Salem—UPI—Ten more forest areas will soon be closed to entry except by permit. Proclamation of Gov. Mark Hatfield halting entry into the areas is a month later than usual because of cool weather conditions which held down fire danger last month, State Forester Dwight Phipps explained. Closures going into effect Thursday will affect four areas in the Eastern Lane Forest Protective Association district and two in the West Oregon district. The West Oregon closures will cover the forested region of Polk county and Eastern Lincoln county forest lands. Tillamook Area Listed The old Tillamook burn area and lands covered by the Linn Forest Patrol association will be closed Friday. Also set for Friday closure are two areas in the Clackamas-Marion Forest Protective association. Persons wanting to go into the closed areas must get permission from forestry officials. To be allowed in the areas a person will have to carry designated fire tools, build no fires except in designated places and smoke only in areas designated as safe.

Racial Barriers In Baton Rouge Eateries Lifted

By United Press International Merchants lowered racial bars without incident in another Southern city Tuesday. Lunch counters at 12 retail stores in downtown Baton Rouge, La., and in two big suburban shopping centers were desegregated with advance notice. Negroes were served quietly at the stores during the noon lunch period.

Picketing continued, however, at Baton Rouge's segregated public swimming pool and Negro leaders have asked a federal judge for an early hearing of a suit aimed at desegregation of the city's park and recreation facilities. Police arrested 138 Negro demonstrators at Athens, Ga., Tuesday for parading without a permit. Officers said 97 of the group were juveniles who were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Permit Lacking Fifty-five Negroes were arrested at Sumter, S.C., for marching in downtown area without a parade permit. All but 16 of this group were juveniles.

At New York, around 40 demonstrators left their picket lines at a Brooklyn construction site and filled up seats in the only restaurant in the area in a move designed to keep workmen from getting lunch. The pickets are protesting alleged job hiring discrimination on city construction projects.

Racial tensions appear to have eased in Chicago where white crowds have staged unprovoked demonstrations in a recently integrated neighborhood on the city's South Side.

Medford Skater Takes Third Spot Thirteen-year-old Earlene Hardy, 3404 South Pacific highway, skated through elimination and final events to win third place in the American National Skating championships held last week in Memorial coliseum in Portland.

The three placement winners of the event will later be required to move up to the intermediate ladies division, with an age limit of 18. Miss Hardy will be the smallest girl in the 26 years of the National competitions to skate in the intermediate ladies event.

Ranking Drama Critic Indicates Broadway Plays History's Worst

Ashland—This year's season on Broadway may well have been "the worst in history," one of the nation's ranking drama critics said here last night. The critic said the "imports" from Europe, including the ones which played off Broadway, were not up to the quality of past seasons. However, he praised "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" as a "truly imaginative and theatrical piece of work."

Addressing a small audience at a dinner at the Mark Antony hotel, Henry Hewes, critic for the "Saturday Review of Literature," said the "deterioration" was perceptible in the 1961-62 Broadway season was mercifully apparent in the 1962-63 season.

Hewes said investors in shows, plagued by production costs which have almost doubled in the last 10 years, lost over $5 million in Broadway productions. The critic said one reason for the decline this season was that many of the leading playwrights—among them William Inge, Lillian Hellman-Irwin Shaw, Sidney Kingsley and Tennessee Williams—offered plays that were "disappointing."

Hewes surveyed briefly several of the major productions of the past season, making brief, pithy comments on each. He said he regarded Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," the "most talked about play of the season," as a "truly remarkable" production.

Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore" Hewes felt was "imperfect." But the critic said he included it in the anthology which he edits, "The Best Plays of 1963," because he felt it was, nonetheless, "a major member of the Williams menagerie."

He described Hellman's "My Mother, My Father and Me" as revealing the "inner contradictions of middle class family life," in this country.

He said the "real hero" in the new burst of theater across the country was the Ford Foundation, which has just awarded $6 million in grants to help professional actors and companies to reach new levels of achievement. Hewes pointed out that it is "too early" to say what the effect of the grants will be, but at the very least he found encouragement in the fact that "it will now be possible for more people to work as full-time actors."

This is the fourth season that the critic has traveled to Ashland to see the festival production. The dinner was held last night, prior to the showing of "Romeo and Juliet," under the sponsorship of the Medford Broadway Theater League.

Search Continues For Missing Plane

Seoul, Korea—UPI—More than 30 Americans and South Korean planes took off at dawn today in a stepped up search for a small U.S. Army aircraft missing since Sunday. Poor flying weather has hampered search efforts for the past two days. Ground parties have not been able to locate the missing aircraft.

The aerial search was concentrated along South Korea's eastern coast, starting from the vicinity of Daepo-ri, a village 25 miles south of the truce line. It was from Daepo-ri that the missing plane took off about 3 p.m. Sunday.
