Dress Up to Stay At Home Is Trend

Fall 1963 will be the season when you dress up to stay home! An entirely new group of utterly irresistible gowns and garments will be offered for your selection.

And no fashion conscious woman will want to be without at least one relaxed elegant outfit for her at-home hours, whether she's entertaining or just lounging for the evening with a book. It all started when fashion great Norman Norell - who sets so many trends - designed and created a magnificent bathrobe - long and luxurious and meticulously tailored in heavy satin for one of his most elegant Society customers to wear for her informal at-home entertaining.

One look, and quite naturally other style-setting ladies wanted equally elegant things with this new feel.

Other designers began creating. And suddenly this new way to dress at home was more than a trend. It was a reality.

Adding more excitement and drama to the picture are such creations as one-piece outfits that look like separates but aren't and new twosomes that often pair a long sleeveless coat over a long print shift-like shirt, or a long jumper over a crepe blouse, slim sweater, or contrast fabric top.

Contrasting Fabrics

You'll find flannel being paired with chiffon, velvet with wool plaid, fabric suede with satin, in these fresh and unorthodox new combinations for a zest that's long been lacking in our leisure clothes.

The new pants are infinitely more feminine - often giving the appearance of a split skirt with their full cut, or appearing in such luxury fabric as brocades, soft wools and silks . . . or appearing be-ruffled and bell-bottomed in crepe, or slithering in slinky satin. So when you do your fall wardrobe shopping this year, don't deprive yourself of a wonderful new opportunity to enlarge your life with a delightful fresh look in fashion . . . a delightful new kind of clothes.

Furs For Fall Move Into Casual Field

Out of the recent showings of furs for Fall and Winter, 1963, came one outstanding fashion fact: furs have gone casual. No longer are stylists creating just the "classic" look in luxury furs, they've leaned over backwards to show that fur can be "sporty" and still be elegant.

Leading the fur fashion parade is mink, especially American-bred Emba mink in the many natural colors. Designers have styled these elegant furs into sweaters - some with ribbed wool or mohair trim - into parkas, into sleeveless tunics or vests.

Jackets, too, take on the casual look, with perky notched collars, belts of mink or leather or fabric.

One designer has styled Tourmaline, Emba natural pale beige mink, into a full-length coat with a semi-full shape, featuring a rounded notched collar, narrow sleeves and has added a belt of stitched beige chiffon, which ties and then cascades over the luscious fur.

Still another coat, in Cerulean, Emba natural blue mink, is double-breasted and slim, with a notched collar, navy blue leather buttons and calf belt.

Perhaps the height of this casually elegant look are the at-home furs. Designed for home entertaining is a shirt of Azuren, Emba natural blue-grey mink, with gathered sleeves and two patch pockets, and for the most glamorous hostess, a sleeveless, floor-length coat of Jasmine, Emba pure white mink, slit to the waist at the sides and sashed and lined in pale green taffeta.

Oakland Boy Dies In Gun Accident

Oakland, Ore. - (AP) - Ten-year-old Craig LeRoy Kopp was wounded fatally by a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle near here Tuesday night as he played with a 12-year-old brother.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at Douglas Community hospital in Roseburg. He was shot in the stomach.

The brother told authorities the boys had been shooting at hawks and he leaned the rifle against a barn wall. He said his back was turned when he heard the weapon discharge.

Craig was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kopp.
