

In an old fashioned garden setting primary children of the 2nd Ward, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, sang and danced to benefit the church's building fund. Theme for the variety show was "The Seeds of Today are the Flowers of Tomorrow." Dressed up as flowers for their number are, seated, Johnnie and Richard Garvin. In the back row, left to right, are Robin Thomas, Alison Rowe, and Carrie Shaw. The program opened with patriotic music and the Boy Scouts presenting the colors.

MANOR-ISMS

By ETHELYN EVANS

Musical Notes: We are convinced that the launching of the First Britt Music Festival in Jacksonville will prove to be a truly wonderful thing for the valley. The benefits accruing from future festivals, in enjoyment, musical education and desirable publicity, are inestimable. Congratulations and gratitude are due Mrs. Bert Free, president, her entire committee, and all the many volunteer workers and contributors for the immense success of the Festival, also for the incredible job they accomplished after a late start. The programs we heard were most enjoyable and very well received and appreciated by enthusiastic listeners. Scattered over the hillside in informal groups—certainly in casual and informal attire—it took some time to realize that the audience was really a large one.

The setting for the concert is perfect. I wouldn't try to estimate the full number that could find advantageous spots from which to see and hear, but I am willing to wager now that next season our Manor members will turn out in "bus" loads. This being the first year and the location strange, there was some hesitancy about possible distances to walk, the seating arrangements, etc. All of these problems were being miraculously solved by the end of this series. The Festival next year will be sure to get off to a flying start.

My husband and I have attended outdoor programs in various places from coast to coast: At the Water Gate in Washington, D. C., where we sat on the bank of the Potomac with the Lincoln Memorial as background, listening to the National Symphony orchestra or one of our three famous service bands playing from an anchored barge on the river. The atmosphere there was rather formal, proper and a la protocol. Then in Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia with a seating capacity of thousands; the Esplanade on the Charles river in Boston, where the Boston Symphony played to a "melting-pot" crowd of 25 to 30,000; at lovely Tanglewood in the Massachusetts Berkshires with an intellectual overtone from the many, many music students swarming over the grounds; also the sweetly serene and solemn music at MacDowell concerts in Peterboro, N.H.; and thence to the Rose Bowl, San Diego and Carmel where, inevitably, some degree of Hollywood "spectacular" colored performances.

However, the Britt Festival in our valley seems the most satisfactory because of the warm, intimate and friendly spirit; not only among people in the audience, composed of residents and visitors, but between the musicians and these audiences. Often the musicians, when not required in some numbers, were lounging on the ground with their families and friends.

Candidates Initiated in Ceremony

Yreka - Eight candidates from Oregon and California were initiated in the second degree in the 20th annual Odd Fellows Cave ceremonial at the Odd Fellows-Pythian Cave near Yreka recently.

Registration prior to the evening event started at 10 a.m. and continued throughout the day at the Yreka IOOF hall and later at the Winema hall where a barbecue dinner was served at 4 p.m.

At 8 p.m. the Rebekah degree was conferred in the Mineral Arts building at the fairgrounds while the Odd Fellows traveled to the cave for the ceremonial. For the first time this event was sponsored by the Past District Deputies association of Siskiyou county and Weed lodge was host, with Glen Van Dyke, noble grand, presiding.

Grand officers introduced were George Hannaford, master; Leroy Scolari, deputy master; Elmer Garlick, warden; Charles Henderson, secretary; Tom Hitchcock, treasurer, all of California; Orval Mathews, master; and James Ball, warden, and Walter Murphy, past master, all of Oregon; and Jack Morrow, secretary of Idaho.

Present from the Grand Encampment of California were Fred Carstens, grand junior warden; Ellis Hopkins, grand treasurer, and Clark Arneal and Charles Hammond, past grand patriarchs. After introductions the degree staff from Gardiner, Ore., conferred the second degree. Informal talks were given on Odd Fellowship by the grand officers. Refreshments were served at the fairground.

Families Meet For Annual Picnic in Park

Nearly 50 persons attended the fifth annual reunion of the Haskins-Saltmarsh families recently in TouVelle State park. A picnic dinner was served and swimming and games were diversions of the afternoon.

Newcomers who joined the group were Mrs. Kresse Morey, Sonora, Calif.; Mrs. Velma Johns and granddaughter, Medford; Miss Ruth Nye, Rogue Valley Manor; Mr. and Mrs. Evan Bostwick, Klamath Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Williams and two children who at the present are living in the Applegate. Mr. Williams is a daughter of Mrs. Williams and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Byrnes.

Also attending was Peter Fiege, a grandson of Mrs. Icie Fiege, Meda Vista, Calif. James Bates was presented a prize for being the eldest person present, and he shared the prize with Mrs. Bates given them for being the couple married for the greatest length of time. The gift for the baldest man went to Clarence Williams. His daughter received the prize for the girl with the longest hair.

James Saltmarsh was the boy who judges those for having the dirtiest face, and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ratty had the largest family. Mrs. Gail Severson, Oceanside, Calif., had traveled the longest distance.

Remember corduroy? It's making a comeback—as a multi-purpose home decorating fabric ranging from drapes and curtains to bedspreads and couch covers. Now, a 100 per cent cotton corded material is available in a shrink-proof, 45-inch wide fabric.

Former Prospect Resident Visits

Prospect—Dwayne Payne, former athletic coach for the Prospect schools visited briefly last week in Prospect. He was en route from South Dakota, where he attended school for the summer, to Arizona where he will enroll in a college. Mrs. Payne and her children have been living near San Diego for the summer and they are to join Mr. Payne in Arizona. He plans to continue college work for the next three years.

'Leek Lovers' Laud Bulbs

New York (AP)—Leek lovers have bunched together here in a new "National Society for the Elevation and Propagation of the Leek." Sara Miller Cutting, executive director, said the organization's avowed purpose is to combat "the lack of recognition and respect" which the group feels is holding back widespread use of the leek. "Let's bring this versatile vegetable the status it deserves," she said. "Sincere leekmen will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are helping to spread the fame of the leek—helping the leek to take root, as it were."

Prospect Show Winners Listed

Prospect—Mrs. Archie McKillop won first place in oils with her painting, "Shades of Fall" at the recent Prospect Artist association exhibit here. First in the water color class went to Victor Wrigglesworth. His picture was entitled, "Abandoned Ship." The first place in pastels was won by Mrs. Halvor Garden with a painting, "Rabbit Ears." A number of paintings done by the local artists were sold during the show. Another exhibit is planned for next year. The small group which makes up the association was formed last year.
