GRIMACES IN PAIN - An unidentified Negro grimaces in pain as a mounted state trooper touches him in the back with an electric cattle probe when the Negro got too close to the city hall late Wednesday in Plaquemine, La. ## Police Arrest 104, as Negroes March, Ignoring Bench Order

By United Press International
A federal judge Wednesday issued an order halting demonstrations in Plaquemine, La., but Negroes marched again in the racially tense Mississippi river town. Police arrested 104 of the demonstrators, who set out in "task force groups," and the day's total reached 187. Many of them were juveniles who were released later. Authorities said the temporary restraining order issued in Baton Rouge, the state capitol 13 miles away, may not have been filed in time to stop the defiant protest march. The Negroes marched on the city hall and county court house, led by member of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). They were met by helmeted state troopers, local police and civil defense wardens carrying billy clubs. The order prohibited meetings, sidewalk and street gatherings, marches and other activities.

Other Racial Developments
Birmingham, Ala.: U.S. Attorney Macon Weaver said a false tale spread by an unidentified Negro was responsible for a wild rock-hurling melee by 2,000 Negroes Tuesday night following the bombing of a Negro attorney's home. The unidentified Negro had been blamed for an earlier bombing on Birmingham police. New York: Mayor Robert F. Wagner said he would take part in the Aug. 28 civil rights march in Washington. "I am clearing my desk so I can get down there in time," Wagner said. Athens, Ga.: Negro pickets surrounded city hall in a new effort to spur integration concessions.

St. Louis, Mo.: Negroes filed a suit in federal court charging the public system is racially segregated. Lexington, Ky.: Fifteen Negro demonstrators, including 10 juveniles, were arrested when they declined to leave a downtown department store after losing time in a drive against alleged discriminatory hiring practices.

Scientists Split on Test Ban Treaty

Washington - (UPI) - Nuclear scientists were split today in their testimony on risks involved in the limited test ban treaty, but odds still weighed heavily for Senate ratification. The three-committee group considering the pact called two former Atomic Energy Commission members and an ex-White House disarmament adviser to testify today. The group was scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. EDT. Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, former AEC chairman, and Willard F. Libby, also a retired AEC member, headed the witness list along with Harold E. Stassen, one-time disarmament adviser to President Eisenhower. But the record of treaty endorsements was cracked a little wider by testimony from a second nuclear expert who joined Dr. Edward Teller in warning that the pact might "hurt" the United States. The "no" was voiced by Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of the Lawrence radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif. He testified Wednesday that from "purely technical-military considerations the treaty appears to me to be disadvantageous." Explains Stand Foster said one of his "starkest" worries was that the United States would not be able to "proof-test" its weapons systems for lack of atmospheric tests - particularly as they related to antimissile defense and protection of U. S. missile sites. The Teller-Foster arguments were attacked forcibly by two other top nuclear experts - Dr. Harold Brown, research-engineering chief for the Defense department, and Dr. N. E. Bradbury, director of the Los Alamos Scientific laboratory. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) chairman of the disarmament subcommittee and a member of the foreign relations committee, said Brown and Bradbury had delivered "powerful" evidence to contradict Teller. Says U.S. Benefits Brown said the treaty banning all but the underground tests would reap military benefits for the United States even if Russia should cheat. He also said most of the problems involved in developing a missile defense system would not be solved by further testing. Bradbury said that down through the years he had disagreed with many of Teller's professional opinions. He said the treaty had only "mild risks."

Orchestra, Chorus To Combine Talents

Jacksonville - The Britt Gardens Music festival orchestra and chorus will combine talents for the closing three performances of the first season of the new venture. The festival opened Sunday, Aug. 11, and the final concert will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 24. The orchestra - chorus program will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and at 4 and 8 p.m. Saturday. Outstanding for the concerts will be presentation of "Serenade to Music" by the combined orchestra and chorus under the direction of Conductor John Trudeau, Portland. The chorus was trained by Lynn Sjolund, Medford, director of choral music at Medford High school. It numbers about 22 singers. "Serenade to Music" was played at the opening of Philharmonic hall, the first unit of the new Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York City. The selection, composed by Vaughan-Williams to lines from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," is considered especially dramatic and outstanding. This afternoon's concert features the Westward Wind ensemble and tonight patrons are invited to an open rehearsal of the full orchestra for a half-price charge. Friday afternoon's program will be presented by the first chair players of the orchestra, under Conductor Trudeau's direction.
