Police kept more than 100 pickets away from the building as they arrested nine Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) sit-ins who tried to chain themselves to pillars at the entrance. The nine were part of group of 22 that has been camped in lobby for weeks. Pickets both inside and outside city hall targeted Mayor Robert Wagner, who has said he will be in Washington for Aug. 28 civil rights march. (UPI)

New Assistant Superintendent At Crater Lake

Donald M. Robinson has joined the staff of Crater Lake National park as assistant superintendent, according to Superintendent W. Ward Yeager. Robinson comes to the park from Cabrillo and Channel Islands National monuments in southern California, where he served as superintendent from 1953 to 1963.

Robinson's first employment with the National Park Service occurred in Sequoia and Kings Canyon National parks, where he served as park ranger from 1947-1948. In 1948 he moved to Cabrillo National monument in the same capacity, which he filled until 1953. During that period Channel Islands National monument also came under the same administration.

Robinson attended San Diego State college, receiving a degree in business administration, with a minor in zoology in 1936. He also attended California Western university during 1955, pursuing work in personnel management. He served with the United States Navy from 1940 to 1946 and with the United States Naval Reserve from 1946 to 1954. He attained the rank of lieutenant commander in his capacity as a line officer with specialization in mine warfare.

He was a charter member of the San Diego Kiwanis club and was active in Elks. Accompanying Robinson to the park were his wife, Dagmar, four sons, Don, Jr., 17; Dana, 15; Fred, 10; and Jeffrey, 7. They will make their home at park headquarters.

WHAT IS DOLLAR DEVALUATION? - I

(First in a series of Five)
"I hope and pray the time won't come when we would have to devalue the dollar," Federal Reserve Board chairman William McChesney Martin told the House Banking Committee recently when its members pressed him to discuss what might happen if we in the United States do not stop spending far more abroad than we are earning abroad and do not drastically curb the resultant drain on our gold reserves. "It would not be the end of the world, but it would take years to recover and would cause slowing down of world trade and our trade."

This threat of "devaluation of the dollar" lies at the heart of the grim battle we are now waging to slash the deficit in our balance of payments. Thus, it's time an effort was made to explain in simple language the bafflegab of devaluation.

Because we have been running in the red in our financial accounts with other nations year after year, our foreign creditors have built up over $20 billion of dollar claims, much of which they can convert into our gold any time they wish.

Because we are banker to the world and the U. S. dollar is the pivot around which all other currencies revolve, we stand proudly ready to sell gold out of our reserves to qualified foreign owners of dollars at the price of $35 an ounce which Congress set almost 30 years ago.

Because qualified foreign governments and their central banks owing dollar claims against us have asked for $9 billion in gold since 1948 and have drained $395 million out of our hoard just so far this year, our gold supply has shriveled to well under $16 billion, lowest since 1939.

Because the deficit in our balance of payments has soared this year in the face of administration assurances that we were drying up the red ink, worry about our dollar's integrity has been mounting.

Thus, the fight to control the outflow of dollars and gold from the U. S. has become urgent.

The Federal Reserve System is deliberately boosting short-term interest rates in the U. S. so our foreign creditors will be willing to keep their dollars invested here in comparatively attractive U. S. securities. Also to hold dollars in the U. S., the Central Bank has authorized U. S. banks to pay as much as 4 per cent to big depositors on certain short-term funds. The White House is pushing a controversial "penalty" tax designed to discourage U. S. investors from buying foreign securities and adding to the flow of dollars into foreign hands. These are the three latest moves made in the battle.

In addition, the administration is vigorously promoting our export trade so we can earn more dollars abroad on sales of goods. A campaign is on to boost tourism in the U. S. to narrow the huge gap between what American tourists spend abroad and what foreign tourists spend here. Increasing amounts of our foreign aid are being tied to purchase of U. S. goods by those getting the funds. An open goal now is major reduction in our net defense spending abroad and in other types of overseas spending. Most significant are the elaborate defenses we have created in cooperation with foreign central banks against currency speculators and the extent to which we are using the defenses.

The arsenal to defend the dollar is impressive and there are still more weapons in it, but, nevertheless, the 1963 deficit in our balance of payments has ballooned. And as our payments problem hits the front pages of the nation day after day, talk about "devaluation" as the ultimate solution is spreading.

We are not going to devalue the U. S. dollar in the foreseeable future. Only last month, President Kennedy repeated his pledge of 1960, again of 1961 and again of 1962 in these words:

"This nation will maintain the dollar as good as gold, freely interchangeable with gold at $35 an ounce, the foundation-stone of the free world's trade and payments system." There's no qualifying phrase here.

Yet, despite the repeated pledges, millions of Americans are asking: What is devaluation? How could it be done? Why does any one favor devaluation? Tomorrow's column will answer these questions.

Rights Rally Flops At Polo Grounds

By United Press International

A civil rights rally at New York's Polo Grounds flopped Sunday, but Negroes opened a small crack in one of the Deep South's more formidable racial barriers.

Negroes attended religious services at two white churches at Plaquemine, La., but were turned away at two others. Plaquemine has been the scene of numerous racial arrests.

Only 2,002 persons paid $2 each to get into the New York baseball park which seats 50,000. A crowd of about 30,000 had been expected to attend the rally to raise funds and stir up enthusiasm for Wednesday's civil rights march on Washington.

Sponsors, who invested $40,000 to stage the rally, said it was "a tremendous loss." Most of the principal speakers scheduled to address the rally failed to appear.

About 50 Negroes staged a singing march at High Point, N. C., in a continuing protest against the town segregation policies. Fifteen demonstrators were arrested while picketing a High Point theater Saturday night.

Graham Says World Near Calastrope

Los Angeles - (UPI) - Evangelist Billy Graham Sunday hit at those who preach the coming of "the end of the world," but warned that "many world leaders today are aware that we are on the brink of a world catastrophe and impending judgment."

"There is a growing universal awareness that as a society we have our backs to the wall with a storm about to break in all its fury," he told 40,830 persons at Memorial Coliseum. It was the ninth meeting of the current crusade which ends Sept. 8.

"There is still a future, but it will be God's kind of future," he said. "We need not lose faith, but we must transfer our faith from man and his progress to God and his purpose."

"Up until 1914 we dreamed of an early millennium. Just as we thought that the race had reached the age of maturity and self-sufficiency, the world was plunged into a series of wars, with each successive one becoming more costly and more deadly than the one before it."

"Our dream world came crumbling down around us. Death, crime, depression, strife, lawlessness, immorality and disillusionment unprecedented came in all their wild fury to lessen our hope and increase our fears."

The advent of the atomic bomb and deadlier weapons, Graham said, have brought us to an age of disillusionment about man.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a physician, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, motivated by guidance counselors and social workers. Edited by Mrs. Anna Denny. (Copyright by General Features Corp.)

Mrs. G. D. - He should apologize to my friends.

Mr. G. D. - They "took a chance" and they lost!

Mrs. G. D. - The other evening a carload of my hometown friends from Ohio drove up to our house to surprise me. But I doubt whether they will ever have anything to do with me from now on, due to my husband's rebuff. At first, he wouldn't even come down to say hello, later, he just said he was busy and excused himself.

Mr. G. D. - Since when must a man's plans go overboard at the whim of any yokel who feels like dropping in? Those characters should have asked us whether it was all right to stop by that night. I had reserved the evening to finish a book and I stuck by my resolve. They were on vacation, with free time before. My hours are budgeted.

The Council - Rudy Vallee used to croon, "My Time Is Your Time" - but it was air time and in short supply. Some people regard time as something to be filled in, by work or play, as the moment dictates. Other view it as a great treasure, a boon, by spent carefully, even "holed."

River Boat Runs Aground in Rogue

Gold Beach - (UPI) The passenger and mail boat Copper Canyon ran aground in the Rogue River about four miles upstream from Gold Beach Saturday.

The boat, under charter for the day to the Southwestern Oregon Bar association, was carrying 17 passengers. There were no injuries, but co-owner and pilot Les Fromm was thrown into the water.

The passengers were transferred to another boat for the remainder of the 32-mile trip to Agness.

The Coast Guard was investigating the cause of the wreck, which virtually demolished the Copper Canyon's wheelhouse. The accident occurred near the mouth of Jim Hunt Creek.

The Copper Canyon is the largest of 15 boats on the Rogue River mail fleet. It went into service only last month. Powered by three 280-horsepower engines, it can carry 48 passengers.
