

SHELTER FOR COWS—A herd of dairy cows is shown at the entrance of a special "cow shelter" constructed on the Roberts dairy farm near Elkhorn, Neb. Thirty cows and one bull, along with three attendants, have been herded into the shelter to begin a two-week test on how the cattle survive in the shelter, which is built to preserve a milk supply in case of atomic war. Note the sign at the shelter entrance. (UPI)

Children Suggest Ways of Improving U.S. Space Effort

By ALVIN B. WEBB Jr. Cape Canaveral — (UPI) — If from the mouths of babes there always came words of wisdom, Cape Canaveral would be a land of giant fans, ski-ramp launching pads and "Saturday-only" astronauts.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has a file cabinet full of proof that the minds of America's children, uncluttered by physical laws and fiscal budgets, display a genius for the imaginative.

Youngsters have carried into the space age their penchant for helping their elders spend money. Uninhibited by worries about income tax 1040 and the like, they bombard NASA with scores of letters monthly suggesting ways to improve and often speed up the use of that $55 million America has committed to conquering the moon.

Suggests Ramp Sometimes, the letters are in the form of helpful suggestions, such as the one from Harry B. of Prescott, Ariz. "To help get your missiles off, why don't you build an overgrown ski ramp with a half-mile slant at the right end?"

If Harry's suggestion is ignored and U.S. scientists continue to fire rockets in the old-fashioned straight-up manner, some attention might be given to the matter of all that black smoke that covers the pad at blast-off, says Luther W. of Charleston, S.C. "Why don't you put giant fans to one side of the launching pad? Then when you shoot your missiles off, the smoke would be blown away so you could see what is going on."

There is a suspicion, Luther, that sometimes they would just as soon not see what is going on. Cape Canaveral has its bad days. Navy Studied Pigeons Grownups might be inclined to snicker at these youthful ideas. But the U.S. Navy once spent three years trying to figure out how to use corn-eating pigeons to steer guided missiles. The Navy learned a lot about pigeons, including their inability to guide rockets.

A fair number of NASA's youthful fans volunteer for flights into space — although, occasionally, there is a catch, as in the case of Tommy W. of Chicago: "I am interested in space and would like to become an astronaut, but it will have to be on a Saturday, as I have to go to school during the week."

Woolschlager Joins Staff of Winema

Klamath Falls — A shift of forest service personnel has brought Hawley L. Woolschlager to join the staff of the Winema National forest.

Woolschlager was previously employed on the Malheur forest in Burns, where he served as timber sale officer on the Burns ranger district. In his new assignment on the Winema, he will serve as a right-of-way specialist and work in the general lands activities.

Woolschlager is a graduate of New York State college of forestry, Syracuse, where he received his bachelor's degree in 1954. His forest service experience began on the Okanogan National forest in northern Washington in 1953. In 1960 he was reassigned to Burns.

Woolschlager replaces Doug Ludwig who was recently reassigned to the Klamath Ranger district.

Picnic Plans Are Near Completion

Plans for the Jackson County Family Picnic, sponsored by the Jackson County Democratic Central committee, are nearing completion, according to K. C. Wernmark, general chairman of the event. The picnic will be held Sunday, Aug. 25, at TouVelle State park.

Musical entertainment will include Cesar Muzzioli's accordion band, piano music by John Lusk of Lusk Music company, and a band concert under the direction of Ralph E. Ettel. Vocals soloists will include Royal Harger, Donna Mallard, Carmella Wheat, Pat Redmond and Carl Unruh.

Contests and games have been scheduled and trophies will be awarded the winners in the old time fiddlers competition, gold panning and horseshoe pitching.

There also will be trophies for the winners of the bicycle race. The course will be patrolled by local law enforcement officials to provide maximum safety, Wernmark said. A barbecued beef dinner will be served, tickets for which are being sold by a large committee. Anyone wishing further information is advised to call 773-4040 or 773-4760.

All Oregon Beaches Are Public Highways

Salem, Ore. — (UPI) — Oregon's ocean coastline is state-owned, and all beaches are designated as public highways. A move to change the beaches to state recreation areas was defeated by the recent session of the state Legislature.

Most of the beach "highways" are easily accessible, and auto traffic is not prohibited.
