Slides of Camping Trips Set

The Arm Chair Travelers at the Senior Activity center will see an unusual program Monday, July 29, at 1 p.m. It will be given by Jerry Igo, Jacksonville, a leader in the Trail camp program of the Oregon Conference of the Methodist church.

Mr. Igo will show colored slides of the three trail camp trips he conducted — one down the Rogue River trail to Agness from Grave Creek bridge and the boat trip on to Gold Beach, a trip to the Three Fingers Loop north of Santiam Pass, and the third to the Wallowa mountains in northeastern Oregon.

The campers on these trips which each cover a week's time, vary in age from high school seniors to retired persons. The trips are available to any one interested each summer.

Mr. Igo plans to take a camping pack to show the equipment used.

Retired persons and especially those who are newcomers to Oregon are invited to attend in order to see first hand the opportunities available in this area for enjoyment of outdoor life.

The committee in charge of these weekly programs, Dr. Frank Roberts, Mrs. Karl Knutson and Mrs. Judd Greenman, state that the programs planned for August will be as varied as those shown in July.

Members of the oil painting class are reminded that there are only two more Tuesday class meetings before the two day art show to be held at Lithia park in Ashland on Saturday and Sunday, August 10 and 11.

The class will exhibit as a group and will be guests of the Southern Oregon Society of Artists who conduct this annual Greenwich Village show during the Shakespearean Festival.

The Senior Center orchestra, which held two meetings last week, will convene as usual Thursday afternoon, August 1.

The Saturday bridge group will play from 1 to 4 p.m. on August 3.

Attendance at the center through July for the four activities which have been carried on during the summer each week, has kept above the 200 mark, according to the center committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hitt

Methodist Rites Held For Couple

A ceremony held recently in the Methodist church at Gilchrist, Ore., married Miss Dorothy Ann Burmeister to Arthur D. Hitt.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Burmeister, 539 Pennsylvania avenue, Medford, is employed by the Medford School district as a teacher, and Mr. Hitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hitt, Gilchrist, Ore., is a senior at Southern Oregon college.

The afternoon ceremony was performed by the Rev. Milton Nelson on Saturday, July 20 at 2 o'clock.

For her wedding the bride wore a floor length gown of silk nylon organza over net and taffeta fashioned with a fitted lace bodice. Her silk illusion veil was held by a crown of seed pearls. She carried an heirloom handkerchief given her by the bridegroom's mother, and a bouquet of gardenias and a white orchid. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Linda Burmeister, a sister, was maid of honor. The best man was Tyra Hitt, brother of the bridegroom, and serving as ushers were Chester Emery and James Sample, both Gilchrist.

The church was decorated with white gardenias and stock.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church hall. Members of the Woman's Society of Christian service were in charge.

The couple will live in Gilchrist for the summer, where Mr. Hitt is employed with the U.S. Forest service.

For their trip to the coast, the bride wore a white two piece ensemble with red accessories.

The bride attended Mansfield State college and Southern Oregon college.

WORK SMARTER — NOT HARDER

By BERNICE STRAWN
Oregon State University

"Too often we find ourselves in a conflict over whether to do the urgent or the important." Dr. June Bricker, executive director, American Home Economics association, Washington, D.C., made this comment on her recent Oregon visit. And we'll grant you do have to do the urgent most of the time. But as Dr. Bricker said, we're inclined to side step some new and important issues because we're "too busy."

Sifting busy work out from the really important jobs is another way to work smarter, not harder. Having every inch of your house spick and span might be classed as "busy work" one day, but really important for some special occasion.

Actively working on a committee in the support of better schools may be important for your children's future, while routine household chores seem urgent

Why do clothes wear out so fast? Tests show that a shirt can be washed 100 times without collar-fraying if it's not worn between sudings. But if the shirt is worn a day in between each washing, the same kind of shirt starts to fray at the collar after about 35 washings. Body friction rather than washing action is responsible.

Looks like it's the wear part of wash and wear that we have to blame.

Your pretty swim suit will look fresh all summer and last longer, too, if it's rinsed in cool water after each use. Also, wash it frequently with warm water and detergent. Even if you don't go near the water, body oils left in the suit can weaken the fabric. Pool water chemicals, sea water, sand and salt dull some colors and shorten the life of the suit.

Don't let insects chase you away from outdoor fun. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists have developed a repellent now available in ready-to-use containers.

This chemical scares off the better known biting insects—mosquitoes, ticks, chiggers. It won't hurt your skin, or cotton or wool fabrics, but don't use it on synthetics. It may affect some paints and plasters. Check instruction on the can.

This product, commonly called deet, but sold under several trade names, has little or no odor and doesn't leave a greasy feeling on the skin.
