

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wainwright

Wedding Ceremony Held In Grants Pass Church

Grants Pass - In a setting of roses and croft lilies, Ruth Bertram Muller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bertram, 911 West 11th street, Medford, became the bride of Frank Wainwright, son of the late Mrs. Dora Coy. The ceremony was held July 6 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Grants Pass.

The double ring rites were read at 7:30 o'clock by Bishop Edwin E. Smith. Wedding music was furnished by Mrs. Carol N. White and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Zimmerman.

The bride wore a wool suit of powder blue with a white lace blouse. The jacket was embroidered with blue beading and sequins. Her jewelry was a gift of the bridegroom.

Attending the couple were the bride's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lee Muller, Coquille, Ore. Ushers were Thomas A. Morgan and Ray D. McDonald Sr.

At the reception in the recreation hall of the church, Mrs. Thomas Morgan cut the wedding cake, which she had baked and decorated. Mrs. Calvin Baker and Mrs. Alvin Lisonee served the cake. The bride's mother, Mrs. Henry Bertram, poured the punch assisted by Mrs. Davis B. Stanger, Mrs. Marjorie Child, and Mrs. Charlotte Tryon. Helping at the gift table were Mrs. Mae Lee and Miss Pearl Ann McDonald. Mrs. Stella Armstrong was in charge of the guest book.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Dennis R. Hassell and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Neilson, Ashland; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Peacock, Central Point; Mr. and Mrs. Arlie S. Dollard, Rio Dell, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Thompson and Marlene, Yoncalla, Ore., the bride's father; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Bertram, the bride's brother and wife, all Medford; and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bertram; the bride's brother and wife, Eugene.

Relatives of the bridegroom attending were Mervyn, Michael and Miss Coralie Fawcett, all of Medford.

After the reception the couple left for Sweet Home where he is employed with Tom Lillibio Construction company. Mrs. Wainwright has been employed with the Simebaugh Oil company Grants Pass for the past nine years.

Last summer the Otto Frohnmayers of Medford and their long-time friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Spaulding of Portland, decided that it would be interesting to give a party in Medford in July, 1963, the night before the opening of the Oregon Shakespearean festival. Josephine Spaulding and Marabel Frohnmayer are both musicians; the former has been singing since school days and Mrs. Frohnmayer is a pianist.

The Frohnmayer's daughter, Mira, would be home from her studies at the New England Conservatory of Music, their sons, David and John would be home - David from Oxford university in England where he is a Rhodes scholar - and many family members and friends would doubtless be in the valley for the opening of the Shakespearean festival. It would be a perfect time to give a musicale, they decided, and have their families all gathered together.

The idea sort of grew as time went along. Mrs. Frohnmayer confessed, and while the party was largely, the hosts were rather wishing that the gardens could have accommodated more friends and neighbors. But what host or hostess has not said "I wish I could have invited more people."

The photographer-reporter echoed this idea when picture-taking time came. With hosts, musicians, guests, relatives, judges, an ex-congressman, a well-known athletic coach and all sorts of visiting VIP's all over the garden, who to "shoot" was reduced to the business of who arrived first and could be located before the program began.

Mira Frohnmayer, a brunette, looked stunning in a fuchsia pink chiffon frock with swirling skirt. Mrs. Spaulding also wore chiffon, her gown being printed with large, gay flowers, and Mrs. Frohnmayer wore a softly draped beige frock. With our mind on the cold breezes and the business of spike heels getting caught in the patio paving stones and gouging up the lawn, Potpourri wore a warm knit dress and walking shoes. As soon as the other guests began to arrive, we immediately wished we had chosen to be dressed up instead of merely comfortable. Pretty summer frocks were all over the place and we saw half a hundred pairs of chic slippers.

This reporter saw something entirely new to us in the way of an evening wrap, and what's more, we saw two at the same time. Both Mrs. Spaulding and Mrs. Paul Geddes, who with her husband was down from Roseburg for the party, were wearing wraps made of soft, thin white leather, fashioned cardigan style with long sleeves and decorated with masses of crystal beads, pearls, sequins and other glitter. Both women said the little leather wraps are ideal for such occasions, since they really are cozy and yet look very gay and party-fied.

Mrs. Spaulding looked closely at Mrs. G. and said "I almost didn't recognize you - isn't your hair different?" Mrs. Geddes, who always looks chic and fashionable, laughed delightedly and said "Good heavens, I've been a blonde, a red head and a couple of shades of grey in recent months. Now I'm back to brown. It's great fun."

This energetic mother of six daughters who has been in Medford often and has spoken at political events and for Republican women, had news of her eldest daughter, Gayle Geddes Caldwell. Mrs. Caldwell and her husband are now living in southern California and Gayle is singing with the New Christie Minstrels. The group appears on the Andy Williams television show and makes records for Columbia. Mrs. Geddes explained that the first Christie Minstrels had been organized long ago in the time when Stephen Foster's songs were the rage of the land, and had helped to make the composer famous. Now the New Christie Minstrels are becoming well-known for their singing of folk songs and other material.

Mrs. Geddes, herself a musician, continues active in Roseburg and does two television shows a week for the Roseburg station.

Among the guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Kirkland West and their youngest son, Bruce, who just about matches his imposing father in height and weight and who recently came home from college wearing a full, bushy beard.

When we couldn't resist a comment about the bearded young giant Dr. West said "You should have been at Rotary this noon. I took Bruce as a guest and introduced him as my son who was a little shaver when we first moved to Medford and who is still a little shaver. He had the last word, though - he acknowledged the introduction by looking around the room, noting the bald Rotarian heads and remarking that a little extra hair was needed in that crowd." O.S.

Push-Button Containers Popular American Items

By PATRICIA McCORMICK
New York - (UPI) - Americans are pushovers for the push-button way of life. Proof: we bought more than one billion push-button Aerosol containers of all sorts of things in 1962. The Chemical Manufacturers Association which keeps track of such things, says the billion unit mark is a record.

But more interesting than the statistics: the variety of things - including oddments - put up in Aerosol containers. They range from perfume to attract males to brews aimed at repelling animals and insects. In between are such things as food, chimney soot chasers, and even-spray-on gloves.

One doesn't have to worry about losing the latter. You just wash 'em off when it's time to bare the mitts.

Inventory
To further illustrate the variety, take a look at what's listed under "A" in spray-on products. The inventory: -Adhesives, air sanitizer, analgesic, anesthetic, antiseptic sprays, anti-fog, anti-fungal, anti-glare, anti-static, anti-tarnish, artists' varnish and fixatives, athlete's foot medicine, and athlete's grip spray (for better grip).

-Auto-polish and wax, auto undercoatings, and auto deodorants. The latter gives an old car that new car odor, fooling the proboscis of a prospective buyer.

Some of the more interesting products include spray on fire alarm devices, spray-on fish lure, girdle spray. The latter's designed to help m'lady ease into her corset.

But that's not all. You're just not with the push-button way of life unless you use spray-on mattress freshener, petticoat stiffener spray and Aerosol tire inflator and, of course-spray-on ointment to treat tree wounds.

The association said push-button grooming is a major reason for the Aerosol industry's steady growth.

Virtually all top perfume and cologne manufacturers now package their scents the spray way. Some containers even have metered valves for spraying just the right amount of fragrance.

Other Aerosol grooming aids include nail polish removers and polish driers, nylon stocking run preventive, shampoos, pink shaving cream, deodorants, talcum powders.

More and more foods also are being put up in Aerosol containers. There's a garlic spray to add just the right amount of tangy flavor to French bread or split hard rolls.

Among the latest food preparations in pressure-packaged units: cheese spreads. They are dispensed in a flowing ribbon of cheese, permitting the goodie to be spread easily on hors d'oeuvres, hamburgers, hot dogs, apple pie.

The Aerosol industry, by the way, had its beginning during World War II. American troops in the Pacific theater needed protection from mosquitoes and disease-spreading insects.

The U.S. department of agriculture developed an insecticide spray in a pressurized container. This, in turn, reduced the mosquitoes and other pesky bugs.

The incidence of malaria was reduced.

Demonstration Of Painting Held for Group

Mrs. L. C. McMahan opened the recent meeting of the Southern Oregon Society of Artists with a demonstration of her methods in painting some of the players in the Shakespearean festival.

She made on-the-spot sketches of various players while they were rehearsing and then painted in oil from one of these before the group. The clown from "Love's Labor's Lost" was her subject for the demonstration.

Lyle Harrell, Jacksonville, selected paintings to be hung in the Public Library of Medford and Jackson county during the next three months. Works by Mrs. Bess Mitchell, Mrs. John Pietsch, Mrs. T. E. Knackstedt, Mrs. Richard Mole and Mrs. Ralph Hixson will be shown during August. Mr. Harrell explained the reasons for his selections and gave helpful pointers on color, composition and subject matter.

The next show to be sponsored by SOSA will be held in Lithia park, Ashland, August 10 and 11, and several guest artists will be invited to participate.

Mrs. Robert Moore has five oil paintings on display at the Medford airport for a month and this exhibit will be followed by paintings done by various members of SOSA.

Refreshments for the meeting were served by Mrs. Wallace Neece, Mrs. Barbara Moser and Mrs. Moore.
