Negro Girl Slain in Jersey City; Police Bring Out Extra Patrols

By United Press International

Police kept extra patrols today in a Jersey City, N.J., neighborhood where a Negro girl was slain by a white man during a racial disturbance Saturday. The suspect was to be arraigned today in the shotgun killing.

In Mississippi a river ferryboat turned around in midstream Sunday to bring into custody 25 whites and Negroes who refused to use seggregated waiting rooms.

Police and sheriff's deputies at Plaquemine, La., arrested the group brought to shore by the ferryboat's captain. Officers said they would be charged with resisting arrest.

Ronnie Moore, a field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, said witnesses told him officers used their shoe heels to break the "passive-resistance armlock" of the group. Officers denied any brutality.

At Lexington, N.C., police stepped between angry whites and Negroes outside a jail where three Negro youths were being held for the slaying of a white man in a race riot June 6.

The Negroes knelt and prayed outside the jail, and then Charles Poole—brother of one of the jailed Negroes—exchanged hot words with white hecklers.

When the white and Negro groups moved toward each other, police quickly took up positions in the middle of the street to keep them apart.

Other integration developments:

Tuscaloosa, Ala.: James A. Hood, 21, one of two Negro students who entered the all-white University of Alabama under federal guard two months ago, quit to "avoid a complete mental and physical breakdown."

Hood, 21, apparently faced imminent expulsion for criticizing state and university officials. He said he hoped to return to the university, but school officials said he could not come back until after a hearing on charges he publicly and unfairly accused officials of trying to get him expelled.

Goldsboro, N.C.: About 150 Negroes staged an orderly anti-segregation march in the town that saw 139 Negroes arrested in a demonstration Saturday night. Sixty-five Negro demonstrators remained in the Goldsboro jail.

Chicago: The American Bar Association was to consider a resolution today calling on lawyers to promote equal rights for Negroes. The resolution also asks an end to violent racial demonstrations.

U. S. Plywood To Purchase Assets Of McCloud Firm

New York–(UPI)–The United States Plywood Corp. has reached agreement to purchase all the assets of the McCloud River Lumber Co. located primarily in Northern California, for a sum in excess of $40 million, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by Gene C. Brewer, president of U.S. Plywood, and L. G. Carpenter, president of the McCloud River firm.

Carpenter said the proposal had been approved by the board of directors and would be submitted to stockholders for approval at a meeting called for Aug. 29 in Minneapolis.

Large Facility

Properties of the McCloud firm are located principally about 300 miles north of San Francisco. They consist of a large, integrated lumber facility and 1.2 billion board feet of virgin timber, primarily pine, on 86,000 acres of land. McCloud also has under contract rights to an additional 1.1 billion feet of timber.

Brewer said U.S. Plywood would continue to operate McCloud's existing facilities in California. U. S. Plywood operates a large integrated forest products complex in Shasta county, directly adjacent to Siskiyou county where McCloud properties are located.

Washington – (UPI) – Joseph Valachi, one of the Justice Department's prized informers on crime and illegal narcotic sales in the United States, soon will be called before a Senate investigation committee to reveal publicly what he knows about large-scale crime syndicates.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said Sunday his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee would suspend its current examination of the controversial TFX fighter plane contract to hear testimony from Valachi for three or four days.

McClellan said Valachi, a convicted narcotics seller, may provide enough information to serve as the basis for an expanded version of a subcommittee investigation of of national and international narcotics rackets, planned for after the TFX hearings.

Officials Mum

Government sources, meanwhile, have refused to give out further details about the New York hoodlum since they leaked the story last week that Valachi had been providing information about "Cosa Nostra," the nation's top crime syndicate. He had been in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., serving a life sentence when he began giving federal agents names and details about criminal organizations and activities.

Through Valachi, the Justice Department has learned of a dozen men believed to be the leaders of organized crime in America. He also has revealed details of nearly forgotten gangland murders and unsolved disappearances of fellow crooks.

Valachi has a police record which dates from 1918 when he was 15. It showed 18 arrests in a 38-year period befor his final arrest and imprisonment at Atlanta on narcotics charges. Most of the 18 charges brought against him during 38 years were dismissed.

Valachi now is being held in a secret hideaway to prevent gangsters from asassinating him for giving information about their activities to the government.

The subcommittee counsel, Jerome Adlerman, and other staff members already have interviewed Valachi at the hideout to gain information which McClellan said he hopes to use to further show Cosa Nostra's multi-million-dollar operations in gambling, extortion, narcotics and loan-sharking.

Valachi, the son of Italian immigrants, was born in New York City in 1903. He reportly is married and has two children.

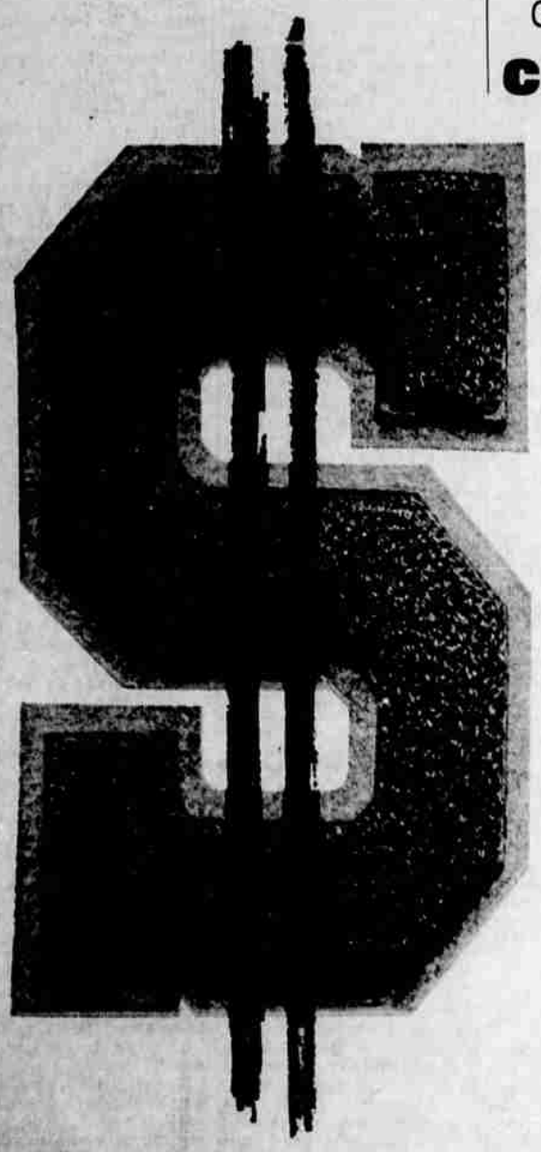
Will you have what's needed to send your children to college



? No matter how young your children are, it's none too soon to be making financial plans for their college days. In fact, it might possibly be a little late even now.

In "Planning for College Costs," a booklet specially prepared for New York Life, Sidney Sulkin, Education Editor of Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine, points out that higher education expenses will continue to spiral over the years, and he stresses the importance of preparing well in advance.

Not a luxury, but a necessity. "Though the demand for educated workers is expected to increase, the competition for jobs will become more severe, too," writes Mr. Sulkin, underlining the necessity for education beyond high school, as well as the greater salary expectations and security which college graduates enjoy. Fortunately, however—and despite growing classroom shortage and entrance competition—"any qualified student can find a suitable school to go to," and will go if parents plan ahead realistically.

What about scholarships? Perhaps your child will win one of those coveted and highly competitive scholarships—but don't count on it. Besides, most scholarships pay only a part of the total bill. An ambitious young person may also earn some of his or her needed expenses. Even so, more and more financial support will certainly be required in the years ahead.

In a detailed discussion, this authority analyzes various ways of financing a college education: long-term loans, state loan programs, installment loans, personal savings, stocks, government bonds and life insurance, citing the advantages and faults of each.
