SMOKEY SALUTES / The Careful Fisherman

He handles his matches and cigarettes and campfires as carefully as he would a hundred dollar rod and reel. Because he knows that nine out of every ten forest fires are caused by man—he always follows Smokey's ABC's. Always break matches in two. Be sure you drown all fires out. Crush all smokes dead out in an ash tray. —Only you can PREVENT FOREST FIRES! Scientists Are Brought Into High Schools

New York—UPI—If only 5 percent of the 1.3 million physical scientists and engineers in the United States were to devote a few days each year to educational instruction, the nation's junior and senior high school students would have direct access to 65,000 of the finest technical brains in the world. So says David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, who developed a pioneering program in education designed to produce a greater number of young scientists to meet a threatened national shortage. The program, sponsored jointly by the New York Board of Education and RCA, brought eminent scientists and engineers into the classrooms of four New York junior and senior high schools for more than 50 demonstrations and lectures on space age technology. "It is my conviction," said Sarnoff, "that our program, or others similar to it, can be duplicated wherever school systems and technological facilities exist side by side."

Klamath Area Blaze Contained

By United Press International A pesky 550-acre timber and brush fire southwest of Klamath Falls was contained again Sunday night. About 80 men working with tractors drew lines around the man-caused blaze, which began Friday on Hammer mountain. The fire on state-protected land was contained Saturday but high winds carried the flames beyond the lines into more timber. Fifteen fires broke out on state-protected land Sunday including a 200-acre brush blaze near Pendleton. The other 14 burned over a total of 76 acres. Twelve were set by lightning and three were man-caused. Fourteen small lightning-set fires broke out in the Wallowa-Whitman National forest.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF BROOKS ATKINSON, columnist and critic of note, loves his country estate—its fields, its trees, its birds—and has barred lumber tycoons and oilwell diggers from the premises. One big oil company, absolutely convinced there was oil under his property, offered him a fabulous percentage if he'd allow them to drill. "You'll disturb my birds," Atkinson told them. "Off with you!" The president of the oil company, frustrated, wrote Atkinson, "What are you going to do? Sit around supporting a bunch of bluebirds for the rest of your life?" An antique shop up Bedford way featured an extensive collection of old snuff boxes. "They were handed down to me," explained the proprietor, "by my dear departed grandmother." "Oh," nodded a customer. "Your grandmother took snuff." "Not at all," said the proprietor. "She took snuff boxes." Supposedly, Strickland Gillilan's two-line poem, Adam Had 'em. (which was entitled "Lines on the Antiquity of Fleas") is the shortest on record, but Charlie Rice has come up with a worthy competitor which he labels "Reflections on a Certain Vegetable." Log Cabin Maker Said One of Few Woodinville, Wash.—UPI—Sam McCrae of Seattle thinks there just isn't any better type of house built these days than those made of logs. This sounds more logical when you realize that Sam makes his living hewing log cabins. In fact, Sam is just about the only real, old-fashioned log cabin maker left in this neck of the Pacific Northwest woods. Currently, he is busy as a beaver notching logs and erecting a "trading post" museum at Gold Creek park. The development is part of "Fl. Bixby," a recreation of the Old West being built from the ground up by W. G. Tyrrell. McCrae is a perfectionist, by his own admission, and at the rate he's going the project is hardly comparable to those in the days when the pioneers held a "cabin-raising bee" and put up a livable shelter in a day or less. After the Gold Creek project is completed, McCrae plans to sell Pacific Northwest residents on the idea that log cabins are not out of style, especially for vacation living. McCrae is a Canadian citizen, although he has lived in the United States for the last 14 years. He commutes daily from Seattle where he lives with his wife and two-year-old son.

Regional Speech Research Subject

Austin, Tex.—UPI—A Texan named E. Bagby Atwood has become the Noah Webster of the East Texas piney woods by turning the techniques of scholarly research to a probe of how the denizens of that region talk. "Hant," Atwood explains, is a ghost or spirit, not to be confused with "haint," meaning "ain't." East Texans don't talk about wishbones, Atwood says. It's the "pullybone" they wish on. And a woodpecker, Atwood says, becomes a "peckerwood." Other East Texasisms: "Catty-wampus" — diagonally. "Christmas gift" — Christmas morning greeting. "Dad-gub" — mild expletive.

Welding Show Tours Country

Chicago—UPI—A big yellow bus rolling from town to town throughout the United States collects no fares and carries no passengers. It's a "welding road show." The 30-foot vehicle is crammed with equipment for demonstrating a variety of Chemtron corporation's NCG gas-shielded arc welding processes and related equipment to welders, educators and others in the industry. The large amount of power required by the welding units is supplied by a generator carried aboard and a striped awning can be unfurled from the side of the bus to cover an outside demonstration area. Montana's coal reserves are estimated at 222 billion tons.

LOVING CARE IS NEEDED when you're driving, too!

There are so many ways to express your love for a child —amuse him, caress him, understand him, protect him from hurt and harm. Because drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease, a car is potentially one of the most dangerous places your child can ever be. So protect him whenever he is in the car—with a seat belt. If every car owner in America had seat belts in his car— and used them—we could reduce severe injuries by one-third, deaths by 5,000 a year! It's terribly important to drive with loving care, always. And to support strict law enforcement in your town, for where laws are strictly enforced, accidents and deaths go down. But can a parent who wants to protect his loved ones and himself possibly overlook the protection afforded by seat belts?
