Patent Office One Of Busiest Places In Nation's Capital

New York—(UPI)—One of the busiest offices in the nation's capital, summer heat or winter chill, is the U.S. Patent Office, today striving to keep abreast of at least 100 times the volume of work it handled a century ago.

Where ever industry functions, particularly in the fast-moving and highly competitive electronic and chemical fields, someone in a research and development job attempts to keep an eye on patents affecting his particular area.

Ordinarily, he will use the Official Gazette, a weekly publication of the patent office and one for which there is a regular charge. In its bulky 500 pages a week there are abstracts of the 1,000 or so patents which may be issued in the average week.

Third Form
Or, a company may put in a regular order for any patents issued in a particular class. When it comes to digging back, it may employ a third form of discovery, in a patent search.

The American Management Association, in its Management Review magazine published earlier this year, devoted an article to the value of the patent office to management, and noted that many companies do not know how to use its facilities to their best advantage.

It quoted a communications company executive as suggesting that open minded executives make a personal tour of the patent office to get a first hand look at the resources available there—a store of more than 3 billion patents, divided into 300 main classes and 62,000 sub classes.

A New York publishing house, Rowan & Littlefield, Inc., now has made a further contribution to patent research with the beginning of an ambitious project for a catalogue of patents which would bring together in classified form the patent information included in more than 5,000 issues of the official gazette.

It also plans to publish an index of patents issued between 1790, when the patent office got under way, and 1960. Each unit is planned to contain patent numbers by class and sub class, cross-referenced patent numbers and separate listings of patents by title, subject and number.

Four volumes of the national catalog now published list all patents filed with the U.S. Patent Office in 1961 in the electrical and chemical fields. They are shown in the form of one major claim and one drawing.

Goldwater Warns On Futility of Pact With Russia

New York—(UPI)—Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), Monday warned of the futility of a non-aggression pact with Russia and said such an agreement would be "sheer stupidity."

Goldwater, regarded as a top contender for the GOP presidential nomination next year, made the comment during an address here at the annual convention of the Beauty and Barber Supply Institute.

Goldwater referred to speculation that such an agreement would be sought if the test ban treaty signed in Moscow were ratified by the United States Senate.

On the subject of the test ban pact itself, Sen. Goldwater insisted he was maintaining an "open mind" before deciding whether to vote for ratification. Previously, he was reported opposed to the treaty.

He stressed the treaty would not prevent a nuclear war and called the pact "valueless" in view of the announced intentions of France and Communist China to continue nuclear test.

Goldwater said he probably would make up his mind on ratification when the Joint Chiefs of Staff take a position on the matter, adding that "the attitude of the military is most important."

He was critical of the new treaty because of its failure to ban underground testing, and he said this would give the Soviets an opportunity to continue secret testing. The treaty calls for a ban on testing in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

Freeman, Nikita Share Peace Pipe

Moscow—(UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev shared a peace pipe with visiting Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman in a Kremlin meeting Tuesday.

Freeman ended a tour of the Soviet Union with a meeting with Khrushchev, also attended by U. S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler. During the meeting Freeman, a former Minnesota governor, presented Khrushchev a Minnesota Indian peace pipe.

"Allow me to present it to you as a symbol of our common desire for peace in the world," Freeman told the Soviet leader.

Khrushchev gratefully accepted the pipe, telling Freeman he does not smoke but welcomes it as a symbol. After Freeman told him how Indians sealed peace agreements by passing the pipe around, Khrushchev held it close to his mouth but did not put the pipe to his lips or attempt to smoke it.

The pipe ceremony took place at the start of the meeting. Newsmen were allowed to watch it but were ushered out when the 10-minute talks began.

Freeman arrived in the Soviet Union July 14. He has been touring farms and agricultural stations.

Coast Guard Probes Drowning

Portland—(UPI)—The Coast Guard has begun an investigation into the drowning of a 2-year-old boy at Kalama, Wash., Sunday.

Steven Anthony Aldrich, Kalama, perished Sunday when he was swept into the Columbia river by a large wave from the wake of the freighter Philippine Mail, bound upriver for Portland.

The child's body was recovered Monday by a scuba diver.

Capt. Emery H. Joyce, officer in charge of the Coast Guard investigation, said an opinion would be released shortly.

Appearing at a hearing here Monday were David Lani, the helmsman; Wayne E. Lien, third mate and watchman on the bridge; Roy Morgan, second mate, who also was on the bridge; Capt. Jack E. Smith, the pilot, and Capt. Eddo H. Feyen, the ship's master.

Capt. Feyen estimated the ship's speed was about nine miles an hour. He said the mariner hull on the Philippine Mail produces a greater suction than other types of hulls and they have "greater trouble with their wash" than other hulls.

Morgan testified that the pilot had noticed the wash was "a little high" and told him to slow down.
