National Cultural Organization Urged At Eugene Assembly

Eugene—Sir Richard Allen, a retired British diplomat, urged Saturday that the United States establish a national cultural organization independent of the government but supported and encouraged by it.

Sir Richard is a former British ambassador to Burma, and was a speaker at the Pacific Northwest Assembly at the University of Oregon, attended by about 60 community leaders from the Northwest. The Assembly is co-sponsored by the university and the American Assembly of Columbia University.

Speaking earlier Saturday was Mrs. Catherine D. Norrell, deputy assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs. The Assembly is probing the problem of "Cultural Affairs and Foreign Relations."

Channel Cultural Work

"I think it is going to be essential for America to channel her cultural work as we in Britain have done, through a central coordinating organization divorced from her information service," Sir Richard said.

Mrs. Norrell described U.S. educational and cultural efforts, and said that the cultural relations of this country are based on both public and private effort, "the latter in predominant degree."

She said the growth of cultural relations has led today to about 2,000 organizations and institutions, including colleges and universities, engaged in some degree in this field.

"We are not working toward a tighter concentration of effort, but toward an ever wider diffusion that will release the energies of increasing thousands of our citizens. In their innumerable ways they will find new and extended contributions they can make," she said.

Although cultural exchange programs with Russia will not in themselves "reform the Soviet Union," in the long run they may help to influence Russia in constructive, cooperative directions, according to John Guthrie, director of the Office of Soviet Union Affairs of the U.S. State Department.

Guthrie was the dinner speaker Friday during the Pacific Northwest Assembly at the University of Oregon.

"Cultural exchanges are a reflection of the state of relations between the U.S. and USSR," he said. "During period of relaxed tensions, the program will make progress; when tensions are high, the program will suffer."

America must reconcile itself to being misunderstood by Europeans who read American novels, the noted American author Herbert

Gold said during the opening session of the Pacific Northwest Assembly.

Other speakers at the Assembly included Clifford C. Nelson, president of the American Assembly at Columbia University. Luncheon speaker Friday was Miles C. Romney, vice chandler for academic affairs of the Oregon state system of higher education.

Matrimonial Vows Exchanged by Pair While Water Skiing

Cincinnati, Ohio - (UPI) Fashion note: The latest in wedding attire is a white, one-piece bathing suit for the bride and black swim trunks for the groom.

"At least we don't have to worry about sweltering in a church," said one bridesmaid, attired in a yellow bathing suit and improving her suntan while serving as a member of the wedding party.

The occasion was "the world's first marriage on water skis," which Sunday attracted more than 5,000 persons to the banks of Lake Como in the middle of the Coney Island amusement park.

The groom, Ray Shearer, 26, explained that he had been "through this church marriage stuff before and a water ski wedding sounded like loads of fun."

"After being married once in a church, I thought I'd try something different," said bride Barbara Engel, 24, a secretary when she's not water skiing. Both are members of the park's "Water Ski-Ballers."

The Rev. James Teagarden, pastor of the Four Square Baptist church and the only member of the official party not in a bathing suit, performed the first portion of the ceremony on a small lake-side dock, then hopped into an 18-foot motorboat.

"By the authority vested in me as a minister of the gospel of the state of Ohio . . ." he shouted into the microphone as the bride, groom, best man and matron of honor bounced along on their skis in the boat's wake.

All Wore Swim Suits

In addition to the bride and groom, the entire wedding party was decked in gaily colored bathing suits. The 11-year-old daughter of the Ski-Ballers coach opened the affair by circling the lake on skis and strewing flowers in the wedding couple's path.

Another youngster followed carrying a ring on a satin pillow.

The bride admitted before the ceremony that her mother "didn't think it was such a good idea because it's not solemn enough" and "dad won't say anything."

But park officials, beaming proudly at their success, suggested that the ceremony had worked out better than many church affairs.

As one spectator put it, "they've been wetted . . . 'til depth do they part."

British Columbia Fishermen Return

Vancouver, B.C.—(UPI)—About 6,000 British Columbia salmon net fishermen were back on the fishing grounds today after the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union called off a strike Saturday over salmon prices.

The strike which began 22 days ago cost the industry an estimated $10 million.

Union Secretary Homer Stevens announced that fishermen had voted 86 per cent in favor of accepting a recommendation that the dispute with the B.C. Fisheries Association be referred to a single arbitrator and that fishing be resumed at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

The union and the Fisheries Association have not been able to agree on the matters to be referred to the arbitrator, but the two sides will attempt to settle this in further meetings.

Federal Fisheries Minister H. J. Robichaud and B. C. Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said if the two sides cannot agree on the terms of arbitration, then this matter should also be referred to the arbitrator.
