

Real Reason Behind 1952 Gangland Slaying of Arnold Schuster in N. Y. Disclosed

New York - (UPI) - "That's him, that's Arnold," screamed Wally Schuster outside his Brooklyn home on the night of March 8, 1952. "My God! They got him!"

Wally Schuster, operator of a small clothing store, bent over the body of his dead son who had been shot in both eyes and the groin in front of a neighbor's house, Schuster didn't exactly know who "they" were, but he knew there were plenty of people who resented his son's sudden fame for having recognized America's most wanted bank robber, Willie Sutton, on a subway on Feb. 18, 1952.

Mr. Everest Guides To Tour With Team

Washington - (UPI) - Five of the 37 Sherpa guides who aided the American team which climbed Mount Everest in May were invited to accompany the team on a six-week goodwill tour of the United States. The Sherpas carried heavy loads of supplies to above the 27,000-foot level - an extraordinary feat because of the thin air at that altitude.

Sutton was arrested and imprisoned because of Arnold Schuster's sharp eye. The 24-year-old pants salesman got plenty of praise and plenty of crackpot mail, too, including a few notes warning that he didn't have long to live. The police declined to give Arnold protection and several weeks went by without inci-

Theft of Camera Is Reported to Police

Frank Samuel Pinnock reported to Medford city police Wednesday that a camera owned by KMED radio and television station had been stolen from his car.

Pinnock told officers the theft occurred sometime between noon Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday. The camera was valued at $100.

dent. Then Schuster appeared on a television interview.

Only this week - more than 11 years after Schuster's murder - has the real reason for the crime come out. Albert Anastasia, burly Mafia crime

ACRES OF VALUE

Washington - (UPI) - Farm and non-farm demand for rural property is pushing up the price of land. Agriculture department experts predict that the average value of farm land will rise to $135 an acre by next March 1, from $130 a year earlier.

czar known as the "mad hatter killer," was watching television when the cocky, good-looking Schuster flashed on the screen. Anastasia exploded with all the ire of a man who has often been hunted.

"I hate squealers," he shouted to one of his gunmen. "Hit this guy."

NAMED SECRETARY

Chicago - (UPI) - Joseph McKeown, Coos Bay, Ore., has been named secretary of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

That's the story of why Arnold Schuster was rubbed out in an alley as he rushed home to change his clothes for a dance, according to a man who should know - Joseph Valachi.

Valachi, who is serving a prison term on a narcotics charge, is the first member of the Mafia, or "Cosa Nostra" as it is known to its members, to turn informant on his former fellows in syndicated crime. Valachi was a lieutenant of Vito Genovese who later ordered Anastasia's slaying in a Manhattan barbershop. Thus Genovese won the struggle for power which he still is reputed to hold although he is in a federal prison.

According to federal authorities Valachi has identified Schuster's slayer as Fredrick Tenuto, one of two original suspects long sought in Washington - (UPI) - Washington Police Chief Robert V. Murray said Wednesday that civil rights leaders are doing everything possible to assure a peaceful demonstration in the capital on Aug. 28.

the still-open case. But Valachi said officials will never find Tenuto. Anastasia had him murdered in turn to cover the trail.

Sisters Killed By Speeding Auto

Long Beach, Calif. - (UPI) - Three young sisters who were playing on a sidewalk were killed Wednesday when a car leaped the curb and crashed into them. Five other persons were injured.

"It was terrible," said a witness, Mrs. Margaret Parrmelee, who said she watched the car smash two of the young victims into the side wall of a shop where she worked. The auto crashed through a plate glass window of the building.

"All I heard were screams," she said. "One little girl was sitting on the sidewalk, crying, and there were two children lying under all the broken glass and bricks."

Killed were Darlene Vaughn, 11, and sisters Dotzy, 8, and Debbie, 7, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vaughn. The driver of the car, Donald Eugene Walter, 25, who along with his two sons Miles, 3, and Scott, 4, who were among those injured, was booked for investigation of manslaughter. Witnesses said the car was traveling about 60 miles an hour in the heavily populated area and failed to negotiate a turn from one street to another.

Also injured were Denise Baugh, 6, and Harold Ginn, 26, a passenger in the Walter car.

An American GI in Vietnam Asks:

"WHAT AM I DOING HERE?"

He dodges bullets, yet he isn't fighting a war; he is prey for an enemy whom he rarely sees; despite it all, he has found an answer to his question.

Don't miss the thought-provoking answer of 1st Lt. Thomas A. Horner, of Lafayette, Calif., who has the "peacetime" mission of training the Vietnamese to battle the Reds in the
