

Three-Man Railroad Arbitration Board Named by Kennedy

Chairman Seeks Conference With Labor Secretary

Washington — (UPI) — Chairman Ralph T. Seward of the new railroad arbitration board said today he hoped to confer with Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz before scheduling hearings on two key issues in the rail rules dispute.

Seward and two other professional neutrals — Benjamin Aaron and James J. Healy — were picked Thursday by President Kennedy to serve on the special board under the first peacetime compulsory arbitration law.

Joined by two representatives each from rail labor and management, they will decide whether firemen are needed on diesel locomotives in yard or freight service, and the proper size of train crews.

No Fixed Plans

Seward, a former member of the War Labor Board and now impartial umpire for Bethlehem Steel and the Steelworkers, said he had no fixed plans yet for the arbitration process.

The law calls for the board to begin its consideration of the issues within 30 days from Aug. 28 and issue a decision 60 days later. It will take effect in another 60 days.

Wirtz arranged a meeting today with representatives of the carriers and five rail unions to discuss resumption of bargaining on so-called secondary issues in the four-year-old dispute.

On matters involving the pay system, yard and road crew jurisdiction, run between division crew - changing point and other issues, the law provides for renewed negotiations.

Law Signed

The law, rushed through Congress and signed by Kennedy hours before a threatened nationwide rail strike, makes no provision for a deadlock on the secondary issues.

The arbitration chairman said he had never been involved in a dispute involving railroads in their role as common carriers. He said he had arbitrated some cases involving rail operations within a steel plant, however.

The other two members of the arbitration board also have had wide experience in the field of labor relations.

Healy, professor of industrial relations at the Harvard University School of Business, has served as a presidential appointee in a number of disputes involving the maritime industry.

On War Labor Board

Aaron, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of California at Los Angeles, was vice chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board in 1951-52. He served on the War Labor Board from 1942 to 1944.

Both the unions and railroads already have named their members on the arbitration panel.

The unions designated H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and Ray McDonald, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Management members are J.

ARBITRATION BOARD — President Kennedy has named the three men shown above as the public members of the arbitration board to decide key issues in the railroad rules dispute. From left, they are James J. Healy, professor of industrial relations at the Harvard University School of Business; Ralph T. Seward, chairman, impartial umpire for Bethlehem Steel and the Steelworkers Union, and Benjamin Aaron, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of California at Los Angeles. Stock Market at New Level; Dow Jones Reaches 737.98

New York (UPI) — Wall Street found itself at a heady new altitude today. By almost any popularly understood average, the market in listed stocks stood at a new high.

The steps by which any stairs are built in this area — earnings and dividends of the companies whose securities are listed on the exchange — had been climbing in this direction for months.

Whether they had climbed to merely a landing, or whether they had led to a solid floor from which further ascent was possible, was almost a secondary consideration. At least overnight, the community which deals in dollar signs could feel that it had accomplished something.

It had seen two indexes—the numerical counterparts of the lines of mercury in clinical thermometers used to measure temperature — break into new high ground in trading on Thursday.

One of these was the venerable and venerated Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks. It closed at 737.98, up 5.06 for the day and 3.07 higher than the 734.91 it reached Dec. 13, 1961.

The other was the younger, but generally regarded as broader-based, Standard & Poor's average of 500 stocks. It had made one new record level on Tuesday, when it closed at 72.86. Thursday, it gained another 0.36 from Wednesday to close at a new high of 73.00. S&P can back up with breakdowns by groupings that it represents 86 per cent of the market value of all common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Heavy trading for three days, almost of the bandwagon type in the last half-hour Thursday, had helped put these indexes at their new levels. It was the kind of trading relished by the "bulls," or those who wish to see a rising market; it was heavy trading on the upside.

E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the carriers, and Guy W. Knight, vice president of labor relations for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Electronics Pace Market Advance; Auto Prices Firm

New York — (UPI) — Stocks continued to advance today. Electronics paced the gain with IBM up about 3 1/2 and Litton, Beckman, Electronic Associates, Electronic Specialty and Texas Instruments all up 1 or more. U.S. Steel rose close to 3 1/2 in the stocks. Union Carbide tacked on roughly a point in the chemicals. Autos were firm.

Xerox rose more than 2. Entertainment, drugs, foods and rubber issues were higher. Household Finance lost close to a point in the finance section. General Foods, Mueller Brass, Celanese, Cleveite, Oxford Paper, Paramount Pictures, Plough, Rohm & Haas, Ford, East Coast Railway, Goodrich and Varian rose a point or more.

DOW JONES AVERAGES

New York — (UPI) — Dow Jones final stock averages: 30 industrials 737.98, up 5.06; 20 railroads 174.87, up 0.60; 15 utilities 144.23, up 0.53, and 65 stocks 263.72, up 1.01. Sixty-four Thursday were about 5.7 million shares compared with 6.07 million shares Wednesday.

MEDFORD, OREGON, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1963

Surgeons Rejoin Severed Arm of Injured Man

Boston — (UPI) — Tests were being made today to determine whether an operation that re-joined the severed right arm of a father of seven was successful.

Lennart Turnquist, 44, of Reading, who was found battered and barely conscious Thursday on railroad tracks in suburban Wakefield, was in satisfactory condition at Massachusetts General hospital. His name was not on the danger list.

Officials said the arm, completely severed near the shoulder, was re-joined, circulation was restored and the three major nerves were reconnected during a 10-hour and 40-minute operation by a 13-member surgical team.

They said it could not be determined immediately whether the operation was a success.

Surgeons hoped to repeat their success of last year when they performed a similar operation.

In May, 1962, during an operation that now is a part of medical history, Massachusetts General hospital surgeons re-joined the right arm of 12-year-old Everett Knowles of Somerville after the arm was severed when the boy fell from a train.

The Knowles boy is slowly regaining use of his arm with daily exercise and continued treatment.

However, several other attempts to rejoin severed limbs at Massachusetts General have not been successful.

Wakefield police dragged Turnquist from the path of an approaching train Thursday after the crew of another train going in the opposite direction reported what looked like a dead man on the tracks.

Sgt. John Mahoney and Patrolierman Arthur Bragg found Turnquist lying on the Boston and Maine Railroad tracks near Route 128 in Wakefield shortly after they received the report.

Mahoney said Turnquist was lying on his back across the southbound tracks. His severed right arm was a short distance away on the outside of the tracks. Turnquist also suffered a deep cut on his head. One of his shoes was hurled several feet down the track.

Bragg and Mahoney placed Turnquist on a stretcher and carried him off the tracks just as a Boston-bound train came into view. Mahoney also placed the severed arm in a piece of newspaper.

A waiting ambulance took both Turnquist and the arm to the Melrose-Wakefield hospital. There, Dr. Harry Schwartz of Wakefield removed the torn sleeve from the detached arm and packed the limb in a bucket of ice.

Turnquist then was transferred to the Boston hospital.

Physicians said Turnquist had lost little blood and his pulse was strong. They also said the amputation was "rather clean."

Police said they had not determined how Turnquist was injured.

Southern Girls Grabbing Beauty Pageant Honors

Atlantic City, N.J.—(UPI)—Southern girls were well out in front today in the 1963 Miss America contest and they have the figures to prove it.

The judges chose Miss Arkansas, Donna Axum, as the winner in the bathing suit category Thursday night and they weren't just whistling Dixie — it just seemed that way.

The 21-year-old brown-eyed brunette, with 124 pounds distributed neatly on a 5-foot-6 1/2 frame, paraded to victory clad in a white one-piece swim suit. Her measurements: 35-23-36.

Miss District of Columbia, Rosanne Tueller, 20, won the talent contest based on her rendition of "I Love Paris," in French. Since Miss Tueller lives in nearby Virginia and is a native of Florida it was a clean sweep for the southern belles.

Second Straight Night

It was the second straight night that beauties from below the Mason-Dixon Line have romped off with competition honors.

Wednesday night Miss Alabama, Judith Short, won the trophy in the bathing suit category and Miss Virginia, Dorcas Campbell, took top honors in the talent competition.

The third round in the various categories is scheduled for tonight, with the semifinals and finals Saturday night.

Winners in the preliminary evening gown and personality competitions will not be announced until the semifinals.

Lounge for Visitors Planned at UO Hall

Eugene—A lounge for visiting alumni and friends of the University of Oregon will be provided in Susan Campbell hall, following a move which will transfer the regular alumni offices to that building from the Erb Memorial Student union.

Office space on the second floor of the former dormitory, will accommodate the alumni staff, the Old Oregon staff, and also the offices of Karl Onthank, secretary for the University of Oregon Mothers and Dads organizations.

Christine Keeler Appears in Court

London—(UPI)—Playgirl Christine Keeler, reduced from a starring role in Britain's "scandal of the century" to a prisoner in a London magistrate's court, was formerly charged today with perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

She and three alleged fellow-conspirators were released on bail following a 10-minute hearing on the charges in Marlborough Street court. They were ordered to appear in court again Sept. 13. All four had spent the night in jail—a new experience for Miss Keeler, the 21-year-old red-haired beauty whose affections brought the downfall of War Minister John Profumo three months ago and set off a scandal that almost toppled the government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Detectives also arrested Christine's friend, Paula Hamilton-Marshall, 21, and Miss Hamilton-Marshall's maid, Mrs. Olive Brooker, on the same charges.
