Former Ad Executive Gets Put On Spot

PORTLAND (UPI)—A member of a City Club audience Friday asked a former national advertising agency executive how the industry can justify promoting the sale of cigarettes, which may cause lung cancer.

The luncheon speaker — Don Belding, former partner in the Foote, Cone & Belding agency — said that, in the first place, he didn't agree that relationship between smoking and cancer has been proved.

In the second place, he added, no one is forced to buy cigarettes.

"Freedom of choice," he said. But, Belding commented, if cigarettes would cause a person's death, he would still have a choice of whether to commit suicide.

The man in the audience rose again, to ask "Are you aware that it is against the law to attempt suicide?"

Driver Dies As Car Misses Turn

BANDON (UPI) — Richard Vance Johnston, of Bandon, was killed instantly about 2:30 a.m. Saturday when the car he was driving failed to make a sharp curve on State Highway 42 two miles from Bandon and went over the embankment.

State police said the car went over the embankment and slammed into a tree stump. There were no passengers in the car.

THE WEEK IN CALIFORNIA

Gov. Brown Gives Highlights Of Six-Week European Trip

By United Press International
Gov. Edmund G. Brown returned to California from a six-week business and pleasure trip to Europe and reported the United States was becoming more "sure footed" in Europe.

Brown, who left while the Legislature was still battling over budget matters, visited seven countries including Britain, Germany and France.

QUEEN OF REGATTA—Verita Korth, daughter of Navy Secretary and Mrs. Fred Korth, receives a Navy hat from Navy Lt. Jack Darrell after she was selected queen of the 1963 President's Cup Regatta in Washington. (UPI)

He said the U.S. was "walking a thin line between peace and war all over the world." But, he added, "from one end of Europe to the other, we found that people are convinced that President Kennedy's foreign policies are making a difference."

Cigarette box: A superior court order in Los Angeles settled a dispute over a cigarette box autographed by the late Marilyn Monroe. The court ordered the box, also signed by her one-time husband Arthur Miller, turned over to writer Steffi Grant by her former husband, Leonard J. Grant, who took the box when the two divorced in 1960. The box was given to the Grants at the time of their wedding, earlier in 1960, and was inscribed, "For this wonderful day, affectionately, Marilyn and Arthur."

Elsewhere, there were these developments:

Unruh: Republican Assemblymen said they would give Speaker Jesse Unruh's "peace offer" high level consideration soon. GOP Caucus Chairman Don Mulford, Oakland, said they would study the offer at the Republican State Central committee meeting in San Francisco. Unruh who expressed concern with party feuding, offered to let Republicans help choose the Speaker and to hold high committee positions — a right the Democrats took away from them. The move, blamed on Unruh, prompted a "Citizens Committee for Honest Government" in Los Angeles to undertake a campaign to strip Unruh of his powers.

Fair Housing: The leader in the campaign to block the Rumford Fair Housing law, due to take effect Sept. 29, said in San Francisco that "we're in bad shape." Robert D. Weinmann said 200,000 signatures were still needed to place the matter on the 1964 election ballot. The deadline is Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Holiday Deaths: A record number of traffic deaths were recorded over the Labor Day week end, the last major holiday of the summer. At least 61 persons died in traffic accidents, breaking the record death figure of 56 during the Labor Day week end in 1946. Northern California, normally second to southern California in the number of traffic deaths, recorded 37 deaths. Southern California had 22 deaths. In addition, 12 persons drowned, two died in a plane crash and six were killed in other accidents. In all, at least 81 persons met violent death over the week end.

Shaw: Acting Los Angeles Postmaster Leslie Shaw, the first Negro to hold the office in a major U.S. city, said he had learned his application for membership in a local golf club was turned down but a spokesman for the club denied race was a factor. Shaw said he learned from two club members his three-month old application was rejected. Club President John Nicholson said the application was not considered because all 150 memberships were taken. He said Shaw's name, however, was "at the top of the list" should openings occur. Shaw said "I have to feel it is a possibility" that his race was a factor.
