off Petit Riviere St. Francois, a village 40 miles east of Quebec.

A Spanish freighter hit the sinking ship a few minutes later.

The Roonaugh Head's hull was split but its captain decided after a preliminary examination to make his own way back to Quebec.

Reports reaching here said the sore, Quebec-bound Tritonica "sank like a stone" within a few minutes, giving its sleeping crew practically no time to escape.

Unions, Firms Agree to Pact

Portland — (UPI) — Representatives of the Pacific Coast Association of Pulp and Paper Manufacturers and two big unions reached agreement on a one-year contract.

The pact must be approved by members of the United Paperworkers and Paperworkers and the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

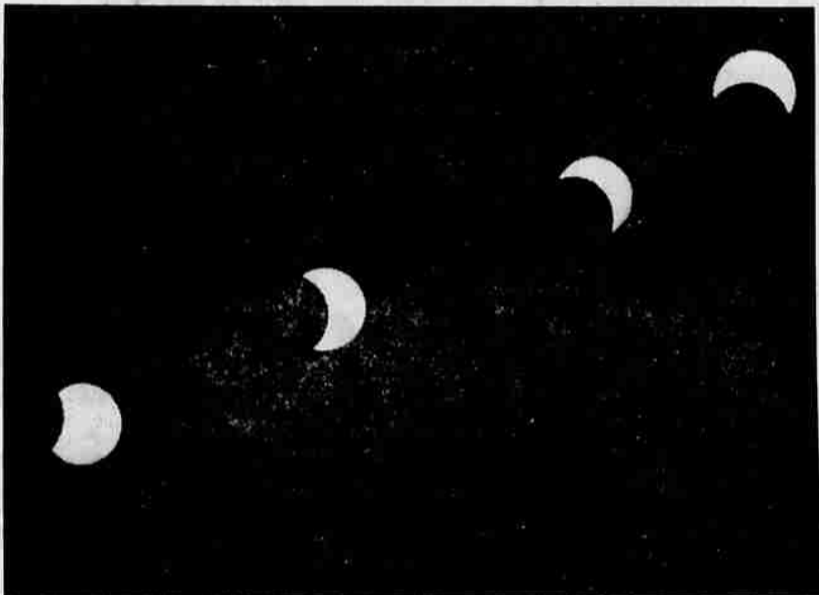

The members turned down another negotiated contract in a referendum vote last month. The unions represent 20,000 workers at 49 pulp and paper mills in Oregon, Washington and California.

The latest agreement, which came after 11 days of negotiations, includes a 7½-cent per hour general wage increase. "Cost of the overall package is in excess of 10 cents per hour," S. W. Grimes, managing director of the association, said.

INTERCEPTING SHADOW CONE

This artist's conception, looking south from a point in space over the Arctic Circle, shows National Geographic Society Douglas Aircraft Expedition's DC-8 jet transport intercepting shadow cone created by the Saturday solar eclipse high above Northern Canada. The DC-8 carried scientists from 13 organizations and their astronomical equipment for airborne observations and measurements of solar activity during the eclipse. (UPI)

PROGRESS OF MOON

The progress of the moon across the face of the sun as it appeared to St. Louisans watching the eclipse is shown in the above sequence photographed in St. Louis. The first picture was taken 20 minutes after the first contact was made at 3:29 p.m.; the second shot was taken at 4:15 p.m.; and the third was taken at 4:42 p.m. when the partial eclipse was at its fullest, 67.1 per cent. The last exposure was taken 20 minutes after the maximum eclipse as seen in St. Louis. The percentage of eclipse seen in Medford was 50 per cent. (UPI)

Millions Watch Celestial Show As Moon Passes In Front of Sun

The world's astronomers and countless millions of others were kept guessing all afternoon-weather conditions on both sides of the globe were poor-until, at the last moment, clouds parted and they were treated to one of the most spectacular of space shows.

"It was fantastic. It's a sight I'd wait years to see," exclaimed 17-year-old Allan Fries, a Chicago schoolboy.

He, hundreds of other persons and 20 teams of scientists were atop Cadillac Mountain at Bar Harbor, Maine, where the eclipse was total. It was the best vantage point in the U. S. from which to view the phenomenon.

At the moment of totality, when the moon had obliterated the sun, the latter's corona was visible flaring into the depths of space with a flashing brilliance.

Stars were visible, as was the planet Venus. Flashes of blue-white light streaked out from the edge of the sun as the moon crept slowly across its face.

The eclipse was first visible in northern Japan — where it was Sunday morning. For the Japanese, it was the final total solar eclipse of this century, and it lasted only 29 seconds.

At Bar Harbor, the eclipse began at 4:35 p. m. (edt). Totality came at 5:42.

The eclipse lasted about two hours.

Astronaut Scott Carpenter observed the spectacle for 142 seconds aboard a jetliner streaking 8 miles above Fort Dawson in Canada's north-west territory.

Runnersup in order were: Miss Denmark, blonde Aino Korwa of Copenhagen; Miss Ireland, Marlene McKeown of Belfast; Miss Philippines, Lalaine Bennett, of Quezon City, and Miss Korea, Kim Myung-Ja, of Seoul.

She was crowned by outgoing queen Norma Nolan of Argentina before about 5,000 cheering onlookers in the Miami Beach Convention hall and a nationwide television audience.

Full service was restored today in the main canal of the Eagle Point Irrigation district following completion of repairs Saturday.

Service was interrupted Wednesday for the second time within a week when a break occurred in the canal. The earlier break was repaired last Monday.

Crews from Tru-Mix Concrete installed a concrete lining in the portion of that canal that had been damaged by earth movements. A "Gunite" process, a method of applying concrete pneumatically, was used.

Test Ban Accord Said 'In Sight'; Sino-Soviet Peace Talks Collapse

Chinese Leave; Split Appears Irreconcilable

Defense Treaty May Be Scrapped

Moscow — (UPI) — The Sino-Soviet peace talks collapsed in final failure Saturday and the Chinese delegation returned to Peking still convinced that war and bloody revolution are the only way to achieve the aims of Communism.

Although the Soviet Union refused to budge from Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's avowed policy of "peaceful co-existence," the Soviet leader attended a farewell dinner Saturday night for the Chinese "comrades" in an outward gesture of goodwill.

Irreconcilable

But the split between the two Communist giants appeared irreconcilable, marked by bitter exchanges of recrimination that divides the Communist world into those who follow Khrushchev's line and those who espouse the more warlike line of Mao Tse-Tung.

What effect the split may have on the world may not be known for decades. But in the immediate future the prospects appeared to be for an easing of tension between the Soviet Union and the West.

Meanwhile in London, well-informed Communist diplomats were reported to have said that the Soviet Union is threatening to scrap its 13-year-old mutual defense treaty with China.

The treaty is the backbone of the Sino-Soviet alliance and calls for the Soviet Union to come to the aid of Peking if China is attacked, and vice-versa.

Made in 1950

The "treaty of mutual assistance and friendship" was concluded in Moscow early in 1950 with Communist leader Mao Tse-Tung and was accompanied by pledges of eternal friendship.

The Communist diplomatic sources said the Kremlin made it clear to the Chinese it will not consider itself bound by the treaty provision because of Peking's rejection of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's policy of peaceful co-existence.

Brazilian Named Miss Universe

Miami Beach, Fla. — (UPI) — Eighteen-year-old Ieda Maria Vargas, a dark-haired candidate from Porto Alegre, Brazil, with a cheering section all of her own, was named Miss Universe of 1963 Saturday night.

The brown-eyed college coed was the first winner from her country, and one of three Latin American beauties among the 15 semifinalists in the week-long pageant to pick "the prettiest girl in the world."

She was crowned by outgoing queen Norma Nolan of Argentina before about 5,000 cheering onlookers in the Miami Beach Convention hall and a nationwide television audience.

Runnersup in order were: Miss Denmark, blonde Aino Korwa of Copenhagen; Miss Ireland, Marlene McKeown of Belfast; Miss Philippines, Lalaine Bennett, of Quezon City, and Miss Korea, Kim Myung-Ja, of Seoul.

Service Resumed In EP District

Full service was restored today in the main canal of the Eagle Point Irrigation district following completion of repairs Saturday.

TUNNEL'S NORTH PORTAL

The new Randolph Collier tunnel on Highway 199, 3½ miles south of the Oregon state line, was dedicated in ceremonies Saturday afternoon attended by more than 2,000 persons. This view of the north portal was taken prior to the tunnel's completion from the former route. The old highway, to be maintained by Del Norte county, was 340 feet higher than the new tunnel and its approaches and has 128 more curves. The curves being eliminated are the equivalent of slightly more than 20 complete circles. (California Division of Highways photo).

Unity of 3 States Cited At Collier Tunnel Opening

By PEGGYANN HUTCHINSON
Mail Tribune Staff Writer

Oregon Mountain, Calif. — The unity of three states working to complete the Winnemucca-to-the-Sea highway and the men of vision who were responsible for getting the highway built were cited by Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) yesterday afternoon at the dedication of the Randolph Collier tunnel here.

Engle reviewed the history of highways through the Oregon mountains and over Hazelview summit and of Senator Collier's battle to get the 1,835-foot tunnel built. Collier is the California senator for Siskiyou and Del Norte counties.

More than 2,000 persons attended the festivities held at the south portal of the tunnel. Events started with a barbecue followed by entertainment by the Grants Pass Cavemen, Winnemucca, Nev., Chiefs and the Crescent City Arabs.

'The Great Builder'

Prior to Collier pulling the string attached to the lever of the piece of road machinery so the jaws of the scissor cut the ribbon, opening the tunnel, Engle called the senator for whom the tunnel is named "the great builder." He said that many will be in his debt for years to come.

The ribbon cut was similar to that used last September at Doherty Slide, east of Lakeview. The three strands were gold for California, silver for Nevada and green for the forests of Oregon.

Prior to the ribbon cutting, Engle pulled a gold and blue curtain, unveiling the bronze plaque dedicating the tunnel to Collier.

Unity was also stressed by the three speakers representing the governors of Oregon, California, and Nevada.

State Rep. John Dellenback, Medford, noted the great need for improved communications, calling the tunnel a long step in getting people from one place to another to communicate ideas. He mentioned that northern California and southern Oregon have always been close, but the tunnel will tie the two even closer together.

Robert Warren, director of the Nevada department of economic development, spoke for Nevada's governor, Grant Sawyer, the only governor who had attended the dedication ceremonies last September. Warren invited all to visit the other end of the highway, stating that the highway will open a new era of neighborliness and a new avenue of commerce.

Eclipse 'Arranged'

Robert Bradford, director of the transportation agency of California and chairman of the state's highway commission, read a letter from Gov. Edmund Brown, commending Collier for his state-wide work on behalf of highways.

With tongue in cheek he explained that Gov. Brown had contacted President Kennedy to see if something special couldn't be done to honor Collier. Kennedy, according to the story, called the federal space agency who arranged an eclipse of the sun.

Among the persons introduced were members of the county courts of Humboldt county, Nev., Lake, Klamath, Jackson, Josephine in Oregon, and Del Norte in California; Sen. Lynn Newberry, Ashland; Sen. E. D. Potts and Representative Sidney Bazett, both Grants Pass; Sen. R. Chapman, Coos Bay, and Arizona Sen. Ben Arnold. Numerous California legislators attended, since a joint meeting of the assembly and senate interim committee on transportation was held Friday in Crescent City.

Sonic Booms to Be Heard in Area

A number of sonic booms will be heard in the Medford area during the next three weeks, according to an announcement from Kingsley Field, Klamath Falls. Aircraft from the field will be operating over the Medford, Grants Pass and Ashland region.

F-100 fighters, scrambling for the Pacific area, will exceed the speed of sound during the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. They will attack simulated enemy bombers over the ocean and coastal regions in preparation for an Air Force evaluation of the 408th Fighter group early next month.

The evaluations are held periodically to test an organization's proficiency in defending its assigned area of responsibility.

Numerous other officials from the three states were also introduced.

Congressman Don Clausen, representing the First District, brought greetings from Senator Thomas Kuchel and Congressman Robert Duncan, Medford.

The new tunnel eliminates 123 curves on Highway 199 and is located 3½ miles south of the Oregon state line. The 400 foot cut at the south portal is the deepest in the state of California.

Symbolic Vehicles

The first vehicle through the tunnel following the ribbon cutting included Senator Collier as a passenger. The first commercial vehicle was a Mitchell Brothers' freight truck, loaded with redwood lumber and plywood out of Eureka, bound for Seattle, Wash. It symbolized opening the highway to commercial travel and its value to lumber, Del Norte county's leading industry.

California state highway department officials said that the old curving highway will be maintained by the county, since California law prohibits the state from maintaining parallel highways.

Final striping of the new highway was completed Saturday evening after the dedication crowd left the area. The site at the south portal where the ceremonies were held was the dump for earth removed from the tunnel during its construction.

GOLDWATER PLANS BILL

Washington — (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said Saturday he would introduce legislation to ban so-called union "featherbedding" on railroads and airlines on the same basis that other industries are covered by other labor laws.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., cautioned Saturday that it is "too early to be certain" just what will be the Senate reaction to a partial testing agreement.

But Mansfield said the Moscow negotiations have been conducted in an area which offers "the optimum chance for approval" of a treaty by the Senate. He commented that the concept of a ban on tests in the atmosphere, in space and underwater has a broad base of Senate support.

Integration strategists in Jackson, Miss., where riot-trained policemen rushed to headoff a match by 150 young Negroes Friday night, met behind closed doors to discuss whether to resume full-scale protests that were halted after the slaying last month of Negro leader Medgar Evers.

Eight pickets were arrested in front of a Danville, Va., department store and four Negroes who sought service at a shopping center lunch counter in Shreveport, La., were arrested for questioning.

Guerrilla-trained National Guard reinforcements were rushed into Cambridge, Md., where Negroes promised new demonstrations last night in defiance of a ban imposed when limited martial law was reimposed on the racially tense fishing town.

Russians, Others Say Test Talks Are 'Going Well'

Favorable Senate Reaction Forecast

Moscow — (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said Saturday night "agreement is in sight" on a partial nuclear test ban. Negotiators were reported to have begun working on the actual treaty draft.

Khrushchev, at his jovial best at a reception and farewell party for visiting Hungarian communist leader Janos Kadar, told newsmen, "The talks are going well. No obstacles have been encountered so far. If they continue as they have so far, agreement is in sight."

Khrushchev joked and quipped with W. Averell Harriman, chief American negotiator, and with Lord Hallsham, Britain's Minister of Science.

Harriman declined to comment on progress of the talks, which resume Monday, but quipped, "I hope to be home in time for the World Series."

Britisher Confirms

Hallsham, asked by a correspondent whether the general impression the talks were going well was correct, replied: "The general impression is right."

One more optimistic comment came from Alexei Adzhubel, editor of the newspaper Izvestia and son-in-law of Khrushchev. He told reporters, "The talks are going well."

Earlier, high diplomatic sources had reported "continuing progress" in the talks which began last Monday and a brief communique indicated the treaty-drafting stage had been reached. Observers believed the agreement would be ready for initialing early next week.

In Washington, indications were that efforts to get the U.S. Senate to ratify a partial test ban agreement might meet with favorable response.

Some opposition is to be expected. However, elimination of underground testing from the proposals under discussion in Moscow greatly enhanced the chances for the needed two-thirds vote of Senate approval.

Senate criticism of earlier test ban proposals centered on the adequacy of techniques for detecting underground nuclear explosions and identifying possible secret weapons tests conducted underground.

Mansfield Cautious

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., cautioned Saturday that it is "too early to be certain" just what will be the Senate reaction to a partial testing agreement.

But Mansfield said the Moscow negotiations have been conducted in an area which offers "the optimum chance for approval" of a treaty by the Senate. He commented that the concept of a ban on tests in the atmosphere, in space and underwater has a broad base of Senate support.

National Guardsmen Use Tear Gas to Handle Cambridge Mob

United Press International National Guardsman used tear gas to stop a shoving match with Negroes in Cambridge, Md., Saturday night and hooded Ku Klux Klansmen attacked a negro photographer in Savannah, Ga.

The unidentified Negro photographer was trying to get a picture of Imperial Klan Wizard Robert Sheldon addressing a Klan rally in a public park in Savannah.

About 15 Klansmen and spectators pounced on him and struck him several times before the police riot squad rushing the park moved in and escorted the Negro out of danger. Sheldon used the public address system to hold the milling crowd in check.

In Cambridge, Negro leaders were meeting with National Guard Commander George C. Gelston when a few Negroes—described by Gelston as "just a couple of drunks"—began pushing at the guard troopers.

One tear gas shell was lobbed and Negro leaders rushed to the scene and helped end the episode. They called off a demonstration which the troops had been ordered to prevent.

In Shreveport, La., helmeted police patrolled two stores following reports that new protests would be held. Fifty sit-in demonstrators were arrested Saturday and Friday in the north Louisiana stronghold of segregation.

Thirty-eight Negroes were arrested in Ocala, Fla., when they refused to obey police orders to end their picketing at a county jail. They were protesting the earlier arrest of an integration leader.

Integration strategists in Jackson, Miss., where riot-trained policemen rushed to headoff a match by 150 young Negroes Friday night, met behind closed doors to discuss whether to resume full-scale protests that were halted after the slaying last month of Negro leader Medgar Evers.

Eight pickets were arrested in front of a Danville, Va., department store and four Negroes who sought service at a shopping center lunch counter in Shreveport, La., were arrested for questioning.
