

KIMMY SAYS—

Editor's note: This column is written by a Medford teen ager who has chosen the name of "Kimmy." Other teen agers in the area—and, who knows, perhaps even parents baffled at their offspring's behavior—are invited to write to "Kimmy," in care of the Mail Tribune, for suggestions or advice on manners, dress, behavior and similar subjects.

Dear Kimmy: I want to know this boy's name. How can I ask him? I am very shy.

Nameless: Dear Nameless: Glad to know you, very shy! Just ask him what his name is the next time you talk to him. There is absolutely nothing to be shy about, when asking a person his name.

What do you think moustaches were invented for??

Dear Kimmy: I always squirt boys that say "Hi" and whistle. What can I do?

M.G.M.: Dear M.G.M.: Get a bigger squirt gun and stretch him! Incidentally, why don't you like boys to whistle at you?

Dear Kimmy: How can a girl get an old boyfriend back?

Old Timer: Dear Old Timer: Show him you like him again. And, again, tell some of your friends. If there was hard feelings left that last time you were going together, don't plan on this being an easy experience.

If he likes you again, enough to go with you, he'll come running back to you in due time.

Dear Kimmy: My problem is I'm shy.

Somebody: Dear Somebody: Shy of what? Oh, I'm sorry, too.

Dear Kimmy: A boy, whom I like very well, just moved to Kansas City, Mo. He told me that I was free to date anyone I liked, but that he wouldn't date anyone but me. What should I do? He's coming back in a couple of years.

Lonely: Dear Lonely: Do what he said to do. Go out with other boys. If you really like him very much, just always keep him in mind. I know it will be hard to go out with other boys when you do like this other fellow so much, but just be glad that he didn't tell you that he didn't want you to go out with anyone. This is getting a little too selfish on his part. If he does not want to date anyone else, that's fine. He must really think a lot of you if he feels this way. If you would stop and realize it, you're a real lucky girl!

By the way, when he does come back, make it a time he will never forget. You both deserve it.

Dear Kimmy: My stepmother is ruining my life. I'm fifteen. I'm seldom ever allowed to date and when I am, the boy has to meet unbelievable standards. What can I do?

Feels like Cinderella:

Dear Cinderella: Come now, it can't be as bad as all that. I think your stepmother has a good case of "over protectiveness." You must realize that it is very important and necessary to give as much love and understanding as possible to your stepmother, and she in turn, must do the same. In fact, every child should know this, whether he has a stepmother or not. There are sometimes love the feeling that they are really needed and wanted in the family circle.

As far as your boyfriend, this is something that you will have to talk over with your mother. Explain to her what you just want to go out and have a good time.

With the stepmother, help you find a way to live!

Dear Kimmy: When a girl is getting interested towards you, how can you tell if she's really serious?

With Kimmy: If you think you would like to be interested in her, you better know to be the having one. You may be chasing something that's an over-rated thing.

Dear Kimmy: I have a boyfriend 10 months younger than I and we want to go steady, but our friends feel it would be impractical. What should we do?

Uncle Sam:

Dear Uncle Sam: If you two really like each other enough to go steady, then go steady. I see nothing impractical about it, if you are going to the same school. Tell your friends that your boyfriend goes for older women!
