

Robeson Flies to East Berlin Amid Reports of Break

Berlin - (UPI) - Ailing Negro singer Paul Robeson flew Sunday to East Berlin, shortly after a British newspaper reported he had broken with the Soviet Union.

Robeson, his wife, Eslanda, and an American woman friend identified only as Mrs. Hurwitz made the trip from London by Polish airliner.

They left the airport in a Russian-made automobile for an unknown destination. No trace of the 65-year-old singer has been reported since.

Harold Davison, Robeson's agent, said in London he had gone to East Germany to convalesce at a spa. The agent said he would be "away four to five weeks" before returning for a recording engagement and a television show.

Smuggle Attempt
The London Sunday Telegraph said an attempt might be made to "smuggle" Robeson out of England.

"The attempt may have been prompted by the fact that he may soon be well enough to speak to the press himself," the newspaper said.

The Telegraph quoted Robeson as saying to one of its correspondents that "the Sunday Telegraph article is vicious misrepresentation."

A Telegraph correspondent who traveled to East Berlin on the same plane as the Robesons wrote that Mrs. Robeson boasted of the "cloak and dagger" way in which she and various Polish officials helped Robeson out of London.

She warned him not to go near the singer but he was finally able to speak to him as "he sat like an effigy" just before landing, the correspondent wrote.

Love Russia
Robeson said in a Moscow interview in June, 1949, that Russia was "the country which I love more than any other."

He has been living in Britain since his passport was restored by the U.S. government in 1958.

He had been in a London nursing home which specializes in nervous disorders for over a year.

Harry Francis, a close friend and assistant secretary of the musicians' union, said it was "sheer nonsense" to say Robeson had been "smuggled" out of the country.

"Mr. Robeson has been unwell for some months and has accepted an invitation from the East German government to convalesce in one of the country's spas," Francis said.

He said Mrs. Robeson wanted "secrecy about their departure" because "her husband has been treated for exhaustion."

Two Policemen Shot To Death in New Jersey Nightclub

Lodi, N.J. - (UPI) - Two policemen were forced to disrobe and then were shot to death early today in a night club where they had gone to check on a disturbance.

An ex-convict with a long police record was arrested as a suspect a few hours after the double murder at the Angel Lounge. Two others were sought by police.

The victims were detective Sgt. Peter Voto, 40, and probationary patrolman Garry Tedesco, 21, who joined the force only a week ago.

Bergen County Prosecutor Guy Calissi said Voto discovered one of the men was carrying a pistol when he went to the club to investigate a reported disturbance. The discovery apparently touched off the shootings, Calissi said.

Four women and the bartender were the only persons in the club with the three men at the time, he said. Three of them were later picked up in nearby Hackensack after police stopped them for driving without headlights.

Calissi said the men jumped Voto after he found the gun. They ordered him to strip, and as he began taking off his clothes one man opened fire. Voto fell dead with bullets in the head and back.

While the bartender — Nicholas Kayal, 32 — and the women took cover, Tedesco ran in from the police car where he had been waiting.

The men grabbed the unarmed officers, forced him to start disrobing then shot him to death.

Police Chief Philip Wagenti said 10 shots were fired in the club, but it was not determined if Voto had used his weapon. Three pistols were found at the scene.

Police responding to a call for help from Tedesco before he went into the club, arrived moments after the women fled in a car. The men may have escaped on foot, authorities said.

Calissi said the murdered officers had been checking on reports that a sound like "firecrackers" had been heard in the lounge. Police had received noise complaints twice earlier in the evening.

Goldwater to Decide in January Whether to Seek Nomination

Washington - (UPI) - Sen. Barry Goldwater said today he will decide by January if he will be a candidate for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

The Arizona Republican said "I'm playing this thing by ear day by day. I would not want to say 'yes' or 'no' now, because I think it's much too early."

Now considered along with New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as a leading candidate for the nomination, Goldwater said he would not run for the Senate if he decided to seek the presidential candidacy.

During a copyrighted interview with "U.S. News & World Report," Goldwater said that any candidate for the GOP nomination would have to enter primary races to convince fellow Republicans he could get votes. The first primary will be held in January in New Hampshire.

Claims An Asset
Goldwater said he had one asset over others who might want the nomination — the GOP contacts and connections he made while traveling the country as Republican senatorial campaign committee chairman.

"It's an asset that almost any other candidate would have to develop," he said. "And you don't develop a million miles and a thousand speeches just overnight."

Asked why Rockefeller had been so critical of him in a recent statement concerning the "radical rights" and its influence in the Republican party, the Arizona conservative said he had no explanation, but that he considered the New York governor still his friend, "even though I had no advance warning" of the statement.

Hasn't Seen Rockefeller
Goldwater said he had not seen Rockefeller since the critical statement had been issued "and I don't expect to."

Regardless of who the GOP candidate is in 1964, Goldwater said his major problem would be in winning votes in large cities, especially in the East. Since 1948, an increasing number of Southerners have voted for Republicans which, he said, added to the Middle West from Pennsylvania to the Rocky Mountains, could help elect a Republican president.

Goldwater said a Republican could win without carrying California and New York, the two most populated states. Without them, however, he said a candidate would have to win majorities in Texas, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, seven of the Southern states and the mountain states.

Names Campaign Issues
Issues in the 1964 campaign he said, would be foreign policy, "the general growth of communism and our seeming inability to stop it . . . the slowness of the economy, and fiscal irresponsibility."

On other issues, Goldwater said he:

- Wanted more information on the political advantages over the military disadvantages of the nuclear test ban treaty.
- Opposed a tax cut without a cut in expenditures; but urged a complete overhaul of the tax code.
- Advocated a blockade of Cuba, the training of Cuban exiles and recognition of one Cuban government in exile as policies to overthrow Premier Fidel Castro.

-Increased U.S. private investment abroad and a curtailment of the foreign aid program with its application to projects only "where we can gain an advantage over the Russians."

National Park Service Observes 47th Anniversary

Aug. 25 marked the 47th anniversary of the creation of the National Park service. Superintendent W. Ward Yeager reminded residents.

On this date in 1916, President Woodrow Wilson signed the establishing Act of Congress. Contained in its text are specific directives to " . . . conserve the scenery, the natural and historic objects, and the wildlife therein, and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations."

Growing visitation to the National parks through the years has been accompanied by continual addition of new units to the National Park system. Outstanding scenic, scientific, archeological, historical and recreational features have thereby been preserved as examples of our country's rich heritage.

Includes 192 Units
The 192 units now administered by, or in cooperation with, the National Park service comprise approximately one per cent of the land area of the United States. These range in size from Katmai National monument in Alaska — the largest — containing 2,697,590 acres, down to those of less than one acre, such as the House Where Lincoln Died, in Washington, D.C.

Mission 66 is a ten-year program initiated by the National Park service in 1956. A primary objective of this program is the provision of adequate facilities and personnel throughout the system for proper enjoyment of the parks by ever-increasing numbers of visitors. Another major objective of Mission 66 is to achieve adequate protection of the features which the various parks have been created to preserve.

The objectives will be partially achieved by 1966, the target date of the Mission 66 program and the 50th anniversary of the National Park service, according to Superintendent Yeager.

Mrs. Richard Schroeder, lecturer, presented the program using the theme "Do You Remember When?"

Hosts for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Carr and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Coulter.
