Lost Creek Reservoir May Be Operating by 1970, Group Told

Lost creek reservoir may be in operation by 1970 or 1972, depending on the range of government appropriations, Henry Stewart, of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, Portland district, told approximately 150 people attending a Rogue basin project tour Saturday.

The proposed $530,000 in initial planning funds for the Lost creek reservoir at the Uncanny Canyon site in the McLeod area is now before the House public works subcommittee and appropriations committee.

Standing on the crest of the hill at the Lost creek site, on the road at the Elk creek site, or gazing down a steep canyon at the Applegate dam site it was difficult to imagine the immense size of all three proposed reservoirs.

"In a few years this project will probably be too small to satisfy the water use demand," G. V. Schirk, chief of projects and reports branch, Bureau of Reclamation regional office, Boise, Idaho, remarked.

Stewart said it is corps procedure to over-estimate the project cost and underestimate benefits or multi-purpose use. The corps was too conservative in estimating the recreational use of the Lost creek reservoir.

Bigger Than Howard - Lost creek reservoir would cover 3,100 acres compared to Howard Prairie's 2,000 acres at full pool. This would allow plenty of room for fishermen and water skiers, Stewart pointed out.

The Applegate reservoir area will have 945 acres. Elk creek reservoir operated as a unit with Lost creek will have too great a draw down for much recreation use, Stewart predicted.

The corps will provide such basic recreation facilities as clearing for picnic area, parking area, water line and boat ramp.

Applegate reservoir, 1 1/2 miles north of the Copper post office on the Applegate rd., will have year-around use due to the mild area climate. The Forest Service is basing much of its recreation program in this district around the reservoir, it was pointed out.

Current cost estimates are $80 million for Lost creek, $18,700,000 for Elk creek, and $15,800,000 for Applegate. Much of this money will be spent in the Rogue valley, Stewart pointed out.

To Use Tunnel - The largest dam of the three, Lost creek, will require 21 to 22 million cubic yards of rock and gravel material to construct the dam 360 feet above the river level, Stewart explained. As much of the material as possible will be taken from the area near the dam site. The engineers will use a tunnel and coffer dams to reroute the Rogue river during dam construction. Siltation will be a critical point and will be carefully watched, he added.

Fish passage, spawning bed and hatchery facilities will be operated jointly for Lost creek and Elk creek dams. Details on these facilities are not yet known. Initial planning funds do not include planning for the fishery facilities, Stewart said.

Ban Proposed on Some Drugs in Cold Treatment

FDA Order Would Curb Prescriptions

Washington - UPI - The Food and Drug administration Saturday proposed banning more than 50 "cold cure" prescription drugs after a team of leading medical scientists found that the antibiotics have no effect whatsoever on the common cold.

The proposed order would prevent the certification of prescriptions which include antibiotics in conjunction with analgesics, anti-histamines, decongestants, and caffeine.

It would affect only prescription drugs taken by mouth.

The order also would initiate regulatory action, if necessary, to remove from the market analgesics, decongestants, caffeine and anti-histamines when mixed with any other anti-microbial agents, primarily the sulfa family.

Action Said 'Major' - An FDA spokesman described the action as "major" and said it would affect 50 or more products manufactured by about 20 firms. He said that most of the products contain antibiotics and a few other anti-microbial agents.

The proposed order was published in the Federal Register, an official government publication, and gave objectors 30 days to file protests or comment before it can take effect.

Under the order it would be illegal to manufacture the drugs specified and they would be unavailable to doctors. But the order would not affect popular cold remedies sold without prescription.

"We have to do a good deal more if this is going to be a great decade of development," the President declared. "This program must be a success."

'Space Age Breakthrough' Seen Near for Newspapers

"We are not far from a space age breakthrough in the editorial department," William B. Sweetland, publisher of the Klamath Falls Herald and News, told foremen of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association at their sixth semi-annual meeting here Saturday.

He made the statement after opening his address at the luncheon at North's Chuck Wagon with the prediction that "imaginative, aggressive newspaper management" will be able to "hurry and catch up."

"One expert tells us that automation is going to change totally the way in which a newspaper is edited, and not later than 10 years from now. The editor will operate a push-button console that will permit him to change the news content of his newspaper right up to the actual moment the plates go to press," Sweetland summarized.

While most of the developments in new concepts of newspaper publishing have been restricted to the typesetting field, some new concepts are being introduced into the bookkeeping and auditing departments and one must conclude that the new concept of newspaper publishing will bring radical changes in methods in stereo and plate making procedures, the speaker declared.

Bribery Charged in Attempt To Influence Air Force Contract

HATFIELD QUARTET - Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hatfield (left) of Central Point, were among the first to greet Gov. and Mrs. Mark O. Hatfield upon the latter's arrival at TouVelle park Saturday afternoon. The elder Hatfields came to the Rogue Valley from Denver, Colo., almost 35 years ago, but had never before met the governor.

Hatfield Cites Failures of Democrats in TouVelle Address

"The Democrats in Oregon have abdicated their role as the majority party," Gov. Mark O. Hatfield declared Saturday.

Addressing about 300 persons at a Jackson county Republican party picnic at TouVelle park, the governor cited a number of areas of Democratic "failures," and then outlined the state GOP's position in contrast.

Hatfield charged the Workers' Compensation bill had gone down to "ignoble defeat" in the legislature because of the Democrats.

"I would remind the unions that all the friends of labor are not Democrats," he said, "and all the enemies of labor are not Republicans."

Pay Bill Came First - He said the Democratic majority in the last session of the legislature had "pushed through a pay bill as the first order of business."

"And they put tax reform as the last order of business," he pointed out.

Referring to the tax referendum movement, Hatfield said he wished to make his position clear.

"The legislature couldn't work out a good tax program in 140 days," he said, "and we can't afford to bring them back into special session to try again."

He charged further that the Democrats wanted to repeal the Council for the Aging, that they had failed to meet educational challenges in the state, and that they had refused in three sessions to reform the tax base.

The governor characterized the GOP as "a party of social concern, one interested in the people and their needs."

Unbroken Line - He said the party's concern in the area of civil rights extends in an unbroken line from Abraham Lincoln, but he stressed that the GOP must never use "expediency" to win the Negro vote.

Hatfield cited the GOP as the party of "fiscal responsibility." He said 11 state agencies have lesser budgets this year through reforms and economies.

"We cut $90 million off the budget," he said, "without impairing efficiency."

He said the state had "tightened up on welfare to eliminate chiselers, but not at the cost of those truly in need."

In reference to next year's presidential race, Hatfield said "the national spotlight will be on Oregon, twice in the next six months."

To Attend Meeting - He cited the convening of Western Republicans in conference at Eugene Oct. 10-12, and said he was pleased both Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be present.

Hatfield also announced he would attend a meeting of the Republican Governors' association in Denver, Colo., Sept. 14.

General chairman for the picnic was Bob Balk. Paul Selby was master of ceremonies, and the Rev. D. Kirkland West gave the invocation. Day Lynch and Ed Lynch were introduced as Junior Mr. and Miss Republicans in Jackson county for their efforts in selling tickets to the event.

Following the picnic, the governor and Mrs. Hatfield attended a performance of "Merry Wives of Windsor" at the Ashland Shakespearean festival.

Electronics Firm Official Accused Of Passing Money

FBI Says Other Arrests Possible

Dayton, Ohio - UPI - Morton Siegel, 57, vice president of Loral Electronics, the Bronx, N. Y., was arrested for bribery Saturday shortly after he gave "a considerable sum of money" to an Air Force civilian employee handling a $9.5 million "classified contract."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation office at Cincinnati said later that "a couple more arrests may be made for conspiracy in the case."

When taken before U. S. Commissioner Robert L. Snell, Siegel refused to enter a plea and asked for a preliminary hearing. Bond was set at $1,000 and a hearing granted, with the date left open.

Bond Posted - Several hours later Siegel, who had only $35 on him when arrested by FBI agents, was released when a professional bondsman posted the bail. Siegel reportedly returned to New York City.

The FBI said Siegel, who lives in New York City, was picked up shortly after he gave money to Charles Lopez, civilian head of the electronic warfare branch at the nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force base, who is handling the contract.

Siegel was arrested as he boarded an airplane for home at nearby Vandavia municipal airport Saturday afternoon, on a warrant basing the charge on the fact that money changed hands.

Victor Turyn, assistant agent in charge of the Cincinnati FBI office, said Siegel was accused of "attempting to influence an employee of the U. S. Air Force . . . in the employee's decision concerning a $9.5 million contract now pending at the base."

The employee, Turyn said, had reported to the FBI several weeks ago that he had been approached and believed he would be offered a job or money. Agents instructed Lopez to keep seeing the man and notify them what transpired.
